HEARST'S ANSWER SENT IN LETTER TO ARTHUR BRISBANE

Publisher Replies to Action of Sub-Committee of Senate in Making Instructions Public.

MAKES NO DEFENSE, HE SAYS

Neither Pro-German Nor Pro-English Before United States Entered War, Opposed Both.

New York, Dec. 13.—(I. N. S.)—William Randolph Hearst today replied to the action of a senate sub-committee in making public some of his instructions to his editors, in the following letter, dated December 12, 1918, to Arthur Brisbane, published in the New York Journal:

"You have noticed, of course, that some telegrams of mine have been published by a United States senate committee.

"I have no objection to my telegrams of instructions to editors being printed; in fact, I am glad to have them printed.

"There is never a telegram of instruction to any of my newspapers or to any editor that cannot be given the fullest publicity.

"They are all based on a single and sincere desire to conduct my newspapers in the interest of the American people.

"I do not feel under obligation to consider the interest of any other people, especially when these interests seem to me to conflict with the interests of the American people.

Says History Backs Stand

"There is a large Tory element in this country which seems to think now as it thought in the days of the Revolutionary war—that the only way to be pro-American is to be pro-English.

"I do not think so, and, in fact, the American histories that I have read in my school and college courses and since that time clearly demonstrate that the best way to be pro-American is sometimes to be anti-English.

"This is notably the case during the revolutionary war, during the war of 1812, and during the Civil war.

"If our American histories are wrong in giving the impression that the selfish interests of England have at certain crises in our history very strongly conflicted with the best interests of the United States, then those American histories should be burned and English histories substituted in their place in the schools of our country.

Opposed Policies of Both

"The English history teaches that England is always right and the Englishman has pride and patriotism enough to believe it. I admire that quality in the Englishman. I am sorry that some of our American citizens have not a similar loyalty to and a similar confidence in their own country."

Mr. Hearst then called attention to the fact that at the beginning of the European conflict, and before the entrance of the United States into the war, he was neither pro-German nor pro-English, but was sometimes opposed to the policies of both these countries, adhering to "my policy of America first and only and all the time."

Prediction Is Recalled

Commenting on his opposition to the espionage law, Mr. Hearst recalls his prediction that the passage of the law would be disastrous to the Democratic party.

"That prophecy is coming true," he added. The only places where the Democratic party increased its representation in the late congressional elections, Mr. Hearst pointed out, were where the Hearst papers were printed.

Continuing, the letter read:

"Everywhere that the Hearst papers were published, Democracy triumphed on truly Democratic lines.

"What proper criticism, therefore, is there for the Democracy or the Americanism of the Hearst papers?

Does Not Make Any Defense

"They have been vindicated by the people, to whom they appeal, and to whose voice the Democratic representatives in congress should listen with self-interested attention.

"It is not for me nor for the Hearst papers to make any defense, and I do not make any.

"It is for the Democratic majority in congress to make a defense. It has been indicted. It has been repudiated. Its policies have been impugned and rejected.

"And if the Democratic party is not distinctly and definitely Democratic, it will have no cause for continuance and will go forever out of existence, as the Federalist party did after the passage by that party of its oppressive and restrictive un-American legislation 118 years ago."

MATERIAL IS BEING POURED INTO FRAME OF CONCRETE BOAT

Process of Filling Steel-Ribbed Frames at Vancouver Shipyard Proceeds Rapidly.

Vancouver, Wash., Dec. 13.—Work on the concrete water and cargo carriers being constructed by the Great Northern Concrete Shipbuilding company of this city is progressing rapidly under the management of J. W. Sadler of Portland, chief engineer and assistant manager of the company.

Commencing last Thursday and continuing for 32 hours concrete was poured continuously into the steel ribbed frames of the first boat, completing the sides of the boat nearly to the deck line. Twelve hours more pouring which will commence either Saturday or Monday will complete the bulkheads, sides, bottom deck and all concrete work which is poured as a monolith.

Following the pouring of the concrete the boat is allowed to stand for 30 days or longer, depending on climatic conditions, before launching. The first boat will be launched about January 15, it is planned, and the other two, which are also rapidly nearing completion, will be launched soon after. There are three boats on the ways and it is planned to have these out of the way and the remaining two, which will complete this contract, built and launched before the June floods.

These supply boats are 100 feet in length with a 25 foot beam and a 12½-foot hold. They are being constructed for the quartermaster department of the United States army of which department General Goethals is the head. They are designed for 490 tons displacement, and are being built under cover of canvass which protects the concrete and workers from the elements. The boats are built on an even keel and will be launched sideways.
