IRRIGATION MEN DENOUNCE 'REDS'

Americanism Is Theme of Annual Meeting of Congress Upton Presides

PORTLAND, Jan. 8.—One hundred per cent Americanism, absolute eradication of the "red" element whether in high life or low, and the making of Oregon the greatest reclamtoin state in the union were the keynotes of the ninth annual session of the Oregon Irrigation congress which opened today, with Jay H. Upton of Prineville presiding. Sessions will continue tomorrow. Large numbers of delegates representing every section of the state were in attendance.

Mayor Gives Welcome.

George L. Baker, mayor of Portland, in his address of welcome to the visiting delegates, and George M. Brown, attorney general of Oregon, in a speech on the irrigation and drainage district guarantee amendment from a legal standpoint, denounced radicalism and radicals in no uncertain terms.

It was anticipated that the congress will, late tomorrow, give unanimous and enthusiastic indorsement to the John Day district project, the largest now before the state for opening and which involves 300,000 acres. Action will also be taken, if time is sufficient, with regard to the upper Klamath Lake controversy.

LOGGING CAMPS KEEP OUT REDS

Work Resumes But Employes Must Show Clean Bill of Citizenship

PORTLAND, Jan. 8.—Resumption of activities in logging camps following the suspension in December and the observance of Christmas holidays is featured by employment of only such workmen as can show a clean bill in American citizenship. In all instances where employers suspect that any workman has affiliation with the I.W.W. or any other disloyal organization the applicants are required to show unblemished records, according to announcement made by headquarters of the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen. In the Columbia River district the camps of the Molton Creek Logging company, the Noyes-Holland Logging company, the Palmer-Owen company, the Nehalem logging company, The Columbia Lumber company, the Kerry Timber company have resumed operating. The Silver Falls Lumber company's logging camp in Marion county also has resumed.
