ganization "immediately declared its implicit faith and trust in our president. . . . and offered its steadfast devotion and its utmost help to the president in solving this problem which congress laid at his feet."

The adjutant said that "less than 10 per cent of the men who have ever received compensation from our government are members of the American Legion," and that this was "self-evident proof that the legion program is entirely unselfish."

Announcing a drive to solidify the American legion under a patriotic banner of service to the country, Samuel Observed:

"We must go forward under this banner three-quarters of a million strong, paddling our own canoe, undaunted by present-day conditions, inspired and encouraged by the accomplishments of the past, with high resolve to render still greater service to our disabled comrades and to dependent widows and orphans, as well as to perform patriotic service to the nation."

The convention was called to order by J. B. Eakin of Dallas, departmental commander, and was formally welcomed by William R. Canton, commander of Klamath Post No. 8. Mayor Willis E. Mahoney brought official greetings from the city.

The musical program for the opening ceremonies included numbers by the Capital unit trio of Salem.

Dewey Powell of Klamath Falls was elected Grand Chef de Gare of the Grand Voiture, 40 and 8, meeting here in conjunction with its parent organization, the legion. Other officers included:

submitted by the non-union operators—a feature which has met with official opposition of the industrial administration — Lewis said the recovery act "assumes that employers will freely recognize and deal with representatives of employes."

Lewis expressed opposition to the eight hour day provision in the code he helped draft, favoring a six hour—five day week.

Establishment of the 30 hour week through the six hour day Lewis said, "will extend employment to all available men in the industry.

"It will check over production and place the industry in a position to produce at least our national coal requirements."

The argument started when Mrs. Marie Deeds arrived a week ago at San Francisco with the body and was met by the other woman. It was resumed with vigor today when Mrs. Marie Deeds, escorting Deeds' casket, was met at the train by Mrs. Betty Deeds, who flew here yesterday from Los Angeles.

"He was my husband and you know it," asserted Mrs. Betty Deeds.

"You left him and he married me," retorted Mrs. Marie Deeds. "You want money, insurance, whatever was left."

"Why shouldn't I? I was his wife seven years. You were with him in China four days," Mrs. Betty Deeds responded.

his mind nor his purpose to lend every support to the constitutional reforms," a program of which has been worked out by Cuban political leaders under the guidance of Ambassador Welles.

The state of war had no special purpose or significance, the president said, calling it only a matter of routine intended to cope with the problems created by the general strike.

In a formal communication, President Machado said:

"In answer to your message asking a statement from me as to the purpose and significance of my decree placing Cuba under a state of war am glad to say there is not any special purpose or significance in it, being only a matter of routine.

"In other words, when the Cuban congress approved the suspension for a period of 30 days of the constitutional guarantees upheld in eight different articles of our magna charta, the logical step to put in operation this emergency law was the decree of a state of war.

"But the temporary suspension of the constitutional guarantees is only intended to cope with the problems created throughout the republic by the general strike and has no political meaning.

"As for your second question regarding my future plans I can say that I have not changed my mind nor my purpose to lend every support to the constitutional reforms; to the project of electoral law prepared under the guidance of Prof. McBain and which project was sent yesterday to the congress with a message of the executive; to uphold the autonomy of the university also in accordance with the project of the same Prof. McBain, and which project I will send today to the congress with a message of the executive recommending its approval."

Dave Oliver, American photographer for a New York newsreel company, and Leo J. Reisler, Havana correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, were arrested while Oliver was attempting to take a picture in a restricted area of the city. Reisler was released a short time later, but Oliver was held four hours. The photographer charged that the police cursed him and threatened his life.

HOOVER BIRTHDAY QUIET THIS YEAR

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Aug. 10—(AP)—In the role of private citizen, former President Herbert Hoover sat down to a quiet dinner with his wife and a few friends on his 59th birthday here today while the public in general thought he was en route to the mountains.

The trip to the high Sierras which a secretary said Mr. and Mrs. Hoover had planned to take today will probably be started tomorrow, it was announced.

A pile of telegrams and other messages on the big library table grew steadily throughout the day, as the fairful among the Hoover friends sent their greetings on his 59th birthday. Not a few were signed by famous names both here and abroad.

Friends here of the couple who have been companions in their every undertaking since their college days said they believed the birthday observance of today was "far more to Mr. Hoover's taste" than the one of last year.

A year ago it fell on the day before the then president's formal acceptance of his party's nomination to run again for the office which made his hair more grey, his mouth more set, and his eyes more tired than campus friends remembered them.

There were politicians' visits, conferences, and the arrival of a birthday card which had to be transported by frieight, containing signature of some 40,000 followers, many of them state governors or mayors of cities.

HEWITT CASE TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT itt home and after several visits from the latter, Mrs. Hewitt said her husband and herself bought a total of $2986 in securities.

She declared Hughes told her the investment was better than a bank savings account. She said Mr. Hewitt told Hughes he wanted his money where he could draw it out on short notice and that Hughes said the Hewitts could have the money in two or three days.

The plaintiff testified Mr. Hewitt had told Hughes he was primarily interested in the safety of his principal and wanted the money kept intact so Mrs. Hewitt could have it after his death which Hewitt thought was imminent.

Mrs. Hewitt testified that Hughes told her he was "bonded and couldn't do anything but right." In another conversation Hughes is alleged to have told plaintiff that the Pepco had lawyers who would always protect her interests.

Testimony to substantiate that of the plaintiff was offered by William Hewitt, a son.

French Troops Dispatched to German Border

MULHOUSE, France, Aug. 10.—(AP)—As a precaution against alleged aggressions by German nazis such as occurred last February at Huningue, French troops again were stationed on the German frontier near here today.

The French soldiers occupied defensive works along the Rhine at Chalampe. At Kembs they guarded the electric plant and the span over the Alsace canal. At Huningue they did picket duty at the bridge where brown-shirted groups made an anti-French demonstration, shouting taunts, six months ago.

The dispatch of troops to these frontier points was upon request of the local population.
