WEATHER REPORT

A new disturbance made its appearance yesterday afternoon over Vancouver Island. It caused high winds and rain in northwestern Oregon and western Washington. A maximum wind velocity of 76 miles southeast occurred yesterday afternoon at North Head and a maximum velocity of 52 miles southwest occurred last night at Tatoosh Island. A storm of decided character is central over the Texas panhandle, and the New England disturbance has nearly disappeared off that coast. A high pressure area is central over central California and another high pressure area extends fro Lake region southwestward to the south Atlantic coast. Heavy rain has fallen in northern Texas, Oklahoma and southern Kansas. It is much warmer along the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains and correspondingly cooler in New England and extreme southern California.

The indications are for occasional rain tonight and Friday in western Oregon and western Washington, with fair weather in the eastern portions of these states and in Idaho.
