Graduates Are to Gather for Reunion

By Helen R. Hutchison

CELEBRATING the fifth anniversary of their graduation, members of the June, 1915, class of Washington High school will gather for a reunion next Friday night in the gymnasium of the high school, in fulfillment of a plan laid at their graduation banquet at the Benson hotel. In the last five years members of the class have soldiered under many skies and sailed the seven seas. Many will meet their classmates for the first time since the war broke out. H. H. Herdman, for 12 years principal of the east side school, will be a guest at the reunion.

The entertainment committee includes Mrs. Harriet Howard, Mrs. Mary White, Miss Ethel Clark, Miss Marjorie Stearns, Stanley Northrup, Linton L. Davies and William Detering.

Miss Marian H. Allhands left Portland Monday for Denver, Colo., where she will become the bride of Leslie H. Sharp today. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ida M. Allhands of 989 East Eleventh street north. Mr. Sharp is the oldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward M. Sharp of Red Bluff, Cal. Dr. Sharp was formerly pastor of Mount Tabor Presbyterian church. He was graduated from Stanford university, where he made the acquaintance of Miss Allhands. Since his return from overseas he has been in service with the United States bureau of mines at the University of Colorado. Mr. and Mrs. Sharp will spend their honeymoon on a tour of inspection among the mines of that state, and upon their return will make their home in Boulder, Colo. Among out-of-town guests at the wedding was Mrs. Orilla E. Myers of Danville, Ill., aunt of the bride, who is on her way to Portland to spend the summer months.

Miss Helen A. Moylan, daughter of Mrs. J. C. Stille, 711 Glisan street, became the bride of Henry C. Lee of Dunn, N. C., in Los Angeles Monday evening. The service was read aboard the Shriners' special train by the Rev. Thomas H. Walker. The bridegroom is a member of the band of Oasis temple. The marriage followed a romance begun in 1918, when Mr. Lee met Miss Moylan at Fort Caswell, N. C., where she was in service as a nurse.

One of the charming June weddings was that of Miss Margaret Walton, Reed college graduate of 1916, to Godfrey C. Blohm, assistant cashier at the Ladd & Tilton bank. The marriage was solemnized Saturday evening at the Mount Tabor Presbyterian church, the Rev. Ward W. MacHenry officiating. The bride wore a lovely gown of white satin and lace, with a crown of orange blossoms. The church was decorated with white roses, ferns and palms. Miss Ruth B. Compton, librarian at Reed college, was the maid of honor, and E. C. Sammons was best man. Miss Abby Whiteside played the wedding march, and Mrs. Myers sang the bridal hymn. Attending the bride were Misses Maurine Labor, Frances Jones, Mildred Steinmetz, Ethel Mitchell, Gladys Dobson, Esther Kelly, Laura Kelly, Elsa Gill and Emma Du Brille and Mrs. A. J. McCann. Ushers were Fred Newill, Dean Webster, Robert Osborn, A. J. McCann, Edward Ordeman and C. E. Hawks. A reception was held at the bride's home, 1547 East Stark street, following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Blohm left Sunday for a honeymoon in the mountains of Southern Oregon. They will make their home in Portland.

The Dalles — Mrs. Katherine Morris, affectionately known as "Grandma" Morris, was guest of honor at a delightful dinner Sunday, given by Mr. and Mrs. George Woodruff on the occasion of the seventy-ninth birthday anniversary of Mrs. Morris, who is one of Oregon's pioneers. She crossed the plains with her father and mother in 1852, coming to The Dalles in the early sixties. Forty guests were present at the birthday dinner, and "Grandma" Morris was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and the good wishes of the whole community.

Dr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Rockey and Mrs. Charles T. Donworth (Evelyn Carey) of Seattle will be hosts for a dancing party Friday evening at the home of Judge and Mrs. Charles H. Carey at Riverdale.

MARIE DRESSLER, whose ton (more or less) of mirth and merriment finds hilarious expression in "Tillie's Punctured Romance," which is playing this week at the Star. The film is a new issue of an old success in which Miss Dressler, Charlie Chaplin and Mabel Normand won big success.

THE Stroller notices

THAT last night was a wonderful night.

That were we not already in love we'd fall in head over heels.

That we hope we never get too old to succumb to the influence of a June moon, a hammock and a girl.

That bachelors should be taxed.

That the money could be used for the support of homes for orphans.

That some motorists disregard all rules of the road out on the highway.

That they are especially scornful of the painted guide posts at the curves.

That good luck is all that prevents more serious collisions and smash-ups.

That somebody's luck will change some day.

That they'll come back in a nice clean ambulance.

That the picnic season is on.

That a fellow doesn't mind a few ants, etc., on his sandwiches when he's eating outdoors.

That when they fall in the strawberry jam you never notice them.

That the horse meat market is still in business at the old stand.

That the sidewalks in Chinatown are lined with strange looking foodstuffs drying in the sun.

That some of them look palatable at that.

That we weren't sure but what palatable was spelled with another "a."

That we looked it up in the dictionary.

That Jerry is in disgrace.

That he killed a couple of a neighbor's young turkeys.

That we hung one of them around his neck to make him ashamed of himself.

That he doesn't seem to know what shame is.

That people who leave their window shades up should undress in the dark.

Remember, folks, some months ago, when the Oregon man went to our old home town and found down there in the old home newspaper a "Stroller" column? And he inquired about it and found that there is the closest blood relationship between the two "columns." And he promised to come in and see us some time when he came to Portland?

Well, he came all right; he and his charming little wife, though they left the "family" (she's 10 years old now) at home, and we had a pleasant visit.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Adams of Elgin, Or., where Mr. Adams is manager of Adams Brothers' box manufacturing plant.

As we could say if we were on the home-town paper, and we mean it, anyway, "come again, folks."

Boy Scouts Receive Prizes for Efficient Work in Cleanup

Substantial prizes of clothing and of cash equivalent have been awarded to 120 members of the Portland Council of the Boy Scouts of America in recognition of efficient service given in connection with the city-wide cleanup campaign conducted prior to the Shrine convention.

Meier & Frank contributed 36 suits of Boy Scout uniforms; Lipman, Wolfe & Co., 36 suits of unionalls; the Juvenile, 12 suits of unionalls; and Olds, Wortman & King, 36 trading stamp books valued at $1 each. The boys receiving these prizes were selected by the fire captains and by representatives of the business men's organizations. The boys gave their services with no thought of reward, the giving of the prizes being an entire surprise to them.

Society

This evening will be the occasion of the charity ball given at Vancouver post for which the Army and Navy league will be sponsor. The funds received by proceeds from this benefit affair will be used for philanthropic work among the needy families of the enlisted men of the United States army.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

An Adventure on Jerry's Landing

By Thornton W. Burgess

The very time you feel most safe,
And see no reason for alarm,
Is just the time for keeping guard
Against some unexpected harm.
Jerry Muskrat.

PETER RABBIT sat among the rushes on the shore of the Laughing Brook where it enters the Smiling Pool and watched Jerry Muskrat work. Jerry was building a little landing of rushes and mud. He had it almost finished. It was a little landing, just big enough for to sit on comfortably, and it was out out from the shore just enough for Jerry to sit on comfortably, an dit was out from the shore just enough for Jerry to be able to dive from it into water deep enough to cover him completely and enable him to reach still deeper water without showing himself.

Now, you know Peter Rabbit doesn't like work. The only work he does is cutting little paths through the dear Old Briar-patch, and he wouldn't cut these if he didn't have to in order to get about. No, Peter doesn't like work. He is too happy-go-lucky. He would rather be uncomfortable than do a little work to make himself comfortable, and there are many people like him. Queer how people can be like that, isnt it?

But Jerry Muskrat is just the opposite. Jerry likes to work because he likes to enjoy the things which result from work. Not that Jerry wants to work all the time. Oh my, no! No indeed! Jerry is as fond of playing and of visiting his friends as any one I know. But Jerry is too wise to waste time wishing for a thing he can get by working for it. He isn't lazy. There isn't a lazy bone in him.

So all the time he was gossiping there by his little landing he was working, while Peter Rabbit sat in idleness. Jerry would disappear under water. Presently he would pop up with a bit of sod or mud to add to that little landing, and while he put it where it was most needed he gossiped with Peter.

Now Jerry was doing two things at once—working and talking. Some folks can talk while they work and not let one thing interfere with the other. You see all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, the Smiling Pool and the Old Pasture are taught to do two things at once from the time they are big enough to learn at all. They are taught that whatever else they may be doing, working or playing, they must at all times keep watch for danger.

But to do three things at the same time is more than most folks can accomplish. It is so with Jerry. He could work and keep watch. He could work and gossip, but he couldn't work and gossip and keep watch all at the same time. So Jerry didn't keep watch. In the first place it didn't seem necessary. Not since he had begun the building of that little landing had Jerry seen the smallest sign of danger. He felt sure that Peter Rabbit was the only one who had found that landing, and Peter was quite harmless. The rushes grew tall behind it and on two sides of it so that it was well hidden.

So Jerry felt quite safe and quite forgot that often the time to watch out sharpest is when one feels safest. As for Peter Rabbit, he had nothing to do but talk, and so it was an easy matter for him to keep watch at the same time. He did it without really knowing that he was doing it. And it was just as well for Jerry Muskrat that he did.

Presently he would pop up with a bit of sod or mud to add to that little landing.

Peter was right in the middle of telling Jerry about Jimmy Skunk and Farmer Brown's boy when he caught sight of what seemed nothing more than a moving shadow just above the tops of the rushes. Peter didn't finish what he was saying. The second he saw that moving shadow he thumped the ground hard with his short hind feet and sprang headlong in where the rushes grew thickest.

Jerry Muskrat was sitting on his little landing. He didn't stop to ask what the trouble was. He didn't stop to look around. At the thump of Peter's feet Jerry dived with a splash into the water and as he did so two feet with great hooked claws reached down and just missed him. But for Peter Rabbit some one would have had a Muskrat dinner that night, and that some one was Hooty the Owl.
