PORTLAND MARKETS

California Strawberries Arrive But are Unfit for Sale.

Texas Onions Arrive But Too Late, as California Reds Can Be Sold Considerably Cheaper—The Egg Market Is Overcrowded.

A large consignment of California strawberries were unloaded, but of very inferior quality, the poorest that has been received during the season. A shipment of Texas onions was received, but as they have to sell for 5 cents a pound they come in competition with California reds, which sell at 2½ cents. Large shipments of eggs are being received and the market shows a downward tendency.
