Education As Part of Proposed Public Welfare Department Opposed

DR. STRAYER SPEAKS

Teaching of Citizenship in Schools May Be Urged in Resolutions

DES MOINES, Ia., July 5.—Opposition to the inclusion of education as one of the sub-divisions in the proposed department of public welfare in the federal government was expressed by Dr. George D. Strayer of New York, chairman of the legislative committee of the National Education association at tonight's session of its convention here.

The legislative committee, Dr. Strayer reported, insists that if the department of public welfare is created, education should be taken out of it; that friends of education might be permitted to continue their efforts for an independent department of education.

Opposition Organized.

Dr. Strayer reported that the committee had met with "powerful influences that were intended to defeat our purposes" in supporting the Smith-Towner bill before the last session of congress. The Smith-Towner bill provides for the cration of o separate federal department of education.

Lewis B. Avery of Oakland, Cal., presented a resolution to the committee on resolutions recommending that the association go on record favoring the teaching of citizenship in the public schools.

By-Laws Changed.

The convention voted several amendments to the association's by-laws, seeking to give the individual departments within the association greater liberty in the handling of their own affairs.

Dr. John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, in speaking before the general session tonight, said that "while the United States expends more money for educational purposes than any other nation, the amount is too small for the task of educating our people."

DISABLED MEN HELD IN NEED

Robert S. Marx Says They Are Lying in Same State As on Battle Field

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Former service men are lying today in substantially the same deplorable physical condition as when they were found upon the field of battle, National Commander Robert S. Marx, of the Disabled American Veterans of the World war, today asserted before a senate committee investigating government agencies dealing with former service men.

"There has never been a definite plan of hospitalization for our men presented by the United States public health service," he continued.

Charges that insane patients in the government hospital at Marion, Ind., had been roughly treated were made by W. A. Baugh of Chicago, a patient of that hospital, before the committee. He asserted a broomstick was used as a "persuader" in one of the wards and that patients who desired liberties were compelled to work for favors by mopping, sweeping and cleaning.

"Work is done by patients," he said, "for which attendants are paid."

Indictments Are Found Against Film Company

NEW YORK, July 5.—Indictments charging Eliot Norton, lawyer and author; Anthony J. Drexel Jr., of Philadelphia; Louis R. Jennings and Harry Brolaski with selling unauthorized stock of the Standard Film Industries, Inc., were returned by the grand jury last Thursday, it became known today, when Norton was arrested and held in $5000 bail. He pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Norton, son of the late Charles Eliot Norton, professor of English at Harvard university, was named in the indictment as secretary and attorney of the company. Mr. Drexel was designated as vice president; Jennings as president and Brolaski as general manager.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Harry Brolaski, indicted in New York in connection with the alleged sale of unauthorized stock of the Standard Film Industries, Inc., was indicted and arrested in 1917, in connection with the affairs of the concern, he said here tonight. This case was dismissed in 1919, he declared.

Brolaski is free on bond pending appeal of his conviction in the United States district court here as "master mind" of an alleged whiskey selling conspiracy with transactions, the government charged, running into many thousands of dollars, and was sentenced to two years in prison.

"I never was general manager of the film company," Brolaski said. "Second, I know nothing of the reported returns on sales said to have been made to the Virginia authorities. I was indicted in this same case in 1917 and the case was dismissed in New York in December, 1919. Later the case against me was dismissed.

SIDEWALK DISPLAY LAW TO BE ENFORCED

this phase of the matted was given by a claim by A. R. Lee for alleged damages sustained by a fall on an uneven cement sidewalk.

The street committee asked authority to purchase 50 barrels of asphalt from Marion county, reporting that the county could furnish this material at a cost of $5 less per ton than bids made previously. This caused Alderman Patton to inquire how the material was to be paid for. Upon learning that the county was paying only by warrant, Patton stated that outstanding warrants dating as far back as 1914 were held by Salem banks.

After considerable discussion, the asphalt purchase was approved.

Bickering Precedes Passage.

Alderman Patton again came to the front by asking appointment of a committee to report on liens and unpaid paving assessments with additional authority to hire clerical aid in getting the city's unpaid warrants into shape for payment. This was passed after considerable bickering.

Sidewalk ordinances introduced by Alderman Wenderoth precipitated an attack upon the North Salem councilman by Alderman Vendervort who with Alderman Utter declared that the city was being forced to pay for an improvement program fostered by the North Salem Imorpvement association.

"I challenge either of you to show that any of these sidewalks will have to be paid for by the city," siad Wenderoth, heatedly.

He then proceeded to state that the ordinances as submitted by him involved only notice to the property owners named and that the council would have to act later on the advisability of building. After some discussion, the ordinances were adopted.

Patton Raps Methods.

"This body must adopt a better system or the city of Salem will lose the confidence of the banks," observed Alderman Patton after calling attention to overdrafts on the fund for street improvements in the sum of $3521.10

Completion of pavement at the intersection at Trade and Church streets was approved, as was a petition for graveling and grading on Fifteenth street between Mill creek and B streets.

Several times during the evening complications in ordinances and parliamentary usage caused the aldermen to appeal to City Attorney Ray Smith. At one time presentation of the sidewalk obstruction ordinances became so involved that Alderman Patton and Attorney Smith held a conference for the purpose of deciding which measure they were working on.

Vendors Favored.

An ordance proposing an increase of $5 in the present $10 license required of fruit and other street vendors was tabled after Alderman Vandervort savagely attacked the measure.

"This bill discriminates against the man who comes here and sells fruit at more reasonable prices than the local merchants who hold us up," asserted Vandervort.

A girl cashier in a quick lunch place said to the boss. "Look here, I want a vacation. I've got to get my health back. My beauty is beginning to fade."

"Why do you think so, little one?" the boss asked, with an indulgent smile.

"The men," said the girl cashier, "are beginning to count their change."

ADVERTISING HELD MOST IMPORTANT

Federal Commissioner of Education Speaks Before Club at Des Moines

DES MOINES, Ia., July 5.—Advertising is the most important factor in modern business, Dr. John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, declared in an address before the Des Moines Advertising club here at noon today. Important as are the factors of labor, raw material, production, marketing and organization, none of these, he said, are as significant today as advertising.

"Advertising is the selling through publicity," Dr. Tigert said. "These include, of course, creating a vogue, stimulating good will and maintaining custom. In 1911 a summary was made of the relative amounts of money expended in different media of advertising. At that time the total amount spent for advertising in this country was $800,000. Since that time the amounts spended have increased by leaps and bounds. The amount expended today for advertising would quite easily go over two billion dollars.

"In 1911 the newspaper was the greatest medium of advertising and it still stands as such It is the only medium that can be used for immediate effect. The magazine, however, has its advantages.

"Advertising and salesmanship are carried on most effectively. The two are planned in conjunction, and yet advertising is the more important factor of the two."

AMERICAN POWER IS RECOGNIZED

Germany and United States Are Held at Opposite Financial Poles

HAMBURG, July 5.—(By The Associated Press)—Germany and the United States were represented as at the opposite poles of the world's financial structure by Dr. Walter Rathenau, minister of reconstruction, in an address today.

"The United States is the world's chief creditor and Germany is the world's chief debtor, with all other nations sandwiched in between as creditor or debtor nations," he said.

He urged that the depreciation of the currencies of the various nations was tending to weld them together, none of them, with the exception of the United States having been able to escape the ravages of war-time and the post-war economic invasion.

"Germany," he continued, "lives by the work of her hands. We are, therefore, only able to pay our debts with our products, or mental and manual labor. This we honestly propose to do."

"It is to be hoped," said Dr. Rathenau, in discussing America's part in the upbuilding of Europe, "that the mighty nation beyond the Atlantic with which we hope peace will forever unite us as it has since yesterday, and whose sword, when laid in the balance, is equally as decisive as its pen, will realize that conditions in Europe cannot be corrected if a factor of such gigantic dimensions as the United States withholds its collaboration."

CLUB BANQUET THURSDAY NIGHT

Two Hundred Members Can Be Accommodated At Marion Hotel Dinner

There are 1200 members of the Salem Commercial club.

Only 200 can sit in at the big "Get-Together" banquet at the Marion hotel Thursday night at 7 o'clock.

The first 200 come, first and only ones served.

Get your tickets early and avoid the rush. And use it!

This is the advice given out by the club directors, concerning the dinner to be given tomorrow night It is good financial advice, too, for it has the endorsement of all the banks of Salem: good social stuff, for it is time for "the boys" to have another of these big good-times gatherings.

Prof. S. I. Miller, head of the department of business administration of the University of Washington, has been asked to address the meeting. He is one of the best lecturers on civic and municipal problems in the northwest, and is usually swamped with demands upon his time. Having this one date available, however, the Commercial club set its dinner for the day on which he could come. He is said to be a speaker who could make the ghost of Ramese the Great, 400 years dead, turn the Great Pyramid into a boiler factory or a circus. Prof. Miller should have every seat filled—except when they get up on their tiptoes to holler for the municipal good.

An advisory committee from the various banks of Salem as well as Frank Deckebach, Paul Wallace, T. B. Kay, J. C. Perry and J. H. McNary, will hold an informal dinner today to perfect some of the plans for the big meeting. The committee in charge of the dinner itself is J. W. Chambers, president; George Griffith, vice president; William Gahlsdorf, secretary; J. H. Albert, treasurer; Charles Knowland, L. J. Chapin, George Putnam, William McGilchrist, Jr., C. O. Rice, B. E. Sisson and R. O. Snelling.

McDowell, it is said, was purchasing the car on an installment basis and had not completed the payments when he took the car on the long trip He was arrested in Joseph three days ago.

DE VALERA MAY MAKE COME-BACK

Counter Reply to Lloyd George Expected From Irish Leader

LONDON, July 6.—The parliamentary correspondent of the London Times says that well informed quarters expect Eamonn de Valera to reply to Premier Lloyd George with a counter proposal. He says it has been suggested in some quarters that the Sinn Feiners would prefer, if they enter a London conference, to have it called by the king and have a chairman who is not a direct representative of the British government, rather than Lloyd George.

The correspondent cites the Buckingham palace conference in 1914 as a precedent. It was called by the king and the speaker of parliament was in the chair. He adds that it is also suggested that the overseas dominions be represented, a dominion premier occupying the chair.

Regarding the cessation of fighting he observed that an unofficial truce, "an understanding binding on the leaders and enforced as far as possible on the scattered units," is thought more advisable than formal cessation of hostilities. For some days past the corrspondent asserts there have been no reprisals, official or unofficial, by the forces of the crown.

The governor explained that he did not predict a reduction in the 1922 levy, which might even be increased slightly, but was convinced that the effect of the code would be felt in another year. He expressed resentment at the criticism aimed at the code, asserting that the people should give it longer than three months to show results. Department heads detailed their work of organization.

MRS. WILCOX IS OUT OF PRISON

Woman Convicted of Uttering False Will of Queen Liliuokalani

HONOLULU, T. H., July 1.—Theresa Wilcox Belliveau, in whose veins runs the royal blood of old Hawaii, widow of Robert J. Wilcox, the leader of the Hawaiian home rule party and the territory's first delegate to congress, has just been paroled from Oahu prison. There she served two years of a three-year term, following her conviction on the charge of having uttered a fraudulent will purporting to be that of the late former Queen Liliuokalani.

Immediately following death of Queen "Lil" in November, 1917 Hawaiian circles were stirred by the announcement of "Princess" Theresa that she held a will made out by the queen naming the "princess" as her beneficiary.

During the week that the body of the queen lay in state, attorneys were busy in court on behalf of the queen's kinsmen and close associates in an endeavor to frustrate Theresa's plan.

Subsequently came discovery of the real will and then followed Theresa's arrest and trial after one of the "witnesses" to the spurious will had confessed.

"Princess" Theresa's present husband is Lewis T. Belliveau, a carpenter of Honolulu.

OSBORNE BLAMED FOR AUTO CRASH

Coroner's Jury Establishes Responsibility for Saturday Accident

After deliberating for two hours upon various phases of the automobile accident in which Rudolph Samuelson, truck driver, and six others were injured, Saturday, a coroner's jury returned a verdict yesterday holding E. G. Osborne of Portland, guilty of driving his heavy roadster at "an excessive rate of speed."

Testimony given at the inquest indicated that Osborne was driving his Pierce-Arrow roadster at a dangerous rate on the Pacific highway near Brooks when the speeding machine struck the light family car driven by Malcolm Ramp of Brooks, when Ramp, with his wife and infant child and two other passengers was proceeding east from Brooks.

Evidence showed that the Ramp machine was nearly demolished when the large machine crashed into it at the intersection of the two roads. Mr. Samuelson, it was shown, was riding with Osborne in the front seat of the big machine, which turned turtle before hurtling against a telephone pole guy wire.

Fred Moisan, who said he was about 75 feet away from the crash when it occurred, and Frank V. Meeve, who was riding a motorcycle behind the Ramp machine, both asserted that the family car was not preceding faster than 15 miles an hour when the collision occurred.

An effort was made to establish statements attributed to Osborne before starting on the journey that he intended to "break records" on the Salem-Portland run. Although two or three witnesses were called to testify regarding this the purported statement was not established.

A report that Mr. Osborn intended to plead insanity was denied from the Salem hospital, at a late hour last night. Another report that Osborne had been expected to appear at the inquest was also refuted, the victim-driver being unable to move about due to the severe injuries sustained by him in the crash.

Members of the jury were D. H. Moser, Charles E. Nicholson, Joseph E. Matteson, Paul B. Johnson, H. C. Marvin and J. W. Jones.
