Stories in STAMPS

FLIGHT to THE WINGS of PEACE

It was a momentous event when, on Sept. 15, 1821, the old Capitania General de Guatemala, composed of the provinces of Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica, declared its independence from Spain and formed a federation. But shortly dissension arose and the provinces separated. Then came trouble in Nicaragua and the Department of Nicoya sought refuge in the neighboring country of Costa Rica, where peace and prosperity ruled.

So, despite its own government's claims, Nicoya seceded and became part of Costa Rica in 1824. Commemorating the 100th anniversary of this event, Costa Rica in 1924 issued two types of stamps, one of which, shown here, displayed a map of the province of Nicoya. The other showed a landscape of the city.
