Solon Says Voting Right Bill Possible For This Session

By WILMOT RERCHER

WASHINGTON Aug 12 (AP)—If civil rights supporters really want a voting rights bill House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said today they can get it easily at this session of Congress.

Sen Knowland of California Republican leader of the Senate indicated he thought some kind of legislation would be passed this year.

There has been substantial support for a voting rights bill that can and will be signed, Knowland told the Senate.

The House judiciary committee put before it a bill passed by the Senate last Thursday after nearly five weeks of debate.

Discussing the situation with reporters Rayburn said it was probable the bill would be sent to the House Rules committee tomorrow for clearance to a Senate-House conference.

Measures Differ

The Senate measure differs widely from a civil rights bill passed by the House June 21. These differences will have to be adjusted if Congress is to produce any civil rights legislation at all this year.

Compromise talk has centered on accepting the Senate bill with a limitation on the bill's controversial jury trial amendment. The limitation suggested would confine the guarantee of jury trials to voting rights cases rather than applying it to a wide field of injunction law.

Knowland took issue with Democratic claims that the Republicans are more interested in politics than getting an effective civil rights bill.

Record Defended

I'm getting a little fed up with this situation he said on the Senate floor. He defended the GOP's record on civil rights.

Sen Humphrey (D-Minn) who has been calling for a strong civil rights bill suggested that Senate and House leaders get together informally to try to work out a compromise.

Unless we bury the partisan hatchet we will get nowhere at all Humphrey said. Let's call a truce on partisan bickering. I just accomplishment not an issue.

Rayburn said that when the House reconvenes two different views on the legislation are present. The House could accept the Senate version he said or it could vote to narrow the jury trial amendment. But both these actions would require unanimous consent and Rayburn said he was sure someone would object.

Sen Johnson of Texas the Senate Democratic leader said civil rights is the key to adjournment of Congress.

Adjournment Seen

If we can get a bill we can get out of here by the middle or the last of next week he said.

The Senate's civil rights bill would authorize the attorney general to seek federal court injunctions against any violations of voting rights. Persons disobeying the injunctions could be charged with contempt of court.

Under the jury trial amendment all persons accused of criminal contempt for violating injunctions would be guaranteed jury trials not only in cases involving voting rights but in labor and antitrust cases and others.

Freight Derailed By Boy, 6

WINCHESTER Va Aug 12 (AP)—A Maryland boy was blamed for trains red to a freight train derailment here and estimated damages at more than $25,000.

Police said the boy told them he wanted to see a train go on two tracks. The youngster who police refused to identify accomplished this by throwing a switch beneath a halted Baltimore & Ohio freight in downtown Winchester Saturday.

Six of the trains 51 cars were derailed.

Winchester's entire traffic control light system was knocked out of service.

Four automobiles were smashed. Two of the cars were occupied at the time and their drivers escaped from the vehicles just before the impact.

One freight car rammed into the side of a grocery warehouse.

A power line was knocked down temporarily depriving part of the city of power.

Traffic had to be detoured for 14 hours.

There were no personal injuries.

B&O officials said the boy told them he liked to watch trains and talked with their crews. After giving railroad officials a demonstration of how he pulled the switch, he was turned over to his parents.

Police Lt Warren Rudolph said no official action was planned against the boy.
