SOCIETY

celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary with a novel tin wedding at Ringler's hall, Tuesday evening. The entire affair was carried out in an artistic and unique manner. The hall was tastefully decorated with huge banks of Scotch broom and sprays of field daisies and Japanese lanterns interspersed with tinware of all shapes and sizes.

From ceiling, balcony and doorway hung tins, large and small, flat and round, making a scene of resplendent variety. The table service, punch bowls, and cups, guest book and prizes were all of tin. Over 200 guests offered them congratulations, many of whom had been present at the wedding ceremony, 10 years previous. The bride wore her wedding dress of white lace over white silk. Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Ringler, were Mrs. Martin, Mrs. A. E. Jones and sister, Miss Helen Jones, and Mrs. Charles Ringler. In the dining room Mesdames H. W. Coe and Mrs. Oscar Wells, in white lace, and Mrs. W. Y. Masters and Mrs. Gwilliyn Jones, in pink, presided over the table, assisted by the Misses Lamberson, Collier, Dyott, Berry, Masters and Knapp. In a bower of yellow and white, Mrs. Fred Hiram Strong and Mrs. Harold Rice served punch, assisted by the Misses Cleland, Mikle, Howard, Johnstone, Fry and Himes. The auction game of celebrities caused much merriment and Joe O'Connor carried off the honors. During the evening Stuart McGuire sang and Mrs. Walter W. Bruce gave two readings.

Mrs. Robert James of 287 Market street entertained a party of friends Saturday evening a week ago, celebrating the birthday of Mr. James with cards and dancing. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Caffee, Mr. and Mrs. French, Mr. and Mrs. Siebels, Miss Willa Miller, Miss Letta Powell, George Siebels, Theo. Siebels, Albert Eggerts.

WEDDINGS

Last Tuesday evening at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Richmond, 145 East Thirty-third street, some 60 guests assembled to witness the marriage of Miss Frances E. Richmond to Rodney A. Hurlburt, both popular young people of the east side. The rooms of the family residence were tastefully decorated with Oregon grape and roses. Red roses in the reception hall, white in the parlors, and pink in the dining-room, formed a pleasing color scheme. Miss Alice Dougherty preceded the ceremony with two beautiful solos, "I Love You Truly," and "Thou Art So Like a Flower," accompanied by Miss Olivine Fies. Then promptly at 8:30 to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, the bridal party descended the stairs and approached an improvised altar in the back parlor.

The bride, in an empire gown of white messaline silk, entered with her father and carried a bouquet of Bride roses. Miss Marguerite Geisler, dressed in white and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations, acted as maid of honor and the groom was attended by his brother, Raymond F. Hurlburt, as best man, and William J. Richmond, brother of the bride, and Marshal Case as ushers. The bridal party stood beneath two floral hearts of white roses entwined with tendrils of evergreen. Rev. Henry Russell Talbot, rector of St. David's parish, read the service.

After the ceremony and congratulations the guests repaired to the dining room where dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. A. J. Ness and Mrs. R. A. Phelps, Miss Marjorie Hurlburt, Lois Richmond and Marion Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt have gone on their wedding trip to the sound country, to visit the Seattle fair, Victoria, Vancouver and other points of interest.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Hurlburt, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Richmond, Mrs. Candice Files, Mr. and Mrs. John Hurlburt, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hurlburt, Mr. and Mrs. George Hurlburt, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Richmond and children, Lyle, Nell and Jene, Mrs. Nell Pfeiffer, Mr. and Mrs. Waldemar Seton, F. A. Schoppe, Miss Lulu Schoppe, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. P. Geisler, Miss Margaret Ostrander, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Singletary, Raymond Singletary, Mrs. Mary Winn, Mr. and Mrs. John W. McGregor, Miss Sadie McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGill, Miss Elsie Lewis, Mrs. Fred Drake, Mrs. Mary A. Corner, Mrs. Viola Sellwood, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Grout, Miss Myrtle Davis, Miss Myrtle Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Carpenter, Mrs. Lizzie Woodward, Holman G. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Vogan, Mrs. E. E. Decker, sister of J. H. Richmond, Girard, Kan.; Mrs. C. J. Richmond and daughter, Colorado Springs, and Isaac Hughes, Ridgefield, Wash.

A pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's parent, I. M. Maxfield, Woodburn, Sunday afternoon, when Miss Molly Maxfield and C. C. Geer were united in marriage. Rev. Mr. Moschel of the First Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony.

"When Song Is Sweet" was sung by Miss Agnes Lindahl. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Mabel Kennedy. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Merle Jones and A. A. Geer. The bride is the only daughter of L. M. Maxfield, and one of Woodburn's most popular and talented young women. She is well known in both church and music circles. The groom is the son of the late L. B. Geer, and nephew of ex-Governor Geer. The wedding was very quiet, only a few relatives and friends attending, on account of the recent death of the groom's father. The out of town guests were: Mrs. L. B. Geer, Miss Musa Geer, of New York, and A. A. Geer, mother, sister and brother of the groom; Dr. H. B. Dabney and Mrs. Dabney, sister of the groom; Miss Merle Jones, Mrs. Dora McCutcheon and Mrs. M. H. Van Gross, all of Portland. The bride and groom are in Portland for the week, the guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Dabney, 713 Kearney street.

A wedding of interest to Washington county people was celebrated Wednesday noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harrington at Centerville, when their daughter, Bessie T., became the bride of Lester C. Ireland, Rev. Mr. Welch officiating.

The parlors were beautifully decorated with roses and baby breath. Mrs. George G. Paterson, niece of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," and to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Jessie Donolson of Hillsboro, the bridal party took their places beneath an arch of snowballs, where the ceremony was performed.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white chiffon and carried a bouquet of Bride roses. She was attended by her twin sister, Miss Jessie Harrington, who wore white silk mull over pink silk, and carried pink roses. R. Walker was best man.

Mrs. Ireland is a young woman of charming personality, and has been prominent in the social life of Centerville. Mr. Ireland is a farmer of Greenville, where, after a trip to Seaside, they will make their home.

There was a pretty family wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Merrill, 1142 East Yamhill street on Wednesday evening, when Miss Beatrice Iona Merrill was married to Howard Clayton Getz, the Rev. Edward M. Sharp, D. D., officiating. About 60 guests were present. They will be at home to their friends at 346½ Montgomery street after June 15.

Perry Baker Austin and Edith Byerl Graham were quietly married June 1 and left immediately after the ceremony for Astoria and Seaside, where they will remain for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Austin are both of pioneer families. Mr. Austin's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Baker, are numbered among the oldest living pioneers of the state.

ENGAGEMENTS

Miss Louise Piluso of Portland was married last week to John Scarpelli of Spokane at St. Michael's Italian church. A large company of friends attended the ceremony, which was celebrated by Rev. Father Vasta. Miss Ida Mazzel was the maid of honor and Frank Rizze attended the bridegroom. The bride is prominent in the Italian colony of Portland. Mr. Scarpelli is a prominent business man of Spokane, and an elaborate reception will be given them on their arrival there. They are enjoying a trip through Washington now, and will spend some time at the exposition before going to Spokane, where they will be at home at 22 Second avenue.

Miss Lillian Theodosia Conrad of Ithaca, N. Y., and Theodore A. Garrow of Portland will be married Wednesday at the bridegroom's home on Ainsworth avenue. Miss Conrad is a dentist in Ithaca, and met Mr. Garrow while he was attending Cornell university. He is also a graduate of Oregon Agricultural college. Miss Conrad left New York Friday, and is expected Wednesday, and they will be married immediately upon her arrival.

Even musicians require some education outside their immediate field of activity to make the most out of their work. Perhaps a little study of grammar and relative clauses would have been of some aid to the musician who responds as follows to an advertisement inserted by an Irish rector: "Seeing you have vacancy for an organist and music teacher, either lady or gentleman, and having been both for several years, I beg to offer my services."

William Wallace Graham will present his pupil, Ward Alden in recital in two or three weeks, and invitations will be issued next week. Mr. Alden, a young boy of 15 years, is exceptionally clever and talented in his line, and a concert given by him should offer some interesting work. He will be assisted by other artists.

An important engagement for the Manhattan Opera next season is Marie Delna, of the Paris grand opera, who will make her debut in New York in Bruneau's "L'Attaque du Moulin" next winter. The composer will conduct his work at its American premiere.

"Sylvia and the Star" is said to be the name of Richard Strauss' next opera. It is reported to be of comic nature and the story is laid in the eighteenth century.

Mrs. Rose Coursen-Reed will return this evening from a short visit to Marshfield, where she sang at the final concert of the season of the Chaminade club.

The Cause.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

War (between England and Germany) has been brought visibly nearer, and, indeed, rendered inevitable, the only doubt being its precise date.—English National Review.

Why are the nations arming and why
are they spreading hate?
Why are they building navies and why
do they watch and wait?
Is it because the people, the workers
who weave and spin,
The toilers at forge and anvil, the
hungry and pale and thin,
Are urged by a taste for battle and long
for the fearful clash,
Or is it because the greedy have hopes
of rewards in cash?

What does it mean to the German who
toils for a scanty crop,
And what does it mean to the Briton
who slaves in a smoky shop?
Do they long for a greater glory through
triumph on sea or land?
Are they urged by a ceaseless hatred
that only they understand?
Has each done wrong to the other, that
they sigh for the awful crash,
Or is it because their masters have
hopes of rewards in cash?

Why are the statesmen fretting, and
why do they plan to kill?
Why must the burdened people be burdened more sorely still?
Is it because the warriors, the men who
must die or slay,
Are weary of being peaceful and long
for the shameful fray?
Or is it because the greedy who rob and burden and smash
Contend for a larger profit and grapple
for blood-stained cash?

—Chicago Record-Herald.

The American Husband.

Anna A. Rogers, in the June Atlantic

The American masculine claim of absorption in his work does not in the least justify such a condition. Frenchmen support their wives and still find time to go shopping with them too! Englishmen do likewise, and find energy left to place their sons in school, energy to watch keenly the love affairs of their daughters, unhesitatingly bidding this or that man be gone; moral courage and physical vitality left after the day's work to be in fact as well as fancy "the head of the house." They have the wisdom to leave hours for play, for pure boyishness of living. And all this may be observed in the same middle class that with us turns the whole issue over to the wife, expecting of her all wisdom, though knowing her sheltered youth, and all vitality, to run unceasingly and unaided the whole machinery of the family. No wonder our women have "nerves!" No wonder they are becoming more and more restless (one of the first evidences of strain), more and more discontented as time passes. Masculine kindness to our women is sometimes so tangled up with selfishness that there need be no surprise that there is some confusion regarding them.

Not that our men want the money after which they are striving for themselves, for their pleasures. They do not. They are almost notoriously generous. Our rich men give, give, give, to their wives, their children, to colleges, to hospitals, to churches, until the whole world is amazed at their generosity.

The habit and fury of work, unreasoning, illogical, quite unrelated to any need, is a masculine disease in this country, and the whole social system has for years paid the inevitable penalty. Here and there a man tries to stop in time, but finds himself obsessed by work so that he can no longer think of anything else. He is as much a slave to it as is any opium-taker to his drug and drunkard to his potion. It is a grave danger, not only to the individual but to the whole American civilization.

Companionable People.

In every society we find that the people who are called companionable are those who have a knack of making light of their tribulations and vexations, and a habit of putting them out of sight; who do not entertain their acquaintances with the recital of a bad baking, a leaky pipe, the children's measles, the short comings of the servants; who know how to keep melancholy, if they have any, out of the conversation, whose nerves do not furnish them with material for a morning call, who are not always on the lookout for a draught or a change of weather, or a slight; who do not lament their poverty aloud, and make us feel responsible for it and uncomfortable amidst our plenty. The companionable never seek to make us dissatisfied with ourselves or our belongings; they talk about the things we like to hear, and are silent upon subjects on which we disagree; they do not differ from us for the sake of differing, and do not announce their opinions as if there were no appeal therefrom. They do not talk you blind, as the saying is, neither do they offend by their taciturnity; they do not have to be drawn out, like defective teeth, but develop their talent as generously and charmingly as the plant develops its blossoms, neither do they pump or catechise us about our affairs, but show a genuine interest in whatever we may choose to import of a personal nature, and although they never force their confidence upon us, they have none of that frosty reserve which never allows us a glimpse of their hearts.

Responsibilities of Great Men.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

President Taft feels certain he will have the tariff bill on his hands by June 20 and begin to envy Roosevelt, who has only a baby rhinoceros, a pair of cub lions, a buffalo, a python, Kermit and two magazine contracts on his.

One Comfort.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

One good thing about night sessions of the senate is that the people will not be called upon to pay the senators extra wages for working overtime.

Known as the kleptograph, a burglar alarm invented by an Italian ignites a flashlight and photographs an intruder who invades the room in which it is set.
