board of directors of the Rowing Club discussed this plan of sending a crow East at their last meeting and is shaping the future rowing policy along this line

At St. Louis, all the first-class clubs of the country will be represented, and Portland, which has the only rowing club been accepted, to enter the contest: H N. Pillsbury, F. J. Marshall, W. E. Napler that fosters shell racing in the Western part of the United States, should not fail to be represented. It is the individual opinion, of the members of the board, that American; H. J. Blackburn, James Morti-mer, Isador Gunsberg, James Mason, Richpains should be spared to accomplish is end. It is suggested that the 1995 bin, D. Jannowski and S. Laubenhaus, France; Jacques Micsos, Theodore Vot this end. Exposition at Portland should also have a gathering of oarsmen. The Northwest, including British Columbia, would take hold with a vim and San Francisco no doubt could be prevailed upon to get shells and send crews to compete. With the aid of the Exposition, a large gath-ering of Eastern crews could be had, and such sport as the Northwest has never seen would be the result.

This would be a splendid feature for the Mieses, Schlechter, Jannowski, Popiel, Na. Exposition management to work up and they would receive the hearty co-operation of Portland carsmen and also the North Pacific Association.

The club has determined to hold a ker early in April by which time officials hope to have the clubhouse moker 22, in the order named and boats in first-class shape, the house thrown open to inspection of member and their friends. It was also decide decided to furnish members, hereafter, with membership cards, as the club privileges have been used in the past by non-members and members in poor standing. The winning crews of pust years are also to be asked to furnish the club with their photographs, which will be hung at the lubhouse for the enlightenment of com-Ing generations. Referring to the falling away of the clubs from strictly amateur standing one of the members of the Portland Rowing ub board of directors stated, when asked the position of the club, that there was probably not a club in the West where a higher standard was insisted upon. No member but one has had the slightest taint of professionalism, and he was promptly dropped. As an example of what care was used to keep this standwill be adhered to.

rd, a recent instance was cited of comber who offered to row on a crew his duce were cancelled, and how the board promptly sat down on the propoch strictness and backbone in these degenerated times is refreshing.
