Woman's Tale Of Murdering Mate Doubted

SEATTLE, Nov. 11 (AP) — A Seattle judge who sentenced her to prison and the former chairman of the Board of Prison Terms and Paroles joined Saturday in asking a pardon for a woman they believe is innocent of a slaying she confessed.

The woman is Mrs. Violet Marie Sill, 37, serving five years for manslaughter in the shooting death of her husband, Marion, the night of July 11, 1954.

The pardon request sent to Gov. Langlie culminated two years persistent work on the part of Mrs. Sill's attorney, David Weyer, of Seattle, and others interested in her case.

Weyer, convinced from the first his client was innocent, continued his study of the case long after a jury of three women and nine men convicted her after deliberating 26 hours.

His long investigation, backed by Dr. Norman Hayner, University of Washington sociologist and former parole board chairman, led to truth serum tests at the state penitentiary in Walla Walla.

There, Mrs. Sill told what happened the frenzied night of July 11, when she was shot twice by her husband, and he was killed in turn when she grabbed the butt of the rifle he was using and it discharged in his face.

Her story, stubbornly held back through the years by what the investigators called a guilt complex and amnesia, was poured out while under the influence of sodium amytal, the so-called truth serum.
