MILITARY PARADE IS VIEWED BY THOUSANDS

religion, thoughts and mode of life, fundamental law, and the same divine passion for liberty. From the English, the Welsh, the Scotch and the Irish we have drawn that which makes America great."

Pays Tribute to Heroes

But as he uttered the words which vehicle the affection and appreciation all America has for Great Britain, Dr. Boyd did not fail to remember the glorious deeds of those other allies, of France and Italy and of Belgium," whose king lost all save honor." With them all in mind and heart he reverently added tribute to the heroic men of all the allied nations, whether they live or have died, whose valor and sacrifice have compelled 22 tyrannous kings of Europe to lay aside their crowns and, now, have brought the dawning of world peace. In response to Dr. Boyd's eloquent offering, A. G. Findlay spoke for Great Britain, echoing in phrase and in spirit the confidence expressed by Lord Balfour's message that the sentiment of brotherhood engendered by their unified smitting of oppression will long endure to bless both nations.

The long military parade came to a pause within the Hippodrome. The Multnomah Guard filled a great block of seats at the right, the Spruce Production division and the Benson Polytechnic training school men an equal space on the left, while the men of the Oregon State Guard occupied the center of the building. Ranged about the big room, and occupying the tiers of elevated seats were the massed civilians who had crowded in to do honor to Great Britain. Only a few of the general committee took places on the platform with the chairman and the speakers; others occupied boxes, and many of the officers sat with their men.

Crowds of patriotic men and women thronged the route taken by the procession through the business district, cheering and singing patriotic songs to the music of the bands. Following the soldiery were scores of automobiles loaded with singing, cheering, flag waving Americans and sons and daughters of Britain.

General Disque Heads Parade

Headed by General Brice P. Disque, commander of the spruce production division of the United States signal service, and his staff, the parade started from West Park and Jefferson streets at 7:30 and marched to the Ice Hippodrome at Twenty-first and Marshall. The first unit of the order of column was the First provisional regiment, spruce production division, commanded by Colonel Charles Van Way. Following were units of the United States naval militia and naval reserves, commanded by Lieutenant George F. Gandy; the Oregon State Guard, commanded by Colonel W. C. North, and the Multnomah Guard, commanded by Colonel Lewis P. Campbell.

Three bands furnished music.

Committee in Charge

Much of the credit for the excellent community singing was due to the vocal leadership of the First Provisional Regiment quartet, composed of Sergeants Brown and Williams and Buglers Cower and Drake.

The general committee on arrangements consists of: A. L. Mills, chairman; Governor Withycombe, Mayor Baker, Adjutant General Charles F. Beebe, Captain R. C. Dolbin, Everett Ames, Ben Selling, Judge Charles H. Carey, L. Allen Lewis, Fred L. Bourne, Robert F. Tucker, John C. Ainsworth, Dan J. Malarkey, Rodney L. Glisan, Brigadier General Brice P. Disque, Colonel Charles Van Way, Major Robert A. Roos, Lieutenant G. E. Gandy, Lieutenant E. K. Scott, Milton A. Miller, C. S. Jackson, H. L. Pittock, J. E. Wheeler, Fred Boalt, Otto Hartwig, H. L. Corbett and B. E. Haney.

First Aid Military Go

On account of delay in getting members of the First provisional regiment from Vancouver by street car the parade was delayed in starting and the program at the Ice Hippodrome did not begin until nine o'clock. It was a joyous and intensely enthusiastic crowd that filled the big auditorium to overflowing.

"God Save the King" was sung in chorus to the accompaniment of band music led by the soldiers' quartet, British and Americans alike joining in the song. "Keep the Home Fires Burning," with music by the First provisional regiment band, was sung by the soldiers' quartet, the congregation joining in the chorus. "Over There" followed, with music by the Multnomah Guard band and led by the soldiers quartet.

"Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" proved a prime favorite with the big audience and everyone joined lustily in "The Star Spangled Baner" at the end of the program.

Dr. Boyd Pays Tribute

Rev. John H. Boyd paid a glowing tribute to the valor of the British and to all that their nation has stood for in war and in peace. He spoke feelingly of the ties that bind the United States and Great Britain together and of the great sacrifices made by England and her colonies in the war.

A. G. Findley, president of St. Andrews society, responded eloquently in behalf of Britain. He was most generous in his praise of America and the splendid part played by our army and navy in winning the conflict of humanity with barbarism.

LABOR SITUATION ON OREGON FARMS WELL CARED FOR

Farm Help Specialist Brewer Makes Annual Report on Year's Work and Shows Results.

LABOR BELIEVED PLENTIFUL

County Agents, School and Communities United In Making Campaign Successful.

That the farm labor situation in Oregon is well in hand and that at no time in the past season has there been a shortage of labor, is the first annual report of J. W. Brewer, farm help specialist, United States department of agriculture, and the Oregon Agricultural college cooperating.

It is the belief of Mr. Brewer that there is no prospect of any great shortage of help during the present winter. Some difficulty has been met in obtaining enough milkers at the dairy farms, and relief along this line is said to be slight. According to Mr. Brewer, some dairymen are installing milking machines, which are relieving the situation to a limited extent. It is stated that the dairy industry has suffered much on account of the labor problem. Mr. Brewer's report, in part, follows:

Organizations were perfected in every county of the state and the machinery was ready for the work by the last week in January. Through the cooperation of the extension department of the agricultural college and the state labor commissioner, O. P. Hoff, 50,000 special blanks were printed and these mailed to the counties during the last days of January.

In 22 counties the work was handled by the county agents, all of the counties that at that time maintained agents. Nine counties were handled by the public schools, two by special committees appointed to do the work, two by county courts and one by the county horticulturist. Jefferson county, with a volunteer committee of three men, secured nearly 75 per cent of all farms in the district; Linn county, with a committee appointed by the county council of defense, reported 46 per cent of all the farms, and Yamhill county, managed by the county court (the work done by the agricultural council) reported 48 per cent of all farms in the county.

According to the government census of 1910 there were 45,341 farms in the state, which included deeded timber lands, deeded homesteads and unimproved and non-producing farms. The result of the survey was a report, from 21,667 farms or about 60 per cent of the producing farms of the state, a total acreage reported of 5,631,254 acres, of which 2,270,965 acres were under cultivation, or about one-half of the cultivated area of the state.

only hope for the resurrection of Prussianism. Let us be certain to shatter that hope."

The extradition of the ex-kaiser, he said, was "a matter for the wisest counsel."

He said he agreed with Premier Lloyd George's demand for reparation.

It is noteworthy that Premier Lloyd George, neither in his long declaration of political principles two days ago, nor in his address at Leeds today, made any reference to the league of nations project, an omission which is causing considerable political speculation here.

Referring to the significance of the visit of President Wilson to Europe, Mr. Asquith said that for permanent peace purposes the world was now one.

Basis of Crimes Is Given

"The best security against the dangers which beset the coming conference," he continued, "is the maintenance in its fullest and freest sense of the real understanding between ourselves and the United States. It should be clearly understood that a league of nations does not mean the cessation of industrial and mercantile rivalry."

With regard to the ex-kaiser's fate the former premier said:

"There is a broad distinction between errors, even lying and wicked errors of policy, and deliberate and systematic reaction of rules which rest for their sanction not only in international usage but on the instincts and dictates of humanity."

Germany's chief crimes coming under this head and upon which, he advocated the "late heads" of Germany should be tried, were:

The devastation of Belgium.

The sinking of passenger ships.

The almost incredible brutality of the maltreatment of our prisoners of war.

"We ought to insist," said the ex-premier, "that justice be done and that not only the forms, but the spirit of justice—the meting out to the wrongdoer of his due, not less and not more—should be scrupulously observed."

Amsterdam, Dec. 7.—The German government has decided not to oppose the surrender by Holland of the ex-kaiser and the former crown prince if the allies demand it preliminary to bringing them to trial. Announcement to this effect was made in Berlin today.

As was pointed out in these dispatches two days ago the German moderates do not wish to burden themselves with the presence in Germany of the former emperor and his eldest son because it would inevitably lead to a violent struggle between those elements still loyal to the Hohenzollerns and those who clamor for their punishment.

That there are influential circles still in Germany opposing their trial by foreigners is shown by a statement made by the Lokal Anzeiger, to the effect that "Holland has no right to extradite the former kaiser."

The German soviets are eager to have William and his son brought back to Germany for trial, hoping the disclosures they anticipate from the proceedings will add fuel to their propaganda for war on the former ruling classes and the whole bourgeoise.

Meantime The Netherlands government expects a demand for the surrender of William and his son to reach it any moment and is said to be prepared to accede to it. Holland is said to stipulate one condition, namely, that the royal refugees be interned for life on some Dutch island or colony, in the Dutch East Indies or the West Indies, under the guard of Dutch warships.

This reported reservation has given rise to the rumor that Queen Wilhelmina pledged her word a week ago to see to it that no harm would come to the ex-kaiser and his family.

Trial at Versailles Possible

London, Dec. 7. — "Reynolds Newspaper" claims it has information that the trial of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm will be held at Versailles.

Members of Bar Pay Tribute to Memory Of Lionel R. Webster

Tribute was paid the memory of the late Judge Lionel H. Webster by members of the Multnomah county bar at a memorial service held Saturday in the courtroom of Presiding Judge Tucker of the circuit court. Resolutions read by Judge C. H. Carey and unanimously adopted said of Judge Webster that "as a citizen, he was loyal and patriotic, and as a friend, considerate and constant; he was undemonstrative and modest, but no one was more zealous in guarding the rights of those who were near to him. He was a man who made and held deep and abiding friendships, and he was always ready to laud the good qualities of his friends."

Eulogies were delivered by Associate Justice Benson, W. D. Fenton, Wallace McCamant, Circuit Judge Tucker, T. J. Cleeton, B. B. Beekman, A. C. Emmons, W. Lair Thompson, Jerry Bronaugh and Charles J. Schnabel.

Judges of the circuit court sat en banc during the memorial services.

PREMIER TELLS OF AID SENT BY WILSON

send the 120,000 men.'

"Then I invited Sir Joseph McKay, the shipping controller, to Downing street and said to him:

"'Send every ship you can.'

"They were all engaged in essential trades, because we were cut down right to the bone. There was nothing that was not essential. We said:

"'This is the time for taking risks.'

"We ran risks with our foods. We ran risks with our essential raw materials. We said:

"'The thing to do is to get these men across at all hazards.'

"America sent 1,900,000 men across and out of that number 1,100,000 were carried by the British mercantile marine.

"The good old ships of Britain, the ships which have saved the liberty of the world many times—saved it in the days of Queen Elizabeth, saved it in the days of Louis XIV, saved it in the days of Napoleon—saved it in the days of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

British Now Beyond Rhine

"It is a change," continued the premier, "a change from December, 1916, a change from the days when at the end of the year we made our balance sheet and found Germany had acquired more allied territory than she had had before her new ally had fallen, and that another ally was tottering to fall, and that Germany was advancing ruthlessly along from conquest to conquest.

"That was the story up to the end of December, 1916. What is the story today?

"Every German submarine is in a British port today. The best battleships and cruisers and torpedo boats of Germany are now with lowered flags under the surveillance of British seamen in British harbors, and the British army, which has fought so gallantly—which has fought with a heroism which the world has never matched, not as in the wars of old, when you had a great battle and then another great battle three months afterwards, and in between marches and perhaps sieges—but with a constant strain upon the nerves, upon the health, upon endurance, upon the courage, upon the fearlessness of the hearts of men—for four years the British army went through it and to victory. That army, after months of fighting and of suffering, that army is today, at this hour, marching across the Rhine into Germany, into one of the most famous cities of Germany."
