HAS ENGLAND'S ANSWER.

The British Government's refusal to pledge itself to take further sanctions in the event of a German defalcation is causing a delay in the dispatch to Berlin of the joint Allied note demanding satisfaction with respect to guaranteeing safety to the Allied Military Control Commission. The draft tentatively agreed upon by the Council of Ambassadors in Paris, where Lord Crewe, above, the British Ambassador, presented his Government's point of view, met with the approval of the Foreign Office.
