BOTH FACTIONS IN FIRE CHIEF FIGHT ARE READY

Hearing Set for Thursday Morning; Neither Side Backs Down; Commissioner Asks Showdown.

Under the direction of attorneys both factions in the fight to oust John E. Young from his position as chief of the fire department are mustering their forces in anticipation of the hearing to be held by Commissioner Bigelow Thursday morning.

Both Wallace McCamant, attorney for Chief Young, and Milton R. Klepper, attorney for the complainants, made statements Saturday that the sensational repudiation made by C. C. Brown, who formally filed the charges and then withdrew them, would in no way affect the hearing. The identical charges filed by Brown were sworn to by A. L. Pullen, lieutenant of the fire bureau, attached to the fire marshal's office.

Klepper, who originally represented Brown, has been asked by Pullen to continue the case and after a conference Saturday afternoon decided to enlist the aid of other attorneys. Who they were, Klepper said, had not been definitely decided upon.

DETAILS ASKED

In the meantime, McCamant, Young's advisor, has asked Klepper for detailed information regarding the three charges considered to be most serious, the charge of being intoxicated in a restaurant; being under the influence of liquor in the lobby of a hotel, and the charge of immoral conduct in a "certain" hotel. The attorney asked that Klepper furnish him with information as to "place, time and persons" connected with the alleged incidents.

In addition informatioon was asked concerning the intimation made by Pullen that "other charges" would be made if necessary. McCamant in asking for them said that such information was needed for pursuance of the defense.

WANT PLACE SPECIFIED

"We are making demand on the commissioner of public affairs for a specification of the three charges under the head of intoxication in order that the place may be designated and we may be able to meet the charge intelligently," McCamant said.

"When furnished with proper particulars we shall be more than ready to meet the charges preferred, if indeed there is anyone willing to stand as father of these charges when the time comes."

The demand for the information was made before Commissioner Bigelow and at that time Klepper agreed to furnish the information sought. He said, however, that it could not be done until Monday, but at that time he would turn over to McCamant the details.

NOTHING NEW

Saturday saw no developments in the case when Brown repudiated the charges filed by him. He said that he had been "fooled" into signing them on the grounds that members of the fire bureau could not sign for the reason that such charges must come from a taxpayer. He said that Pullen had asked him to do this; but on second thought he came to the conclusion that the charges were unfair and should be retracted.

This was the gist of a letter received Saturday morning by Commissioner Bigelow. Immediately after receipt of a letter the same charges that Brown repudiated were filed with the commissioner by an unidentified person. This time the charges were sworn to by A. L. Pullen as a tax payer.

"I believe the charges to be true," Pullen said. "If I didn't I would not step forward and make them over my own name. I would not have done it even if I had not been brought into the quarrel by outsiders. The affair did not originate, as intimated, in the fire marshal's office and I knew nothing of it until two or three weeks ago. I am not afraid to press them, however, and now we will see the thing through."

HEARING THURSDAY

After consultation with the attorneys, Bigelow set the time for the hearing at 9:30 Thursday morning. The original time was Monday, but Chief Young did not have ample time to work up his defense.

Upon advice of his attorney the chief said Saturday that he would make no further statements until the day of the hearing. He did say that statements of certain afternoon papers that he was in hiding" were absolutely false, and that he was going about his work as usual. The reason he could not be reached, he said, was that the nature of his work kept him out of his office the greater part of the time.

Broken Axle Delays Wallowa Line Train

La Grande, April 15.—The daily train on the Wallowa county branch of the O.-W. R. & N., affectionately known as the "Rattler," by Wallowa county residents, usually makes the round trip between here and Joseph, including an hour layover in Joseph at noon, in nine hours. Friday night's train failed to arrive and came in this morning just half a day late. An axle on the tender had snapped and the trainmen, not being able to fix it, had to wait for help from La Grande.

Certain Kinds of Church Members Are Rapped by Crusader

Dr. George Wood Anderson, gospel crusader, compared some present day church members in good standing with the Biblical Jonah in his sermon at the Tabernacle Saturday night. Such people would rather patronize the world and the things of the world than give time and consideration to religious matters, Dr. Anderson said. The crusader spoke from the subject, "Jonah, the Most Misunderstood Man of the Old Testament."

"Many good church people shrink from religious work, not because they object to associating with sinful people, for they seek their companionship for pleasure, but because they do not wish to do the will of God," declared Dr. Anderson.

Today two services will be conducted at the Tabernacle, which is at East Third and Irving streets. At 3 p. m. Dr. Anderson will address a public service on the subject of "What Becomes of the Martyr's Blood?" and at 7:30 p. m. will preach a sermon on Belshazzar's feast, his subject being "Babylon."

Fruit Growers to Talk Cold Storage Plan in Portland

Fruit growers and others interested in improving cold storage facilities at the Portland docks will meet a committee from the dock commission Monday in the green room at the Oregon building. Two California men are on the program, which will start about 10 o'clock.

R. B. Peters of Devore, Cal., vice president of the California State Farm bureau, and J. S. Edwards of Redlands, who is one of the committee of 21 appointed by the National Farm bureau to meet in Chicago for the purpose of improving fruit marketing conditions, are scheduled speakers.

While in the Northwest these men are gathering information about fruit growing and marketing in this section and investigating methods of processing cull fruits of various kinds.

Peters, who is in charge of the fruit work connected with his state farm bureau, will attend the Chicago meeting to officially represent his own bureau and give any assistance possible. He is a practical fruit grower who has also taken a deep interest in the cooperative work in his state.

Painting of Bird And Animal Life Shown at Library

Pictures of the native birds and animals of Oregon, painted by R. Bruce Horsfall, are featured at the fourth annual art exhibit of the Oregon Audubon society. The paintings are on exhibition at the Central library, where they may be viewed by the public during the week.

The Horsfall collection, which consists of more than 100 paintings, is the center of attraction at the exhibit. In addition to being an artist, Horsfall is a student of wild life and his pictures reflect his wide-spread knowledge. He draws exclusively for The Journal, pictures being reproduced in the Sunday edition.

Other exhibitors are Mrs. Albert R. Sweetser, who has a gallery of more than 250 floral pictures; Herman T. Bohlman, a large collection of photographs of both the flora and fauna of the state; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Campbell, photographic studies of forests and the collection of photographs owned by Mrs. Charles E. Ladd.

One of the features of the show is a display of native wild flowers in blossom. This is exhibited by Arlis Seaman.

Applications for Final Citizenship Papers Falling Off

Applications at the naturalization office in the federal courthouse building for final citizenship papers fell off during the week. Only nine applications were filed with A. M. Salvon, deputy clerk. Hearing on these cases has been set for July 20. The applicants, the nationality and present address are:

Peter L. Nielsen, Denmark, route 2, Milwaukie; Salve Swenson Tronvik, Norway, No. 334 Grand avenue; Thaddeus M. Minard, Canada, No. 302 East 25th street; Ernestine E. Gassinger, Austria, No. 162 East 80th street north; Johan G. Kraussie, Germany, No. 762 Tibbetts street; Rasmus J. Larsen, Denmark, No. 547 Grand avenue; Benno Emil Constanc Carl Hecker, Germany, No. 175 East 20th street; Angelo Antonio Pranzetti, Italy, No. 835 East 32d street, and Olaf Sunde, Norway, No. 1107 East Yamhill street.

Man Attends Church; Burglars Rob Home

While J. Bier was attending services at the Seventh Day Adventist church Saturday, burglars entered his home and ransacked the place, stealing several rings and $4 in cash. Bier lives at No. 987 East Ninth street north. The burglars jimmied a window.

2 ILLINOIS TOWNS ARE SUBMERGED

Flood Damage Estimated at $8,000,000; 700 Dwellers in Naples Desert Endangered City.

Springfield, Ill., April 15.—(U. P.)—Two Illinois towns were submerged and several others threatened tonight by constantly rising flood waters. Total loss in Illinois was estimated at $8,000,000 by state officials.

Relief was rushed by the Red Cross, Salvation Army and state officials to assist thousands who fled from their homes.

Towns under water were Beardstown and Naples.

Water was within a few inches of the top of the levee protecting East Peoria and warning was given that it would give away at any minute. Three hundred families were sheltered in public buildings on high ground.

At Naples, a small river city, the entire population of 700 has deserted the city and are encamped in the hills back from the river. No business was transacted in the city.

At Beardstown the river rose four inches during the day and the area of high ground on which the 8000 inhabitants are encamped became a small island. Water tore through main streets of Beardstown as though it was a mill race.

HELD FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

A. V. Fassett was arrested by Patrolman Howard at Sixth and Belmont streets Saturday on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Fassett will be tried Monday morning before Municipal Judge W. A. Ekwall.

New Snowstorm at Wind River Delays Seed Tree Project

Just as the cook for the crew at Wind river forest service nursery arrived, preparatory for spring operations, another snowstorm came, said J. L. Kummel, forest examiner, in charge of planting, who has just returned from Wind river.

"The ground was covered with snow all winter, the first time in the history of the nursery," said Kummel. "The new snowfall was six inches deep when I left. The trees came through in excellent condition, however, and the snow will probably be off in a few days so that the men can begin work.

"The men will ship about 870,000 trees to areas where planting is being done; they will transplant about 1,500,000 trees from the seed beds into transplanting beds, and they will sow new seed beds so as to produce approximately 1,500,000 new trees. The work will continue through the greater part of May, and there will be 30 men employed at the height of the planting season.

"Trees will be shipped to Port Angeles, Wash., for planting on about 455 acres on the Soldue project; 500 acres on the Cispus project on the Rainier forest will be supplied, and about 50 acres will be planted on a small project up the Wind river."

Fred Hill Held for Larceny From Auto

Fred Hill was arrested Friday night near Broadway and Taylor street by Patrolman C. B. Meehan on a charge of larceny from an automobile. According to Meehan's report, Hill was caught in the act of taking a package from one automobile. Meehan reported he watched Hill inspecting the rear seats of several automobiles parked by the curb, as if looking for loot.

"Don't wait up for me!"

It doesn't matter what she said. Her reply was inaudible. And she knew that he knew it had been so. Inside the air was oppressive, the walls even of their home gave out a feeling of closing in on her, while outside all nature seemed gloriously in tune.

The fancies, the fear, the misgivings beseeching her brain during the next few hours transformed her usual calm into a state of mental perturbation. For never within the course of her happily married life had he, in his quiet emphatic tone said, "Don't wait up for me!"

*It was long past midnight when the latchkey turned in the door. Carefully he entered lest he should awaken her. The light which she had thoughtfully left burning in the bathroom showed a smile on his face as he passed through the door. Yes * * * clearly he had had a pleasant evening, and with mixed companions, no doubt!*

*A tear, indicative of her suffering, glistened on her prettily flushed cheek and coursed its way to the pillow. She could see him where he stood. Happiness alone shown out on his face. And then he began moving about * * * stepping no he was gliding * * * why he was actually dancing. And then, like a flash she knew—he was practicing the new dance steps.*

Slowly her discomfiture gave way to determination, and within her brain there sprang a great light. Tomorrow she would purchase their own phonograph, the latest "dance" records would be theirs, a cosy little nook she would plan new draperies, new pieces, new decorations, and with colorful touches here and there she would effect a complete rejuvenation throughout the house.

* * * *

A tender kiss, though bestowed in silence, thrilled her heart with a secret gladness.

And she knew that all was well.
