WEATHER REPORT.

The coldest weather of the season prevails this morning in Montana and the Dakotas, the lowest temperature being 48 degrees below zero at Williston, North Dakota. Zero weather extends as far south as Dodge City, Kansas, and east to Chicago, Illinois, while freezing temperatures are being experienced in Texas nearly as far south as San Antonio, and thence east through Arkansas, Tennessee and North Carolina to the Atlantic coast. Over the greater portion of the area with temperatures between zero and the freezing point light snow has fallen, but, fortunately, everywhere within the cold area the winds are light.

A trough of low pressure extends from western Washington southeast to Colorado and over this strip of territory rain has fallen and the temperatures are above normal. This trough of low pressure presents a barrier to the further drainage of cold air into the north Pacific states, and the indications are for nearly stationary temperatures in this district during the next 36 hours, with rain in Oregon and southern Idaho, and snow in Washington and northern Idaho.

LEADING ADVERTISERS
ALL USE
THE JOURNAL

In all cities there are leading advertisers—advertisers who set the pace. Portland has her share of them and they all "use The Journal" and several of them consider The Journal "the best medium in Oregon"—the only one that gives the most results for the least money.

MORAL: Follow the lead of these leading advertisers—advertise in The Journal—after that there will be no regrets. The Journal pays advertisers.
