First Photo of Major Martin After His Return, Following Alaskan Crash of World Flight Plane

FRIENDS' ANNUAL MEETING CLOSES

Record Attendance Marks Conference; Resolution Favors Miss King

Friends, yearly meeting, after a six days' session, closed Wednesday. A record has been made in attendance and interest. The various departments of the church have reported advance steps which have been very gratifying to the meeting. To be noticed especially is the work of the Evangelistic and Church extension boards. An urgent call comes from the Rev. Isabelle Clarke, missionary to the Indians on the Klamath Falls reservation. Money was raised for this work which includes a summer campaign of tent meetings. Samuel Clinton, a native preacher to the Modocs, is interested in this work.

Following the report of the peace committee two orations were given, "The Greatest of These Is Love," by Hubert Armstrong, and "It Must Not Happen Again," by Helen Hester.

A resolution was introduced by Levi T. Pennington, president of Pacific college, which the meeting unanimously accepted.

"Information has come to this yearly meeting that Mary King, one of our members, has been denied citizenship in the United States because of her adherence to what we believe to be the Christian principles of peace and her statement that she could not conscientiously bear arms and take human life.

"We wish first of all to express to this Friend our sincere appreciation of her fidelity to those principles which Friends have so long held, and our sympathy in whatever loss she may sustain by reason of this fidelity.

"We desire to express our protest against the action of the United States court which denied citizenship to this Friend, and to insist that there are other and better ways of defending the Constitution and the government than by war, with all that it involves of hatred, moral detioration and other spiritual evils.

"We request our peace committee ot seek in every proper and Friendly way to have this action of the court changed and Mary King admitted to citizenship, feeling as we do that to bar one from citizenship because of peace principles is an injustice not only to Friends, but to many others of the very best Christian citizens of the United States."

DAUGHTER OF NOTORIOUS MONK RASPUTIN FLEES FROM SIBERIA TO PARIS

Maria Gregorievna, who claims she is one of the five children of Rasputin, famous evil genius of the late Czarina of Russia, escaped from Siberia and arrived recently in the French capital. She says she lived with her father in Petrograd and that every week he took her to see the Czarina. She tells of terrible experiences after Rasputin's death when she and her brothers and sisters were imprisoned before being sent to Siberia. She is a talented girl and a good dancer and hopes to obtain an engagement on the stage in Paris.

JAPAN OVERSTOCKED

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 17. —Japan is overstocked with lumber, according to H. R. MacMillan, large lumber exporter of British Columbia who has returned from the Far East.

"When I was in Japan, Tokio was consuming 2,000,000 feet of lumber daily," said Mr. MacMilland. "Lumber prices have dropped owing to banks and importers holding large quantities of high-priced material."

WELFARE PLAN FOR WORKERS

Seasonal Supervision Movement Gets Under Way at Meeting of Women

Birth of a movement to create a board to supervise the welfare of seasonal employees on the west coast similar to that conducted on the east coast by the Council of Women for Home Missions took place at the library Tuesday afternoon, when representatives from nearly all the local churches met with Miss Louise Shields of Portland, secretary of the state commission on seasonal employment and a well-known welfare worker.

Proposal to survey the Salem district for the purpose of ascertaining the number employed, physical and educational conditions, and what individual growers and employers are doing to provide for the welfare of their employes during fruit and hop picking and the start on one center this year received the endorsement of C. H. Gram, state labor commissioner, though he was unable to attend the meeting in person. Efforts will be made to provide for the expense of an executive secretary, on full time, to supervise the work among this class of employes. It was pointed out at the meeting that the work should be conducted on a small scale at first and a committee was appointed to select the center around which the activities will concentrate.

Miss Shields explained in detail the work being done along this line throughout the state and emphasized the needs of this district, where thousands are employed in seasonal occupations. It was through the influence of Miss Shileds that the Horst ranch tried out the plan last year with the result tat it will be put in operatoin again this year on a larger scale. Three full-time salaried workers will be employed this fall. According to the manager of the ranch, a full week's time was saved by keeping all those employed on the ranch until the end of the season.

C. A. Kells, general secretary of the Salem YMCA, spoke briefly.

An indeterminate sentence is any one written by the late Henry James.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

Cheery cherry days.

They had an inch of rain up Mehama way on Tuesday afternoon and night. That Santiam country seems to be favored in many ways.

The retting of last year's crop of flax is going on at the state flax plant. A batch was taken off yesterday, and nother will come off today. The capacity of the tanks, new and old, is about 60 tons a week. Working to the limit, this will not take care of the whole of last year's crop before the fall rains; to say nothing of the crop now growing.

There are fields of flax now about ready to pull. Col. Bartram has written that the pullers will be here as agreed, by July 10. But that will not be early enough for some of the growers. An attempt is being made to get a line on the shipment of pullers, and have it traced. Perhaps more may be learned about this today.

The Slogan editor did not advise any one to plant more hops. He advised any one putting out a new yard to be sure to know what he is going to do about making sure of a market for this product.

Down below Canby, on the Pacific highway, a big field of potatoes was being planted on Wednesday. It belongs to Mr. Brown, the potato king down that way. He has other fields of potatoes near by, that are in the blossom, and look fine. But he is surely gambling on the fall rains, to be putting out more potatoes now. The ground is in splendid condition, however, and he evidently thinks it is a good gamble.

The people in the southwestern portion of Salem are insisting upon a drainage district. It is the only way to make sure of the proper distribution of the flood waters in the rainy season.
