The harvest in the Inland Empire, now that the grain is threshed, is much better than expected. The governor of Missouri recently granted a woman the right to wear a man's clothes in all towns of 10,000 or less. She liked to break horses, and the man's attire suited her better. But that is a dangerous power to put in the hands of a governor. He may next be allowing the young men to don female attire and cause social confusion.

An official report on the oil regions of Pennsylvania has just been published, and shows such a remarkable falling off in both production and stock as to cause the assistant geologist of the state to express the opinion that the existing oil fields are giving out. The proportion of dry holes to wells sunk has steadily increased during the last five years, while the yield of several districts has been diminished by two-thirds during the same period. Unless the wells yield more than is now generally expected Pennsylvania will soon lose its reputation in the oil world.

There is a secret society in Baltimore, Md., the object of which is to protect its members from an fortunate marriages. When one of the club feels that he is falling in love, he confesses to his fellow members and they appoint a committee to investigate the matter and advise him therein. In a certain sense the institution is a Trust in hearts, but its object is higher than that of most monopolies. It strives to reduce the unhappiness of the world to a minimum, and has been fairly successful in its restricted field. The sad news comes, however, that all the members of the organization are in love with the same girl.

A dispatch from San Francisco says: Judge Reardon has decided favorably the application of John Fitzpatrick, for a certificate of proof of naturalization and of loss of citizenship paper. Fitzpatrick is a native of Ireland, and a survivor of the Mexican war. He came to California in 1849, and remained until 1861, when he returned to Oregon, where he now resides. During his residence in this state he obtained from some court in this city naturalization papers, which he afterward lost. No record was found of such papers having been issued, and Fitzpatrick could not remember from what court he obtained them. Judge Reardon remarked that any man who had fought as a soldier and aided in obtaining California from the Mexican government was entitled to papers of citizenship.
