WEATHER REPORT

The high pressure area over the north Pacific states has remained nearly stationary, and the crescent-shaped trough of low pressure has resolved itself into three small depressions, one of which is central over Arizona, another is central north of Montana, and the third occupies the lake region. The barometer is relatively high over the Gulf states. Fair weather prevails in the Rocky mountain and Pacific states and generally throughout the eastern states. Unusually high temperatures occurred yesterday afternoon in southern California, and it is warmer than usual in the lake region and Ohio valley. Elsewhere moderate temperatures prevail.

Indications are for fair and warmer weather in this district tonight and tomorrow.
