Salem MacDowell Club Is Cultural Asset Of Wide Influence In Promotion of Arts

Audience Well Pleased With Program Last Monday; Next Program to Be On February 22

Built on the foundation of one of the greatest dreams that has ever come true, the Salem MacDowell club, in common with every other MacDowell club throughout the country, is one of the most virile cultural assets a community can have.

Such programs as those that have been given before the Salem public from month to month are not only valuable for the enoyable evening they give but for the spirit they foster as well. Better music is the purpose of every earnest MacDowell club, of course, but this does not hinder a bigger object still—the alliance of all arts.

According to Mrs. Phil Newmyer, the president of the local MacDowell club, who, in the few months she has served, has already made notable progress in stimulating interest in those things for which the MacDowell club stands. Formation of study clubs; alliance with the national project; and the bringing of outside artists to Salem, are among the goals toward which the Salem club is consistently working.

Every MacDowell club stands as a memorial to America's greatest native composer, Edward MacDowell, and his heroic wife, who is bringing about the realization of her husband's dream, the establishment of a colony for worthy artists at Peterboro, New Hampshire, where those of deserving genius may have the surroundings to bring out the best talent within them. While a local club, such as the MacDowell club in Salem, cannot offer the solitude of a New England colony to those who deserve, it can do another thing—it can inspire the citizens of the community with such a love for the arts that they will willingly undertake the working out of their own salvation and cooperate wherever genius stirs. A MacDowell club serves to give musical personality to a city, and puts out the latch-string to all the arts.

The general public will be interested to know that such earnest and competent women as the following are filling the offices in this culturally important club in a highly satisfying manner: Mrs. Phil Newmyer, president; Miss Dorothy Pearce, vice president; Mrs. J. W. Chambers, Jr., secretary; Mrs. T. H. Galloway, treasurer; Mrs. Donald Wayne Riddle, auditor, and Mrs. Ada Miller Harris and Miss Eva Marshall assistant directors.

Last Monday the club sponsored the appearance of a gifted pianist, Miss Mary Bullock of Portland, and a talented basso, Martin Doerfler, in an exceptionally well received program. Mrs. W. H. Burghardt, who was scheduled to appear on this program in a noteworthy group, suggestive of the music heard in Paris during the past season, was forced to cancel her appearance on account of illness. Mrs. Burghardt's music will be one of the treats of the near future.

The program opened with assurance when Miss Mary Bullock, who is correctly rated among the foremost of the valley's younger pianists, played Rachmainoff's "Polichinelle," answering the volable applause that greeted her with the Brahms' waltz in A flat. Miss Bullock repeated her triumph in both of the two groups which followed. "In Boccacio's Villa," (Nevin); "Music Box," (Saurer, and "Gopak" (Mussorgsky), was followed with the entrancing measures of Dawes' famous "Melody." Dent Mowry's colorful "Spanish Dance" was chosen as the extra to follow the Godowsky number, "Old Vienna" and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody X," which closed Miss Bullock's portion of the program, and acclaimed her one of the most charming artists the Salem MacDowell club chorus has ever had the privilege of presenting, and the associate members the pleasure of receiving.

Martin Doerfler, who has a powerful, magnificently handled basso, exhibited the ready adaptability of his voice to any type of song,—in "Three for Jack," (Squire) portraying the rollicking epigram; in Mozart's "Within This Hallowed Dwelling," the grandeur of a Psalm; and in Clarke's "The Blind Ploughman," the foremost qualities of strong vocal drama.

For his second group, Mr. Doerfler sang, with vitality and big vocal security, McGill's "Duna," Huhn's tremendous "Invictus," and Kremer's "The Last Hour," all sufficiently familiar to assure an honest reception. Mr. Doerfler sang his encores, "The Big Bass Viol," (Bohannon) and "Sylvia," by Speaks, with the same fine tonal assurance and buoyant vigor invested in his earlier numbers.

The accompaniments for Mr. Doerfler's numbers, as played by Miss Dorothy Pearce, while taking on the artistic qualities of beautifully rendered solos in their pearl-like completeness, never lose to the audience the illusion that the human voice and the instrument of Miss Pearce's playing are exact complements. Miss Pearce plays with absorbing skill, whether it is in her solo work or in her accompaning.

Two weeks from tomorrow, February 22, the next program sponsored by the Salem MacDowell club will be held in Waller hall. At this time the contributing artists will be Jeanette Boyer Xanten, vocalist; Mrs. W. H. Burghardt, pianist, who will talk on the music heard in Paris in the spring, summer and fall of 1925, with illustrative excerpts; Miss Dorothy Pearce assisting; and Lucile Ross and Byron D. Arnold, pianists, in numbers for two pianos.

Mrs. W. A. Denton is the chairman of the program committee, arranging these attractive Monday night offerings each month for the
