FOUGHTASHERIFF'S POSSE

OLD GENERAL CASSIUS CLAY THOUGHT IT THE VENDETTA.

Officers, Attempting to Serve Papers, Were Resisted-The General Probably Wounded.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 5.-With the cry, "The vendetta, the wendetta," on cry, "The vendetta, the vendetta," on his lips, General Cassius M. Clay, the famous abolitionist and duelist, and ex-United States Minister to Russia, this morning led his little bodyguard to battle against a Sheriff's posse which had gone to Whitehall, his palatial mansion in Madison County, to serve papers upon the General in a civil suit instituted against him by his daughter, Mrs. Mary B. Clay. Many shots were fired on each side, and the posse finally departed without accom-plishing the purpose of its visit. It is reported that General Clay was wounded during the affray.

Fieeing from his supposed enemies, he barricaded himself in his "den" in the mansion, and there he remained guarded by his faithful servants. Whether or not he is wounded is only known to himself and to his little bodyguard. No surgeon has been summoned to the house, and dare approach except on invitation. Today's conflict was directly connected with the domestic woes of General Clay which have darkened the closing years of his life. The principals in the battle were General Clay and two of his bodyguard, Bud Littrell and Jim Bolin, on one side, and Sheriff Colyer, Deputy Terrill and Frank Mason, of Madison County, on the other. The writ which the Sheriff sought to serve was one ordering the delivery of some furniture belonging to the General's daughter. The officers approached the house from the north, passing through the apple orchard. The General's Russian bulldogs set up a barking, and the officers stopped at the yard. The General's bodyguard promptly came to the door, and the Sheriff announced that he desired a personal interview with the master of Whitehall. General Clay in a few mo-ments came to the door, revolver in hand. "General Clay," said the Sheriff, "we are here on a peaceful mission."

You are on my property without leave, and I will shoot you." replied the old man, who, almost blind, strained his eyes as if trying to make out the loca-

"Don't shoot, General; we are friends," shouted Sheriff Colyer.

"Spies," he retorted, and, handing his pissol to one of his men, he took, instead, a repeating shotgun and cocked it.

Sheriff Colyer sought shelter behind a large oak tree near by, and his deputies also hid themselves. All pulled their weapons. General Clay shricked, "The vendetta! the vendetta!" and began firing in the direction from which he heard the volces. The Sheriff fired in return after the General had emptied his weapon, and his deputies also fired, not at the old man, they say, but hoping to scare him into seeking shelter. Colyer was shooting wild, also, not desiring to kill the old man, who, although doing his best to kill him, believed he was firing upon an enemy.

After emptying the shotgun, General Clay tried his revolver, which would not fire. He then took from the hands of the other guard a rifle and discharged it in the direction of the frightened Sheriff

Exhausting his ammunition, General Clay sought retreat. He went into his room, and, putting up the iron bars, ordered his men to adjust the pistols, which were three large Navy weapons always kept lying on a dresser. He armed him-

After General Clay had retreated into his "den," Sheriff Colyer and his men left the yard. They found a negro boy and sent him to the house to try to get Gen-eral Clay out unarmed and meet them, but in this they were not successful, and they returned without serving the process. Sheriff Colyer says he will not bother General Clay tomorrow, but will wait till Monday for service of the paper. Some months ago General Clay, who had been left alone after his child-wife, Dura Richardson, ran away and left him, sent for Mrs. Mary B. Clay, a daugnter, to come and live with him. For some time they got along nicely, and the vet-eran appeared to be satisfied. Two weeks ago he told his daughter to go to his family and secure their consent to the release of all claims on the property which he occupied. He wanted to give the property to Dora, the young divorced wife, who is now the wife of Riley Brock, and resides at Pinckard. In Woodford County, on property given her by the

Mrs. Clay went away, according to orders, and, returning a day or so later, was met at the door by the old man. His eyes were fiery. In his trembiting hand he held a revolver grasped tightly. He demanded to know the result of her visit. "It's all right," said the frightened

"All right, is it?" retorted the infuri-tied man. "You lie. I know you are de-ceiving me." Leveling his revolver at his daughter's head, he added: "Leave my house, and never come here again." Returning to his room, the old man mouned, "She was trying to deceive me, I could tell it by her face."

Securing a writ of delivery for her fur-niture, Mrs. Clay placed the paper in the hands of Sheriff Colyer. General Clay still loves the child he married, and, although she has now grown to womanho and has remarried, he wants to give her his property, which, at his death, will go to his children. He thinks the "ven-detta," about which he has talked and written for years, is on, and believed today that he was shooting at his enemies come to murder him in his own home.
