WEATHER REPORT.

Portland, Or., May 4.—A low pressure area of considerable energy is central over Nevada which will probably move northeastward and cause showery conditions Sunday in the southeastern portion of this district. No rain has yet resulted from this disturbance except a few small showers in the east central portion of California and in Nevada.

It is much warmer in northern California and slightly warmer generally throughout the north Pacific states.

The indications are for showers Sunday in southern Idaho and for generally fair weather elsewhere in this district, except along the north Washington coast, where showery conditions are also threatening.

FORECASTS.

Portland and Vicinity: Sunday, probably fair; westerly winds.

Western Oregon: Sunday, fair; westerly winds.

Western Washington: Sunday, fair, except showers near the north coast.

Eastern Oregon, Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho: Sunday, fair.

Southern Idaho: Sunday, showers.
