WEATHER REPORT

The barometer is relatively higher over the north Pacific states and also over the gulf states. The western trough of low pressure has disappeared and in its place are noted four small low pressure areas, one of which is central over southern California, another over Nebraska, a third over the upper lake region, and the fourth north of Montana. During the 24 hours ending with this report light rain fell in Arizona, New Mexico, southern Utah, eastern Nebraska, the Dakotas, the middle Mississippi valley, and upper Michigan. The temperatures are generally slightly above normal in the eastern states and about normal in the Rocky mountain and Pacific states.

Indications are for fair weather in this district tonight and tomorrow except in southeastern Idaho where showers are probable.
