MISTRESS AND SERVANT.

A LADY is engaging a new cook. "Are you sure you don't keep company with any young man?" "Yes, I do, ma'am; but"—in a whisper—"he's an awful small eater."

"BRIDDHA," said Bridget, as she opened a bottle of champagne for the first time, "the fool that filled this quart bottle must 'a' put two quarts in instid av wan!"

LADY (to house girl): "You should take a lesson from the cook. You are slovenly, whereas she washes her face three or four times a day." House Girl: "Sh-h-h wonder. The fellow who comes to court her is a chimney sweep."

"MARY ANN," her mistress told her, "before ironing the finer linen always try the heat of the iron on something coarse so as not to scorch the material!" "I don't need to, mum; I hev a nose, and I knows when the linen is scorchin' by the smell of it, mum."

"WELL, Mrs. Pettigrew, if yez don't raise me wages I shall be obleeged to lie awhile livin' yez whin me mouth is up." "Why, Jane? When you came here you knew scarcely any thing; it was I who taught you." "An' shure, mum, wouldn't I be awther bein' wuth more nor, whin I know so much, than whin I didn't know nothin' at all?"

MADAME comes home and finds Minna (the servant) sitting in the kitchen reading a book by the light of two candles. She is very naturally annoyed at the girl's extravagance. "Why, Minna, actually reading novels with two candles burning?" "Not at all, ma'am," was the cool reply, "that's only one candle. I just cut it in two half an hour ago."

QUEER PEOPLE AND THINGS.

A New York clothing sign is Taylor, Cutting & Co.

A New York doctor, startled by a proposal of marriage from a spinster, called in the police and had her arrested.

Two CITIZENS of Palmyra, Me., have had so many quarrels that a few days ago a contract was drawn up between them that in future they would have nothing to do with each other.

A WOMAN of Hiawatha, Kan., hired a poor woman to wash for her at fifteen cents an hour, and while the washerwoman was at work turned the clock back an hour and a half.

ONE of the latest things in church fairs is a bazar held in Edinburgh, Scotland, for the purpose of raising funds to provide accommodations for ladies who faint during church services.

W. R. GIBSONY was sent to jail in Kansas City, Mo., the other day for stealing a "red-hot stove," the oven of which was filled with biscuits. He sold the stove at a second-hand store, biscuits and all, for three dollars.

A NUMBER of New York hotels have special cages for their telephones. It is a room filled with patent double doors and double walls, so that not a sound uttered by the sender of a message can be heard outside the cage.

Those He Did Know.

Here is a true story of a well-known and greatly esteemed Boston journalist. It is told on itself:

"The point is that I so far from being a [illegible] that he is accused of being [illegible] of the [illegible] of time. One [illegible] this point by a [illegible] street car, who asked [illegible]

"Don't tear, Mr. A., that you don't [illegible] some time soon another?"

"As a fact," he said, "that I can't possibly distinguish twins apart. There are only two twins that I really know well."

"Which are they?"

"Well, Hayden and the long meter doxology."—Boston Transcript.

NOTES FOR THE WOMEN.

IN England dress fashions have not changed for one thousand years.

LADY RANDOLPH started the style of [illegible] hats, feathers and Marie Antoinette revived the custom of wearing [illegible] in the hair.

MME. MARIE GRANVILLE, who has seen much of the country, has most French opinions, says the American woman is too fond of many acquaintances and too few friends.

SHE is reported to have the gloves worn the entire year as may occur with any dress. They are secured to the arm by a strip of satin ribbon that is the exact color of the glove.

SHORT veils adorned with large spots are now taken the dots of chenille are arranged with a clever regard for effect. In other words, a woman must know her own veil maker, and [illegible] small black disk in such a place as will call attention to her most [illegible] feature.

A MOURNING costume worn by a London belle had a rich white silk royale [illegible] bordered with white ostrich [illegible] and opened over a beautiful [illegible] shirt richly embroidered with pearls. One half of the bodice is of white silk; the other of velvet draped with crepe de Chine. The [illegible] veil was held in place by three [illegible] diadems.

FUN FOR THE MEN FOLKS.

"GREEN critters, women is," said Uncle Jabez. "When one of 'em starts to git a man all the others tries to help her off, an' then, soon as she gits him, they all turn round and help her to manage him."—Indianapolis Journal.

PENELOPE—"I must telegraph Emily my answer." Helen—"What shall you say?" Penelope—"Yes." Helen—"You can send ten words for the same money." And Penelope wired as follows: "I have decided to do as you have requested me."—N. Y. Evening Sun.

"I SHALL die happy," said an expiring husband to his wife, who was weeping distractedly at his bedside, "if you promise not to marry that object of my unceasing jealousy, your cousin Charles." "Make yourself quite easy, love," said the expectant widow, "I am engaged to his brother."—Rochester Talisman.

"DON'T you think you would make more money and enjoy better health in doing housework?" "Yes, I rather think I would," answered the "sales-lady." "And yet your false pride—" "Oh, pride has nothing to do with it. I don't want to be 'bossed by another woman, that's all."—Indianapolis Journal.

At the New Home.

Mrs. Wickwire—Oh, Henry! And I told you so particularly before you chose a house to be sure the chimneys didn't smoke.

Mr. Wickwire—Well, th's one doesn't. Come outside and see for yourself, Judge.
