SAILOR DEATHS TALE TOLD TO COMMITTEE

or even death had overtaken the men before they completed their work of barricading, for a line that was wrapped about the joist to make it fast had not been knotted.

The position of another body in the two compartments seemed to indicate that there was consideration as well as heroism among the 32 doomed men. At the extreme end of the motor rooms, just forward of the wheel for the hand steering gear, one man lay on a folding cot, head pointing aft, feet forward.

First Casualty

"It is probable," Commander Saunders said, "that he was the first of the 32 to feel the effects of the bad air or whatever they were suffering from and that he was taken to the spot where the air was best and placed on the cot beore the others were taken care of."

Medical officers will be called before the court tomorrow to testify as to the cause of death of the 8-4 victims. It was indicated in Commander Saunders' testimony that clorine gas probably was not the cause. The valve in the exhause line leading from the battery room was closed at the engine room end, he said.

HOOVER CANDIDACY HAS SUPPORT OF MANY HERE

had graduated from the Pacific academy, he enrolled in the Highland Pollytech instituition, a Friends' school, and also attended the public schools.

As office boy for the Salem land company, a firm in which his uncle, Dr. H. J. Minthorn, was interested, he became known as the "walking encyclopedia." When any one wished to learn a fact about Salem, it was to "Bert" Hoover they went.

At the age of eighteen, he decided to further his education. Accordingly, he enrolled in Stanford university and became a mining engineer. Taking a position immediately upon graduation, he did not return to Salem to make his home.

Hoover was born in West Branch, Iowa. At present, he considers his home as Washington, D. C., but he has a fondness for Salem and Oregon which has not vanished with the years of success as a statesman. He maintains his membership at the Highland Friends church and contributes regularly to its support, and to the support of other local institutions.

The company has been on the concert platform for 55 years and has entertained in every city in every state of America, in Canada, and in several countries of Europe. They give a wonderful program, blending the classical, original, sacred and patriotic music. Tickets, adults 50 cents, children 25 cents. On sale at Perry's drug store, Cooley's grocery, and Nelson & Hunt's drug store.

Bits For Breakfast

Alliteration of progress—

Grow more corn for more cows and rotate with more cash crops, including the clovers, Grimm alfalfa, Hungarian vetch, and the other legumes. Give 'em 'l; lime, legumes and 'lizers (fertilizers.)

You are going to like the farm and industrial magazine section of The Statesman, starting a week from next Sunday. It will carry the Slogan matter.

Daniel J. Fry is advertising for two thousand pounds of peppermint oil, which he wants to buy at $2.60 a pound. The mint industry is on the up grade—going to persist here, and this is going to be the world center of the peppermint oil growing and refining and merchandising.

Going up. Our best corn growers are hitting at the mark of 100 bushels to the acre. They will reach it.

"Seven Miles Out," Ella McMunn's new book, is selling fast, every day. At the Patton book store, at 50c a copy.

Illicit distilling and bootlegging continue without sign of abatement," says the report of the commissioner of internal revenue. "During the past year 2,465 illicit plants have been seized and destroyed, as against 2,488 the previous year."

Yes, indeed. Dreadful. All these moonshine plants operating, and all due to the Volstead Act, of course. It's Prohibition that makes people break the law.

But wait. What's the date of that report? Why, it's for the year 1911-12 eight years before Prohibition! —Exchange.
