Portland won yesterday's game from Tacoma in the third inning, when Van Buren sent the ball over rightfield fence and brought in two runs, giving the locals the lead that won the game. After that great hit each side scored a run apiece It had been on the two days previous, and just in shape to please the ball-players, but at times the game dragged along rather slowly, and then the grandstand had to fall back on a corpulent gentlehad to fall back on a corpulent gentle-man from the land of bor steins and his decisions. Score: sauer kraut who was pulling for the Tigers to furnish amusement.

Each team presented a new catcher to the fans. Portland's new man was Shea, a California boy, who has been playing with the Pendleton team this season. The new man will take Manager Vigneux's place while the Portland catcher is out with his split finger. Shen arrived after an all-night trip on the road, and went into the game within a couple of hours after his arrival. He played a good game, and the way he threw down to second quite won the hearts of the Portland fans. Three men died at second through his assistance, and all of these stood a fair chance to score. Besides his throwing, he backed Witbeck up in great style. Keefe made his first appearance with Tacoma for this series. He was with the team before, but hurt his foot, and was left behind when the nine came here. However, when Zimmerman did not show up in form Keefe was sent for to go behind the bat. Keefe is a good catcher and supports his pitchers in every way, and at the same time joilles up the whole Witheck was not up to his usual form and did not hold the hits down as he generally does. He has been playing in rather hard luck during this series, and has come out considerably bruised. In the opening game Hormon hit him in the right shoulder, and that made his pitching arm a little sore, and then in Thursday's game he had a fall in coming home and hurt the other shoulder and ankle; so he was hardly in condition to pitch. White was in good form, but when the locals hit him they hit him hard, and half of the connections made with his elivery were for extra bases. Weed is still out of the game, and Harris again

The only feature of the first two innings was Shea's throwing out two Tigers at second, amid great applause. The third inning won the game for the locals. for, without Van Buren's homer, the boys would undoubtedly have been in a poor position. Muller, the second man up. to first on an error of Fisher's. As Van Buren came to the bat, one of the high officers in the Society of Home-Team Knockers, which has quite an extensive membership, dropped the remark that Van never had made a home run, and never could. The big "Rube" must have his usual bunting tactics and landed on the ball, and it went sailing out toward the post that marks the foul line of the right field fence. It that his the first his the right field fence. It just hit the top of the fence, bounded against a sign advertising some one's syrup, and then instead of dropping down into Mr. Murdock's hands, slid down the outside of the fence and Muller and Van Buren came in for the opening runs of the game. It looked as if Portland would score again in the fourth, and they probably would have if Harris had not been so anxious to reach second base after repping the sphere to centerfield. In his hur-Harris forgot that the rules required him to touch the first bag, and he took a short cut around the corner." Two of the men following him hit the ball along the infield in such a manner that Harris would have had little trouble in getting

Poor Harris. There is a saving that troubles never do come singly, and in his case the proverb is correct. In the next inning McCarthy got a safe hit and landed on first. Then Witbeck com-menced throwing the ball to Harris so the crowd could watch McCarthy do a circus stunt, allding back to the bag. The first two or three movements went all right, but then Harris failed to hold the ball, and McCarthy chased to second. Fisher seemed to like the looks of the first baseman's work, so he sent the ball skimming along the diamond straight for Harris, but when that gentleman tried to pick up the ball, he did not find it an easy task, and the leather rolled away from him. As he stopped to shake his hand and remark, "Oh! fudge!" the ball went still further, and by the time he picked it up McCarthy had scored. Portland had a close call in the seventh, but pulled out without letting in a on first. Keefe struck out, and White had his shirt hit by the ball and walked to first. Then the dangerous side of the situation became apparent when Letcher came to the bat, but the long-legged fielder gave Van Buren a nice fly, and somewhat relieved the strain. Nagle fell in line with a hit to left field that filled the bags with two out, and Murdock, a star hitter, came up next. He smashed a warm one into Deisel, who fielded it prettily to Anderson, and the work end-

A little bunch of errors let Anderson come in for Portland in the next inning. He got to first on a safe hit, and Ziegler sacrificed him to second. Then Harris sent the ball to McCarthy, who juggled it, and Anderson came racing home. The short stop recovered himself to throw the ball to the plate it time. the ball to the plate in time to get the runner by several feet, but Keefe could not hold the ball.

Cunningham will make his first appearance in the box for the locals today. The fans have been waiting patiently ever since the little fellow has been signed by the local club to see him work in the
