Weather Conditions

The principal storm area this morning lies over the region of the Great lakes, attended by rains in the upper Mississippi valley and by warmer weather at many stations on the Great lakes. The barometric conditions in the northwest are nearly the same as those of yesterday, the pressure being higher British Columbia with an area of low pressure over California. These conditions have resulted in clear skies with high temperatures over the greater portion of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, and this condition is likely to persist and fair and continued warm weather is indicated for this vicinity tonight and Friday. The temperatures this morning are above normal everywhere except in Northern Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and parts of Colorado, Nevada and Kansas.

ALFRED H. THIESSEN, Aerologist.

34 SCALE MT. ADAMS SUNDAY AFTER HIKING FROM MT. ST. HELENS

Seattle Mountaineers Making Extensive Tour in Wilds of Cascade Mountains.

Thirty-four members of the Mountaineers, a Seattle organization similar to the Mazamas of Portland, reached the summit of Mount Adams last Saturday. They were members of a party of 59 who are participating in the three weeks' hiking trip which included ascents of Mount St. Helens and Mount Adams.

Long Distance Hike Taken

The Mountaineers started from Castle Rock, Sunday, August 5, visited the St. Helens region, climbing Friday, August 10, then proceeded eastward over the mountain trails to Mount Adams. Five days of last week were spent in a camp just east of that mountain, and the ascent was made Saturday. Monday night the party was at the Guler hotel, near Trout Lake, 15 miles southwest of Mount Adams, and they are now hiking through the Columbia National forest and will reach Collins, Wash., Saturday.

The outing will be concluded with a trip down the Columbia river by boat Sunday.

John A. Lee and Rodney L. Glisan of Portland joined the Mountaineers in their camp at Mount Adams last Thursday and made the ascent. L. A. Nelson, lumberman of the United States forest service, Portland district, who has led the Mountaineer parties for a number of years, was a member of the party and had charge of one of the climbing groups.

It was the camp fire of the Mountaineers Sunday night that Elijah Coalman, lookout on the summit of Mount Hood, spied and reported to the Portland office. Coalman thought a forest fire had started on Mount Adams, which is 55 miles from Mount Hood. A fire guard was sent from the ranger station at Guler, but he found that the Mountaineers had only kindled a big camp fire for their nightly entertainment of music and lectures. The fire had been carefully built and guarded, and constituted no menace to the timber. It is seldom that the fire guards are able to discern a blaze that far away, but the air was very clear in the mountains Sunday and Coalman therefore saw the fire that night.

Wilcox Back From Talk With Hoover

T. B. Wilcox, member of the government, millers' committee for the Pacific coast, and J. W. Ganong, returned from Washington this morning from a conference with Herbert Hoover. Mr. Wilcox declined to give out any interview, stating that he was under the seal of silence regarding anything that transpired at the conference.

Home-Reading Course For Citizen-Soldiers

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States army, to which this course is merely introductory.

Lesson No. 10

Recreation in Camp

WHILE your days in the cantonments will be spent chiefly in drilling and other forms of training, you will have a considerable amount of time left free for your own use. Under some conditions permission may be given at times to leave the cantonment for short periods. However, this is a matter to be regulated in each camp.

If you do go away from the camp on leave, you will continue to wear your uniform and will keep in mind always that you remain a soldier, subject to certain requirements that are not so definitely imposed on civilians. In meeting officers, whether in the camp or outside, you are expected always to treat them with proper courtesy and respect. You should remember, also, even though you are not directly under supervision, to keep up your soldierly neatness and bearing.

Helpful Legislation

Congress has provided that "it shall be unlawful to sell any intoxicating liquor, including beer, ale or wine, to any officer or member of the military forces while in uniform," an exception being made in a case of liquor required for medical purposes. Under authority of the same act it has also been ruled that alcoholic liquors shall not be sold within five miles of any military camp, an exception being made in case there is an incorporated city or town within that limit. It has further been provided that "the keeping or setting up of houses of ill fame, brothels or bawdy houses within five miles of any military camp * * * is prohibited." All these provisions and restrictions are in the interest of every right minded soldier. They go a long way toward insuring clean and healthful living conditions in the camps. They will help to make every soldier more efficient and better able to give a good account of himself.

The Post Exchange

One of the centers of army life in camp is the post exchange, at which articles for personal use, knickknacks, soft drinks, and so on, are sold. You will be safe in depending on the good quality and fair price of everything offered in the post exchange.

In general, the matter of providing for recreation and personal comforts in the cantonments has been intrusted by the secretary of war to a small body of men known as the commission on training camp activities. The commission includes an army officer and representatives of organizations that have had much experience in meeting the needs of men of the type who will go into the national army. It will have the cooperation of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Knights of Columbus. Other associations may also work with the commission. This task of attending to the social needs of the soldiers has been organized with almost as much care and thoroughness as the bigger task of making ready for the firing line.

Y. M. C. A. Huts

The Young Men's Christian Association is building a hut for the men in each brigade. In these huts moving picture or vaudeville shows will be given every night. Writing materials can be had for the asking. A piano will be at hand. The Knights of Columbus will have one large building in each camp, in which there will be facilities of the same kind.

Both these organizations will conduct religious services every Sunday. Men of all creeds will be welcome. The secretaries and other officers in charge will be glad at any time to talk over any personal problems and to help you in any way they can. They are picked because of their willingness and skill in rendering service. They will always make you welcome. Get in touch with either of these organizations as soon as you have opportunity after you reach camp. The chaplain attached to each regiment also looks after the spiritual and moral welfare of the men.

Good Reading Available

In every cantonment there will be a complete library building where you will be able to obtain books and magazines of all kinds. This is arranged with the help of the American Library association.

In each cantonment the commission on training camp activities is erecting a large auditorium. This is to be used partly as a theatre and partly for athletic instruction. Some of the best theatrical companies in the country will put on Broadway productions for your benefit. These performances will be free. A place will be provided for everyone.

Those men who like singing will have plenty of chances to enjoy "sing songs" on a big scale. The commission has secured the services of well known chorus leaders to take charge of camp singing.

A great deal of attention has been given to athletics. An expert will give boxing lessons to large groups of men. This instruction is voluntary but it will be well worth your while to attend.

In some of the camps where bathing beaches are not far away instruction will be given in swimming.

Athletics Encouraged

Team athletics, such as baseball, basketball, and football, will be developed under the guidance of expert coaches. One of the members of the commission will be in general charge of this line of activity in all the camps.

Of course all these facilities are for use in your spare time only. They are not to interfere with the steady process of training which alone can make you a real soldier. However, you will enjoy your hours of recreation all the more because they have been preceded by hours of hard work. The recreation as well as the work has its place in the general plan for turning out an efficient army of self-reliant citizen soldiers in the quickest possible time.

Tomorrow—Playing the Game.

Big Bingo Coming In His Private Car

There is probably only one elephant in history who ever boasted a private car. His name is "Big Bingo," and he is now touring America in a style never before equalled in jungleland circles. Bingo's special coach is built for comfort. There is a spacious, well-padded sleeping chamber, a dining room fitted with an overhead pantry filled with hay, bran and such delicacies as carrots, turnips, sweet potatoes and sugar cane. Next to the dining room is the gymnasium or promenade hall where the giant tourist takes his exercises while on tour. There is a shower bath in this portion of the car.

Bingo's train of attendants include a porter, who sweps and dusts the coach, a chef armed with pitchforks and large knives, who prepares his meals, and a valet who looks after his wardrobe. Bingo dotes on red plush and, since he is the biggest elephant yet to visit America, it takes as much material to make him a coat as it would to carpet a small sized auditorium. As for spangles, it would seem as though his tailor ordered them by the ton.

Bingo will be here next Monday with the Ringling Brothers' circus.

South Portland Fire Does Much Damage

Two stores and three houses were either totally or partially destroyed by a fire at First and Grant streets yesterday, the loss totaling more than $10,000 with little insurance.

The fire started in the rear of the grocery store owned by C. Pander, destroyed it and then spread to the plumbing shop of B. Dunnis around the corner. A house at 111 Grant street also suffered considerable loss, while wto houses a block up the street suffered roof damage when sparks started fires.

Pander's loss is $6000 with practically no insurance.

Sellwood Will Say Farewell on Friday

The Sellwood citizens, under the auspices of the Red Cross auxiliary, will give a farewell reception to Captain J. J. Sellwood and the ambulance unit, to the boys who are going and to the families of those who have gone, at the Sellwood community center, East Fifteenth street and Spokane avenue, Friday evening, from 8 to 10. There will be a program and light refreshments. Colonel May of the Third Oregon and Mayor Baker will be present.
