The pressure is moderately high in Manitoba, Minnesota and the eastern portion of the Dakotas, and over the Southwest. Precipitation has occurred on the Pacific coast from northern California to Alaska, extending eastward into Montana and is reported also from most of the northern states east of the Mississippi river. Heavy snow fell at Chicago, the water equivalent amounting to 1.20 inches. The temperature is generally higher in the Pacific and Rocky Mountain states, and lower in the Mississippi valley, Lake region and Southern Plains states. It is above normal from the north and Middle Pacific coast eastward to the Dakotas and in the Lower Lake region and North Atlantic states and below normal in the Mississippi valley and Upper Lake region, and throughout the South.

Conditions are still unsettled and rain will probably occur in Portland and its vicinity tonight and Tuesday.

QUESTIONNAIRE AID IN PREPARING INCOME REPORT

Statement Is Intended to Help Those Who Are in Doubt as to Procedure.

Questions Will Be Answered

Out of the mass of questions that daily are being put up to the collector of internal revenue office by those seeking information concerning the scope and application of the income and war revenue tax acts, the office has compiled a list of the most common questions covering those points which seem to cause the most uncertainty in the minds of the taxpayers. Those questions have been answered by the experts in the collector's office, and both questions and answers will be printed, from day to day, until the entire list has been completed—this for the information of those who come within the act.

The rights of taxpayers' agents to submit returns, the penalty for false returns, the duties of husband and wife in naming reports, and other interesting tangles of the income tax law are explained in the following questions and answers prepared by the office of the collector of Internal revenue and published for the information of the public:

Q.—6. Would a personal return rendered by an agent, for and in my behalf, be accepted?

Ans.—If by reason of illness, absence, or nonresidence, a taxpayer is unable personally to render his return, he may appoint an agent to act for him, and the return executed by the agent will be accepted if he makes affidavit that he has sufficient knowledge to make a complete and accurate return for his principal, and assumes responsibility for making the return and incurring the panalties provided for a delinquent, erroneous, false or fraudulent return.

Q.—7. What would happen should a taxpayer render a false or fraudulent return with intent to evade a proper payment of income tax?

Ans.—Under the provisions of Section 3176, Revised Statutes, he would become liable to an additional tax of 100 per cent, and under the provisions of Section 18 of the Act of September 8, 1916, as amended, to a fine of not to exceed $2000, or to one year's imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court and to the costs of prosecution.

Q.—8. May a husband and wife, living together, and each receiving an independent income, render separate returns?

Ans.—Yes. If the husband and wife each receive an independent income equal to or in excess of $1000, separate returns may be rendered. If, however, the income of either is less than $1000, but their combined income equals or exceeds $2000, a joint return should be readered.

Q.—9. If a husband and wife render a joint return, is the additional tax assessed against that return based upon the aggregate amount of income shown?

Ans.—No. The normal income tax will be assessed against the aggregate amount reported by the husband and wife whether point or separate returns are rendered, but the additional income taxes are only assessed against the separate income of each.

Q.—10. Is a married man entitled to a personal exemption of $2000 and $400 additional exemption on account of two dependent children, whose total net income does not exceed $2400 but does equal or exceed $2000, required to render a return?

Ans.—Yes. While he will not be required to pay an income tax, he is required to render a return if his net income equals or exceeds $2000.

Q.—11. If an individual engaged in business takes on inventory and closes his books on any day during a calendar year, can he render his personal income tax return on the basis of that fiscal year?

Ans.—No. A personal income tax return cannot be rendered for any other period than a full calendar year.

Q.—12. Where can I get the blank form upon which to render my return?

Ans.—From the collector of internal revenue for your district. The collector will endeavor to have such forms sent to you, but failing to receive one will not excuse you from making a return. If you do not receive one it is your duty to request the collector to furnish you with a copy.

Q.—13. What personal income taxes are imposed upon income received during the calendar year 1917?

Ans.—In computing income tax liability for the year 1917, the normal and additional income taxes imposed by the Act of September 8, 1916, and also the Act of October 3, 1917, are to be considered.

Under Section 1 (a) of the former act a normal income ta of 2 per cent is imposed upon so much of an individual's net income, exclusive of that derived from dividends on the capital stock, or from the net earnings of corporations, joint stock companies, etc., subject to like tax, as exceeds the amount of personal exemption to which he is entitled under Section 7; and so much of his total net income, including that derived from dividends and net earnings of corporations, as exceeds $20,000, is subpect to the additional income tax at the graduated rates prescribed by Section 1 (b).

Under Section 1 of the Act of October 3, 1917, so much of the individual's net income, exclusive of dividends, etc., as exceeds the amount of personal exemption allowed by Section 3, is subject to an additional normal tax of 2 per cent, and that portion of his total net income, including dividends, as exceeds $5000 is subject to the additional income tax, at the graduated rates, specified in Section 2, Act of October 3, 1917.

FRATERNAL NOTES

The four different local lodges of the Ancient Order of United Workmen in Portland have united into one, and will hereafter be known as Industry lodge No. 8, A. O. U. W., and will meet in the K. of P. hall, Eleventh and Alder streets. The following are the lodges combined: Portland No. 3, Fidelity No. 4, Upchurch No. 126 and Industry No. 8. Because of Industry lodge having incorporated in order to hold some property it was deemed best to retain the title and name. The following officers have been elected and installed: Harry Stoughton, past master workman; C. J. Wheeler, master workman; E. R. Geisel, foreman; E. J. Klein, overseer; F. A. Brown, recorder; Mrs. Margaret Reeser, financier; J. R. Mann, treasurer; Dr. O. W. Elliott, guide; G. L. Larson, inside watchman; J. Kiernan, outside watchman; Mrs. Iona M. Shyrock, musician; Edwin Holman, A. W. Allen, H. L. Camp, trustees. The work of bringing the lodges under one fold has been accomplished by the effort of D. C. Herrin, grand master workman. It is expected that the lodge will be turned over to the young people and made a social order as well as a stable fraternal organization.

Mount Hood Tent of the Maccabees will install its officers Wednesday night at the joint installation with four other tents at K. of P. hall, Eleventh and Alder streets. Mount Hood tent holds the banner in the United States for the eighth class, its increase being over 50 in the last month, a large percentage for an organization of less than 600 members. It still holds the state banner for 1917 for increase of membership, but may have to yield it to King David tent, its lustry young brother of South Portland. The new service flag with 19 stars will be presented to Mount Hood tent on this occasion by Judge William N. Gatens.

* * *

Golden Rule and Ellison encampments, I. O. O. F., will install officers Tuesday night at First and Alder streets, and Wednesday night Samaritan and Orient lodges will install at the same place. A large attendance of members is expected.

* * *

The addition to the I. O. O. F. home in this city is now being given the finishing touches. Owing to irregularities in transportation and industrial uncertainties the completion has been somewhat delayed. The board of trustees will purchase in the next few days over $5000 worth of furniture for the different rooms. Most of this money has been subscribed by the different lodges throughout the state, both of I. O. O. F. and the Rebekahs. The board of trustees is presided over by Robert Andrews, associated with Mrs. Emma Galloway, Mrs. M. P. Tomlinson, Mrs. C. Howell and Mrs. Martha Woodburn.

The installation of officers jointly has been agreed upon by the members of Oregon Fir camp, Modern Woodmen of America, and Marguerite Camp, Royal Neighbors of America, and will be held at the East Side Business Men's club on Friday night, January 18. Members of both camps will participate, but Oregon Fir camp will be host to the ladies this year. The committee in charge of arrangements will be H. F. McGrath, C. C. Hood, John Galloway, F. Q. Hart and E. J. Baxter.

Chessman, ritualistic committee; J. O. Wilson, sick committee; Ted Lansing, publicity committee; H. L. Johnson, reinstatement committee; L. W. Oren, G. D. Miles, John Jessen, escort's assistants. A Riot in Clothing

The announcement of the Brownsville Woolen Mill store that a good lot of made-to-measure clothes were being sold at $28 struck the keynote of appreciation all over Portland. The management is of the opinion that if orders continue to increase at the same ratio it will be necessary to call a halt. The sole object in making the price was to extend orders sufficient to guarantee their tailors employment right on through to spring work. Portlanders know clothes when they see them, and when savings of from $5 to $10 were evident a deluge of buyers surged in. Reserve stocks of woolens are being brought forward to keep assortments of patterns complete. (Adv.)

Tailor Steals Kiss; Slacker Charge Filed

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 7.—(I. N. S.)—If Charles Thompson, a tailor, had not tried to kiss pretty Miss Dorothy Murphy when she called on him to see about a suit, he wouldn't be behind the bars today on a charge of being a slacker.

Miss Murphy had Thompson arrested. When he was being locked up he was asked about his registration card. He told the police he had been too busy to register. He was turned over to the federal authorities.

Allies Now Facing Their Great Crisis

Chicago, Jan. 7.—(I. N. S.)—Sir Frederick K. Smith, attorney general for Great Britain, declared Sunday night that the allies are face to face with their great crisis of the war and the United States must prove their savior within the next six months. Sir Frederick is in the United States on a confidential mission. England, he says, is as strong as ever and he sees much encouragement in the internal conditions found in Germany and among her allies. The close of the next six months, he said, will bring the end of the war in sight.

Soldier Girls Stay Too Long in London

London, Jan. 7.—(U. P.)—Norah Halligan and Ethel Davis, enlisted in the women's auxiliary corps, have decided that war is all an American general said it was.

They overstayed their leave in London, and upon their return were handed over by their superior officer, also a woman, to the civil police, who sentenced them to two days in jail and $5 fine.

Both girls were typists at Aldershot headquarters.

Grief Hastens Death

Chicaga, Jan. 7.—(I. N. S.)—Grief over the death of his brother two weeks ago today is believed to have hastened the death of August Florsheim, pioneer shoe merchant. Florsheim was 79 and his brother Simon, who died before him, was 80.

LOCAL SOAP MAKERS WILL LAY PLANS FOR FATS CONSERVATION

Announcement of Program Expected to Follow Meeting With State Food Head.

Soap manufacturers of Portland are scheduled to hold a conference with Food Administrator W. B. Ayer this afternoon, to adopt a program for the conservation and marketing of fats.

Following the announcement by Administrator Ayer that his office had determined to work for the conservation of the soap fats he has received many inquiries from interested parties.

"People have already begun to save their waste fats," said Mr. Ayer, "and I am sure there will be great interest taken in this conservation movement, which will convert these waste fats into soap and yield, as a byproduct, substantial quantities of glycerine, which is much used in the manufacture of munitions. The soap manufacturers are keenly interested, and two of them, the Mount Hood Soap company, 270 Glisan street, and the Luckel, King & Cake Soap company, 642 Hood street, have already offered to buy all soap fats that are brought to them.

"At Monday afternoon's meeting I expect all soap manufacturers of the city to be present and, following the meeting, a further announcement will be made in regard to a plan we are working out for the systematic conservation and marketing of all the waste fats in the city. The monetary saving may not be a great inducement in itself, but the conservation spirit is now so splendidly developed that even if very little money, or none at all, should result from this saving of soap fats, I am sure the patriotic phase of the matter will be sufficient inducement to enlist this small service by the loyal housewife, which will be very valuable in the aggregate."

SERMON TOPICS

Dr. C. E. Cline and those attending services in the First Methodist Episcopal church were surprised Sunday night when it was learned that a negro character praised by Dr. Cline was in the audience.

Dr. Joshua Stansfield, pastor of the church, was in charge of the services which had been arranged for the unveiling of a service flag bearing 50 stars, each representing a church member now in the service, and had called upon Dr. Cline.

Dr. Cline told of a negro slave who was brought to Oregon and later freed. He paid high tribute to the man's character. Concluding his address, Dr. Cline said:

"That man is with us tonight. I see him among those in the gallery. Morgan, stand up!"

The former slave stood up and applause greeted him. Several patriotic songs were sung by the male quartet.

* * *

Dr. John H. Boyd, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Sunday night declared that America is now dedicated to battle for the highest ideals of human conception.

"Very little is said concerning the causes of the war," he declared. "The highest and most impressive discussions of the war rise above this ground into the realm of idealism, and we hear about the setting of mankind free, of a universal and abiding peace that is to come after the war.

"We are in the presence of a unique phenomenon, the like of which history has never seen—that a great nation should undertake a stupendous conflict for the sake of an ideal. Every war has been decided by a change in the map of the world. American idealism says that this war shall end without a change in the world's map. We have concluded that this war shall be the end of all wars, and that in some way an enduring and unbreakable peace shall be assured to the world."

* * *

"Portland: Past, Present and Future," was the interesting subject of Rev. W. G. Eliot Jr. Sunday morning in the Church of Our Father (Unitarian). He outlined Portland's early history, told of the location of its first buildings, their passing and the passing of those who built them.

"Portland has a soul," said Dr. Eliot. "We have had a part in the making of it all whether we be old-timers or newcomers with new inspirations. Let us maintain the high ideals that will be helpful in making Portland a great and a strong city, a city worthy of the spirit in which it was founded."

* * *

Patriotic services marked the unveiling of a service flag in the Westminster Presbyterian church Sunday morning. The flag bears 52 stars, each representing a member of the congregation now in the federal service. Mrs. Frank W. Paris presented the flag to the church. Dom J. Zan sang "My Own United States."

* * *

Dr. J. Attwood Stansfield, Episcopal priest of New York, who is conducting missions in St. Stephens Pro-cathedral and St. Davids Episcopal church, delivered his first Sunday address in St. Stephens. His subject was "The Question of the Centuries." Meetings are to be held daily except Saturday. He will be at St. Stephens for 10 days, will then go to St. Davids and later to Astoria.
