RODMAN WOULD TEST LEGISLATORS

flen thereof before they be allowed to go to the state's capitol and make laws for every group and individual.

By 1940 there should be some ruling that legislators have at least a high school education or previous legislative experience. By four years later, the standards should be raised so as to make it compulsory that the legislators be graduates of the state university or college or some other institution of equal rating and that they be required to take an examination.

"Has is occurred to you, gentlemen, that there are only two classes of people who are not required to have qualifications for their work—garbage collectors and public officials?" the speaker said. Yet these public officials are permitted to dictate and make laws to all other professions and businesses where men must have training, examinations, and pass rigid qualifications, he added.

Apparently little thought is given to the calibre of the men entrusted to interpret and run government, Mr. Rodman pointed out.

The United States is not a democracy, but a republic. A republic is a government run through representation; a democracy is one directed by all people at once. "If a mob burns your courthouse, that is pure democracy in action," he commented.

During the past two decades or so, the American government has been deteriorating repidly from a republic. For the first 100 years of the republic, the brains were at the helm. Then men dropped out here and there to go into this or that profession or business, with result that from about 1900 on brains and statesmen have not been running the government, demagogues being in power. Since then it has been known something was wrong so laws and more laws have been made, with result the laws are doing away with the republic. It does not seem to have occurred to many that the calibre of the men in public offices may have something to do with the chaos that seems to be prevailing, the speaker commented.

Preceding Mr. Rodman's talk, Rev. Milton S. Weber, pastor of Central Presbyterian church and member of the club, gave a brief report on his recent trip east to attend the general assembly of his church. He commented particularly on three characters he had met: Rev. Lester Clee, who is due to be New Jersey's next governor; "Father Divine" and the peculiar hold he apparently has; and Dr. Fosdick. To observe "Father Divine" and one of his meetings is an interesting experience to see how people "are falling" for the set-up. There is much fine charity and spiritual character there, but they are all mixed up with a great deal of "hokum," was the way Rev. Mr. Weber expressed it.

Officers were nominated for the new year, election to be held next Wednesday. O. A. Houglum, nominating committee chairman, made the report, listing two slates, one headed by Crosby Owens as president, the other by Dr. Sam Tyler as president.

4-H Club Members Return Saturday

Lane county Four-H club members who have been attending the summer school at the state college at Corvallis since Monday, June 8, will arrive home Saturday, many of them on the Southern Pacific train.

The train will arrive in Eugene at 11:45 a. m., and at Cottage Grove at 12:37 p. m. R. C. Kuebner, county club leader, sends word to the parents to meet them at the train if possible. Others will be brought home by their parents or other relatives or by friends in cars.

One Bite of John Too Much for Dog

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—John Kozel petted a neighbor's dog. The dog bit him twice. Kozel called the police and ran to a doctor's office for treatment. When the police arrived they found the dog had died.

INSIDE "SUMMER RESORT"!

This scene of a summer resort greeted the crowds of visitors who attended the open house Monday evening of the men's department at McMorran and Washburne store. The show featured white and cream cotton suits for men for summer wear, with the colorful accessories necessary for summer apparel. Salesmen in the department all wore white summer suits carrying out the summer resort idea.

OFFICIALS MOVE TO CURB FEVER

after the rash has disappeared infectiousness may end; but in cases of running ears and other open secondary lesions contagiousness will last much longer. Observations have been made in which contagiousness has lasted twenty weeks after convalescence.

"As dangers for scarlet fever transmission we have (1) the typical cases themselves, (2) the cases in which we find persistant secondary suppurative lesions, and (3) carriers. In addition to these transmission by milk is not uncommon. Of course pasteurization of milk is the method for suppression.

"The hemolytic streptococcus is frequently the causative agent in sore throats and is often associated with the more severe forms of follicular tonsillitis. Some of these tonsillar infections may be accompanied by high fever and very severe illness. It has been interesting to observe that in severe streptococcus throat infections rashes develop that are difficult to distinguish from scarlet fever. But increased knowledge of scarlet fever makes it plain that these cases are nothing more or less than true scarlet fever.

"The family prysician should be called at once when any symptoms appear, and his advice must be rigidly obeyed, even in mild cases. The severity of a case depends largely upon the relationship between the virulence of the causative agent and the resistance of the individual.

"A recent report from the United States Public Health Service reveals that 34 percent of all deafness due to middle-ear infections is traced to scarlet fever.

"The prevention of scarlet fever depends upon two factors: Early recognition and proper isolation. Great care must be exercised to detect the first symptoms of sore throat in the presence of scarlet fever in the community."

PETERS JURY OUT

The jury in the case of the state against George Peters, charged with a statutory crime against a 15-year-old girl, retired for deliberation just before noon Wednesday and was still out at 2:30 p. m.

Total motor vehicle taxes paid by all motorists in 1935 amounted to $1,200,107,729, of which farmers paid 25 per cent.

Gram Under Fire At Labor Confab

KLAMATH FALLS, June 17.—(AP)—Charles H. Gram, state commissioner of labor, came under direct fire at the 34th convention of the Oregon state labor federation here today.

As the upshot of an attack launched by Agnes Quinn, Portland, business representative of the waitress' union, Gram's office will be investigated by a special committee of three previously appointed to assist the commissioner in raising funds to enforce the 48 hour law. Miss Quinn charged that money had been collected to enforce the 48 hour week law but that the law was not effective.

BLACK LEGION FOE IS FOUND BEATEN

DETROIT, June 17.—(AP)—Mrs. William H. Guthrie, who recently gave officers information about a Black Legion printing plant, was found in her home today suffering from a severe beating. She was taken to a hospital.

Mrs. Guthrie, who was found bound and gagged, apparently suffered a fractured skull and broken ribs, physicians said. They said her condition was serious, and that she could not talk coherently.

The woman told police two weeks ago that her husband had printed Black Legion literature on a hidden printing press, and that she had lived in terror for months since she had been initiated into the auxiliary of the terrorist organization. Her husband is sought.

Only One Coalition Man Wins in Maine

AUGUSTA, Me., June 17.—(U.P.)—Complete unofficial returns showed today that one of four Dr. Townsend or Father Coughlin-endorsed candidates was successful in yesterday's primaries, with a second announcing he would demand a recount.

James C. Oliver, who had the backing of the Townsend and Coughlin forces, easily won the republican congressional nomination in the first district. In the democratic fight for congressional nomination from the first district, the Coughlin-Townsend-approved Joseph W. Connolly finished ony 47 votes behind the incumbent, Rep. Simon M. Hamlin.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON MORSE STATUS

No official expression as to the ineligibility of Dean Wayne L. Morse to serve on the city civil service commission or of amending the ordinance to permit eligibility on the commission for those who have their principal place of business in Eugene has been made here, it was pointed out to correct an impression created by a news article not carried in this newspaper.

Any action upon the eligibility of Dean Morse to serve as a member of the group will be taken at the meeting of the city council here next Monday night.

The commission has submitted to the council the proposal that the ordinance be changed to permit Dean Morse, who raised the question of his own eligibility last Friday, to remain as chairman on the commission. Dean Morse pointed out at that time that he had not resided in the city for the complete three years immediately prior to his appointment to the commission as is demanded by the present ordinance. Dean Morse at present resides in the city.

Members of the council said Wednesday they had made no official announcement of their positions on the proposed change and Mayor Elisha Large said he had not discussed the subject with any councilmen.

Mayor Large made the clear statement that he did not feel any person should be permitted to serve on the commission "after he moves out of the city."

He pointed out that all members of other city administrative bodies were required to be residents of the city and he was of the opinion the same should apply to members of the civil service commission while they serve. Mr. Large said his expression was purely personal and was not to be construed as official.

Appointive power for the commission is vested in the council.

Relief Allotment Would Top Quota

SALEM, Or., June 17.—(U.P.)—If the Oregon liquor control commission gives $150,000 to relief every month for the rest of the year, it will exceed Governor Martin's $1,800,000 annual maximum for the unemployed by nearly $131,000, officials pointed out today. Governor Martin will return tomorrow from a highway tour and delve into the relief question.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., June 17.—(AP)—Beatrice Moore viewed the body of Jean Philip Gebhardt today and authorities quoted her as saying the suicide victim "resembled in every respect" the tall, thin man who called to see her inventor-father, D. McFarlan Moore, nine hours before he was found slain.

Beard's Observes 14th Anniversary; Has Rapid Growth

Beard's celebrated its 14th anniversary here Wednesday as the men's apparel store which has grown from a small shop conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Beard and a single clerk to the biggest and most complete women's wear shop in Lane county.

Eleven employes are now on the regular staff at Beard's which features the same lines as big stores and has direct connections with New York buyers to insure the latest advances in styles that are in good taste.

"We have built our business on quality merchandise sold as near popular price as possible," said Mr. and Mrs. Beard. The store was moved to its present location at 844 Willamette four years ago after the growing business had made the old store at 856 Willamette inadequate.
