DISCHARGE PLEAS FLOOD CONGRESS

Appeals, However, Are Unavailing Except When Made Through Regular Channels.

Washington, Dec. 2.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL)—Senators and congressmen are beginning to receive a flood of appeals from parents of men in the service, and some from the men themselves, for assistance in procuring discharges from the army or navy.

These appeals, it appears, do not count. The war and navy departments are not considering applications for discharge except through the regular channels, that is, through the commanding officers. Complete instructions have been sent to all camps, cantonments and stations, so that the men may be informed how to proceed.

Discharges are to be granted first where there is serious illness at home, and to those who make a showing that they are needed in some occupation or occupation. Discharges are not to be granted in wholesale to any certain occupation.

Men making application for discharge are expected to support their applications by a statement of facts which will show the relative urgency of their cases. Men who are regarded by their commanding officers as particularly needed may be retained, however, until the army is still further reduced.

Members of congress say it is useless to direct appeals to them in behalf of individual soldiers and sailors. All they can do is to advise that applications for discharge be made in accordance with the forms prescribed. Demobilization is believed to be proceeding about as rapidly as could be expected.

Food Regulations Are Still in Force

Food regulations still in effect must be observed, and anyone violating them is subject to prosecution, is the warning issued by W. K. Newell, assistant food administrator for Oregon. Too much relaxation has resulted from the modification of food rules, according to Mr. Newell. While distribution of sugar by the card and certificate system has been abandoned, the individual allowance is four pounds per month, and the purchase of more than this amount subjects the individual to the charge of hoarding.

Belgian Baby Bottles Stolen

Evidently the work of drug fiends, two Belgian baby milk bottles were stolen Saturday night from business places in the north end, according to reports made to the police Sunday. A bottle, partially filled with coin was taken from a soft drink establishment at 41 North Sixth street, and another from the Lone Star restaurant, 227 Burnside street.
