WEATHER REPORT.

Storm warnings were ordered displayed last night at 5:40 o'clock at all stations in this district.

A disturbance of decided character made its appearance yesterday afternoon off the Washington coast. It will move slowly eastward and cause general rains and high winds in this district during the next 24 hours. The Kansas disturbance has moved northeastward to Illinois, and another disturbance has formed over Texas. The barometer is relatively high over both the south Pacific and the south Atlantic coasts, and a high pressure area of moderate strength is central over Saskatchewan. The temperatures continue below normal in the middle and south Atlantic states, and light frosts are reported in Georgia and the Carolinas, and heavy frosts in Virginia. Showers have fallen in Texas, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois, and snow has occurred in Minnesota and upper Michigan.
