JOCKEY CHORN RIDES AFTER SUSPENSION

Member of the Famous "Little Pete" Scandal Forgiven at Last.

(Journal Special Service.)

SEATTLE, June 22.—Jerry Chorn, one of the jockeys who figured in the sensational "Little Pete" racing scandal on the Bay District track at San Francisco nearly seven years ago, rode in the third race at The Meadows Friday for the first time in this state. For six years prior to last winter, he had been ruled off the American turf for being implicated, and, it is thought, one of the ringleaders in one of the largest racing beats ever unearthed in America. The principal in the affair was "Little Pete," a wealthy San Francisco Chinaman. He had the jockeys at the Bay District track so well in line that whatever horse he said was to win, would win.

An investigation of the scandal revealed the fact that a number of jockeys, amoung them Chorn, Chevalier and Heinricks—the three stars of the circuit at that time—were systematically beating the bookmakers and were in league with the Chinese gambler. Their plan was so simple that had it not been for the fact that some of the boys talked too much, it might never have been suspected.

W. B. Sink, who now owns John Boggs and Glendenning at The Meadows, was then getting out a handicap and tips on the races. The tips sold for $1. At first but a few of them were put out, but soon after the "Little Pete" ring got in working order, the handicap was in greater demand. From three to five of the winners picked in the handicap came under the wire first each day. The demand for the tips grew and soon a couple of hundred of them were sold each day.

It developed later that the Chinaman would select as the horses to be forced in first by the jockeys, those picked by Sink in his handicap. When questioned regarding his sensational winnings before the plot was exposed, "Little Pete" simply said that he used the handicap and that the horses picked there seemed to win pretty regularly.

Chorn was one of the jockeys ruled off the track for life, but was allowed to come back last winter.

AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

The beautiful Weber pianos used by the different members of the Maurice Grau Opera Company of New York during the opera season just closed are now on exhibition and sale at Eilers Piano House. In this remarkable collection there are nearly two carloads, comprising various Baby Grand and Cabinet Upright pianos, also the various leading Weber Art styles. Every instrument is as good as new and even better, having been beautifully mellowed and finished in tone under the skilled touch of talented musicians. Notwithstanding this and the fact that they have been associated with the world's peerless artists, these pianos are being sold at a substantial discount from the regular retail price, and if desired arrangements can be made to pay for them on very reasonable monthly installments.

We are also continuing the sale of accumulated used and second-hand instruments, among them a beautiful Decker & Son, original price $500, now $245; a fancy English oak Colonial Jacob Doll upright, the $350 style, for $252.

There are also still left a few of the Gilbert Bros.' bankrupt stock, all of which are going at 50 cents on the dollar.

In addition to these, we are cleaning up various accumulated odds and ends, among them the Harmonist and Appollo—but no Pianolas. Prices on these range from $115 to $185.

(Journal Special Service.)

SEATTLE, June 22.—The Interurban Handicap at seven furlongs was the feature of the racing at the Meadows Saturday afternoon. The race went to The Pride, a strong favorite. HARD TO GET EMBLEM

(Journal Special Service.)

NEW HAVEN, June 22.—As the years roll on it becomes more and more difficult for a student at Yale to win the coveted "Y."

By the latest overhauling of the rules governing the award of this emblem it is impossible for the members of the golf, tennis, cross-country, basketball and hockey teams to get a "Y," even if they are winners of an intercollegiate championship. Only basketball, football, track and crew men will be hereafter favored with this distinction.

The rules governing the college athletic emblem are now stricter at Yale than at any other American university. They are as follows:

Rule 1—No student shall be allowed to use the letter "Y" in such way as to appear to be a player on a Yale team except in accordance with the following rules:

Rule 2—Football, Baseball, Crew: The university "Y" and accompanying insignia shall be given only to those members of the football and baseball teams and of the crew who have taken part in championship contests, and to the manager of the association. Caps, not to exceed three, may be given to substitutes, at the discretion of the captain, with the consent of his successor.

Rule 3—Track Athletic: The university "Y" and accompanying insignia shall be given only to those members of the track team who win a point in the intercollegiate game or who win first or second place in the Yale-Harvard games. The "Y" shall be awarded to the manager of the association.

Rule 4—The champion college gymnast shall receive a "Y" sweater only.

GOOD SUM REALIZED FOR HEPPNER FUND

Federal and County Employes Play Ball for Benefit of Sufferers.

In a splendidly played contest before an appreciative and enthusiastic crowd of spectators on Saturday afternoon, the Federal employes succeeded in defeating the County Courthouse collection of stars, by the large score of 24 to 13. The success of Uncle Samuel's proteges deliberately attributed to their heavy hitting powers, all efforts to prevent the slugging proving unavailing. The proceeds of the game will be added to the Heppner relief fund, and will probably enrich it $300. About $140 were taken Saturday and according to the reports of the ticket sellers, more than that will be realized from the other sales.

The contest throughout was exciting, and if one kept his eye on the ball all the time he would undoubtedly have lost his eye. Major Charles McDonnell pitched six long and brilliant innings for his cohorts, but as the rightfielder didn't deport himself properly in that locality the Major released him, and betook himself to right garden, where he enjoyed seeing his successor in the box get batted all over creation. Beard twirled for the Federalists and kept the hits beautifully scattered, so well so that his fielders rarely got their hands on them. At times Rankin played unsurpassable ball, but his lame ankle impaired him at dangerous periods. The crowd easily recognized him and bestowed a bunch of carnations upon his graciousness. Charlie Burkhardt was tendered a tremendous ovation when he knocked a scorching three bagger to the fence, but his socks fell ingloriously a second later when Jay Andrews called him out for hitting the ball entirely too far for an amateur. Jay was afraid that such batting might hurt the Browns.

In the dim distant future, when the heaven-inspired historian shall take her pen and dip it in the golden sunlight to record the events of this age, she will write the names of those who participated in Saturday's game as the greatest, most wonderful, and marvelous players of all times. The committee desires to sincerely thank the following for the splendid assistance rendered towards making the affair a success:

The Journal, Telegram and Oregonian, for advertising; C. L. Brown and the Musicians' Union, music for parade; Multnomah Printing Company, for tickets; United Carriage Company, tally-ho for parade; M. J. Driscoll & Co., tally-ho for parade; Portland Baseball Association for grounds; City Messenger & Delivery Company, for wagon to carry banners; Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club, for use of grounds to practice; George Rutherford, for expressage, and Jay Andrews for his kindness in umpiring.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 22.—Portland lost the fifth straight game to Los Angeles yesterday through inability to hit Corbett. Corbett was a trifle wild and issued five passes, but he evened things up by fanning as many as he walked. Joe Kostal was on the slab for the Portland team, and, except in the fourth inning, he pitched great ball. The Angels scored all their runs in the fourth, when they secured three singles and a double off Kostal's delivery, which, coupled with an error, netted Los Angeles four runs.

An error, an out at first and Van Buren's single scored the only run made by Portland. The Portland team left last night for San Francisco, where they meet Oakland this week. The Browns will be minus a third baseman, as Josh Reilly has to return to his position in the San Francisco mint. The score:

RAGLANS WIN TWO FROM ALBANY NINE

Large Crowd Witnessed the Overcoat Players Down the Albany Performers.

SALEM, Or., June 22.—The Albany baseball team met defeat at the hands of the Salem Raglans in two straight games at the C. A. A. C. Park in this city, Saturday and Sunday afternoons, when large crowds were in attendance. In Saturday's game, although the visitors worked hard and faithfully, they were shut out, Salem winning the game by a score of 7 to 0.

Yesterday's game was played under difficulties. A shower in the early portion of the afternoon made the field somewhat bad, and though it was not actually muddy, it still made it heavy for good ball playing, and when, during the seventh inning, the rain again fell in a gentle shower, conditions were not improved. Excellent work was done by both teams, Rupert, the center fielder of the Albany team, especially distinguishing himself by catching long flies under difficult conditions, and Patterson, Salem's new shortstop, did splendid work with the bat, sending two balls high over right field and the fence, scoring a home run each time. Salem won the game by a score of 10 to 2, as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 22.—The Court of Appeals, in an opinion delivered in the case of the Commonwealth against Terry McGovern and others, rules that a court of equity can grant an injunction against the owners and managers of a building to restrain the holding of a prize fight therein. The decision is a death blow to pugilistic contests in the State of Kentucky.

CAN CORBETT WHIP CHAMPION JEFFRIES

Discussion as to Whether Any Living Man Can Beat Boilermaker.

The approach of the heavyweight championship battle between James J. Jeffries and Jim Corbett has again brought up the question as to whether there is a man who can down the champion.

All of the prominent heavyweights have had a crack at the big boilermaker and they have one after the other gone down before the heavy wallops of this huge giant from the West. Ever since Jeffries won the championship from Bob Fitzsimmons at Coney Island followers of pugilism have been trying to figure out what kind of an individual would succeed in dethroning the champion. Since that memorable battle Jeffries has met all comers, but none was successful in wresting from him the coveted title.

Among Jeffries' victims—that is, aspirants who have tried and failed—are Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Corbett, Tom Sharkey and Gus Ruhlin. Those named have tried various punches without effect.

Jeffries' vulnerable point is his stomach. No one has ever been able to reach it with sufficient force to stagger the big champion. No one dare run into Jeffries' extended left, for the slightest jolt, with the power of a massive frame behind it, makes it a source of constant danger. Jeffries has an excellent defence in his extended left and his peculiar crouching pose.

Fitz Failed Twice.

Fitzsimmons failed twice in his effort against the champion, and now Corbett is to have his second chance with his conqueror. Fitzsimmons changed his tactics very little from the first time he met Jeffries and the second time. In his first bout he was after Jeffries all the time, continually running into the champion's stiff left, which finally sent him to the floor in a heap.

Fitzsimmons was the aggressor again in their return match. He landed repeatedly on the champion's jaw and seemed to be having the best of the argument when Jeffries got busy and put his man out.

What tactics will Corbett use? is the interesting question sporting men are asking. In his last battle Corbett played a clever game. His only object appeared to be to stay the limit, and he almost succeeded, fighting 23 rounds before he was knocked out. Since that contest Corbett has been working hard. He has given up all his time to a systematic course of training, which he and his friends claim has done the former champion a world of good.

Corbett Is Stronger.

It is claimed that Corbett is much stronger than he ever was before, and that he is capable of landing a terrific punch. This would indicate that Corbett will not be satisfied with simply staying the limit with the champion in an effort to get the decision on points, but will try hard to score a knockout.

Corbett knows that he will have no difficulty in landing on Jeffries. In their last contest Corbett landed three to one, but his blows lacked the necessary power to score a knockout. With a stronger punch and the development of certain muscles Corbett says that he has been obliged to sacrifice a little speed.

"I have learned that a man to land a very effective blow must have certain muscles developed and a very hard hand that will not give when you land on an opponent's jaw," said Corbett recently. "Since I have been developing my shoulder and arm muscles I noticed that the process took a little speed away from me. This, however, I can afford to sacrifice."
