NIGHT CLASSES MAY BE INSTITUTE FEATURE

Extension of Work in South Portland Is Under Consideration.

Comprehensive plans for the extension of the work of the People's Institute in South Portland are being entertained by the directors of the organization and the scheme to open night classes, give entertainments and hold exhibits at the Josiah Failing school is simply the first step in fulfilling the plan, according to Miss Valentine Prichard, superintendent.

At a recent meeting of the school board, the petition of the People's Institute asking for the use of the school rooms and equipment during evenings was granted and acting under this authority the institute is looking forward to the establishment of gymnasium classes for the boys, folk dancing for the girls and in addition will hold exhibits in connection with subjects pertaining to health, home making, etc., and occasionally lectures will be given and entertainments also.

In this work the organization has the enthusiastic support of Miss Porter, principal of the Failing school, who is one of the prime movers in the scheme.

The work of the institute has made much progress in South Portland during the last few months. It has a branch located at First and Gibbs streets, where more than 100 girls and boys registered in the various lines of endeavor promoted by the institute. These include cooking, sewing, housekeeping and gymnasium. Recently the institute secured the services of Miss Mary Hellman, who, in addition to her duties as head of the branch, has taken up the work of visiting housekeeper. Under her tutelage many overworked mothers are being shown newer and easier ways of performing household duties, among other things.

In this field, as well as others, the institute makes it a practice to cooperate with similar organizations to the end that their efforts shall not overlap.

One thing that marks the institute as distinctive is the fact that it has always made it a practice not to purchase grounds and erect buildings, and at the present time owns no real estate save the building constructed for it on Burnside street by the Presbyterian church some years ago.

This policy is followed because the officers feel that they want to be able to keep their headquarters in the heart of the districts where their work is, and the rapidly shifting population makes it necessary to remain foot loose in all respects so as to be able to keep abreast with the changes as they come.

Collegiate Alumnae Association.

The Oregon Collegiate Alumnae association will meet Saturday afternoon at the Oregon Hotel at which time Miss Josephine Hammond, of the department of English in Reed college, will give the address. The subject will be, "The Spirit of Modern Woman," which she will illustrate with readings from her own book, "Every Woman's Road."

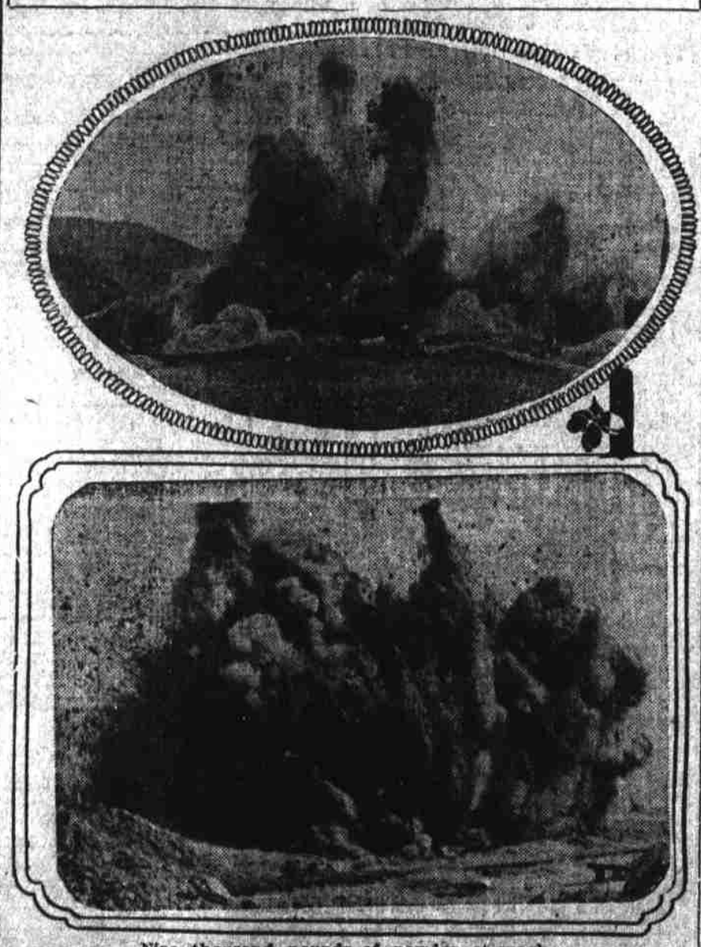
CELILO LIKE MINIATURE PANAMA



Nine thousand pounds of powder at work.

Cliffs, Wash., Oct. 25.—When 9000 pounds of giant powder was exploded in a cut at the Celilo canal October 22, 12,000 cubic yards of rock was broken up.

The photographs, brought to Cliffs by S. V. Winslow, show the effect of the blast. Operators for the motion picture company weeklies took pictures of the explosion, and worked within 400 feet of the blast in order to get the best results.
