ortsmanship Is Valuable Teaching In Scout Movement

(Editor's Note: Following is the of a series of articles written on value of scouting by prominent ens citizens.)

By EDWARD F. BAILEY
hairman Lane County Democratic Central Committee)

One of the finest lessons taught by Boy Scout organization is that clean living and good sportsman-. In this organization boys are t that the first requisites to suc-ully play the game are a clean thy body, an alert mind and the per training and discipline. Fur-more, the organization emphasizes importance of teamwork, the value operative effort and teaches that game should be played cleanly and rding to the rules.

Again boys are taught that no class distinctions exist or should be recog-d except those of merits achiev-by hard work and honest effort.

Finally, they learn that the ulti-goal of any game is not the mere ner, but that it is the amount of shown and honest effort put h that counts the most.

All of this teaching brings out and elops the finest and most desir-e qualities and instills in the boys ideals of true sportsmanship.

No finer equipment can be given boy with which to fight the bat-of life. As civilization grows more plex it becomes increasingly es-tial to success that one should have lthy body and alert mind, and be d trained for his chosen occupa-. He should recognize the value cooperative effort and realize that the long run it is hard work that ngs permanent success. He should sure his success by the beneficial lts achieved rather than by the ount of wealth he requires. He uld know how to play as well as to work. He should know how be modest in victory as well as e in defeat.

The Boy Scout movement makes a nderful contribution to the train-of boys to be useful citizens and ccessful men by instilling the prin-les of true sportsmanship.
