Livestock Men to Go After National Convention.

SIX DELEGATES WILL BE SENT

Good Showing Will Be Made at Kansas City Meeting in January-State Association Favors More Liberal Premiums at State Fair.

Delegates to the National Livestock Convention, to be held at Kansas City in January, were elected yesterday at the special meeting of the Oregon Livestock Breeders' Association, which was held in the office of M. D. Wisdom, in the Hamilton building. D. H. Looney, Dr. James Withycombe, W. J. Townley, E. Waterman, H. West and Richard Scott are the six delegates that will represent the association, but a vigorous effort will be made by the members to eilr up enthusiasm in the excursion that the Board of Trade and other business organizations of the city are planning for that time. A combined effort will be made to bring the 1904 convention to Port-agricultural and mineral resources of Oregon have been advertised through the East, but as yet there has been no effort made to show up the great possibilities in the livestock industry," was the general expression of the dele-gates. They believe that Oregon can make a great showing in livestock, and resolved to put forth every effort to advertise the great possibilities of the state in this line. Their first effort, however, will be to induce the establishment of a large packing industry in the state. The lack of market, they say, is the only drawback to the ruleing of livestock. "While there is practically no market live hogs," said one of the delegates, " shipping in pork products from th of Corvallis "If this state has anything," said he, "It certainly possesses advantages that are conducive to the perfect growing of livestock. We have the feed, climate and all conditions that are necessary. There is one serious problem, however, that confronts the growers, and that is the question of a market. This is due to the fact that we have no adequate packing facilities. A mammoth plant should be established in Portland, so that all of the stock that could be shipped in Oregon of a market for the products. imports pork products from other se tions, and yet it is an easy thing to flood the market with live hogs.

"I would also like to urge the necessity of making a good exhibit at the Interna-tional Livestock Convention, that will be held in Chicago in 1963. Oregon is well suited for the production of first-class breeding stock, which could well invade the Eastern market. The Chicago fair is one of the greatest livestock exhibitions in the world, and we should have a repgesentative shipment there at that time An an example, I would cite the long-tooled sheep that can be raised in Orecon. No place in the world, not even Canada, can equal us in this product. Oregon has all of the conditions conducive to their best growth."

Liberal Premiums for State Feir. The afternoon session was given mostly to committee work. The committee on premium rates for the State Fair, however, was the only one to make a report. There seemed to be some misunderstand-ing as to the time of meeting, and a number of delegates attended in the afternoon, thinking that was the time for the regular meeting. The only important step at the afternoon session was in regard to the premium rates. The delegates thought that if there were more liberal premiums offered at the State Fair it would act as a stimulus to induce a greater effort in the raising of fine breeding stock. A motion by D. H. Looney, seconded by William Ladd, ask-ing the State Legislature to make a larger appropriation to be used in increasing the premiums for livestock at the State Fair,

The report of the committee on revision of the premium list at the State Fair advised some changes—that some classes be added to the jist and that some of the premiums be increased.

On cattle of all breeds the old list of 1902 was adopted, but the following additions were made: Milch cows, 2 years or under, any breed, bred and owned by exhibitor. On sheep there was no change in the classes, but a larger premium was asked on each breed. On swine one class was added to the 1902 list: Boar, any age, with four of his get, not to exceed 18 months of age, to be bred and owned by exhibitor. It was also recommended to make a general increase of 25 per cent on hogs.

TREES COME FROM EAST Orchardists Who Do Not Patronise Home Industry.

The fact that young fruit trees are being imported into this state in large numbers from the East is a source of sorrow to orchardists, who fear the in-troduction of new pests in this way. Colonel H. E. Dosch says that within the past week or two 50 boxes of these Eastern fruit trees have arrived here. A short time ago a lot of apple trees from lowa arrived. They were found to be literally covered with the woolly aphis, and they were ordered burned by R. H. Webber, Commissioner for the Fourth District. Just how to account for this importation of trees which should be raised here Colonel Dosch did not know, and he could not imagine what local nurserymen were thinking of, to render this possible. If the trees arriv-ing were special varieties, there might be grown here, and that all orchardists uid be patriotic enough to patronize ne industry. dealer in seeds, trees, etc., when asked for information, stated that there are very few young fruit trees in this state at present. During the hard times of several years past, nurserymen lost so much money that many of them went out of business, and those still in the business have let their stocks run down. The scarcity of young trees and the high prices asked for them are what has caused so many trees to be imported. Cherry trees are especially scarce, and are held at $25 to $50 per 100 for one-year-old trees, and surserymen cannot fill orders. SetNert Bros., of The Dalles, have already bought 6000 young cherry trees, and want 6000 more, all of the Royal Anne species. It is supposed that they must be ness have let their stocks run down. TO SELECT CLARK'S SWORD Testimonial Committee Will Meet Today to Choose Design.

The Admiral Clark testimonial mittee will meet today at the United States National Bank to select the design for the sword to be presented to Admiral Clark, of the battle-ship Oregon. A meet-ing was set for Wednesday, but as too few designs had been received, the matter was deferred. The three designs submitted are all extremely beautiful, and the committee will probably have to do some hard thinking before the most appropri-ate and tasteful design is selected.

Much to the joy of Colonel R. W. Mitch-ell, a few more subscriptions are coming in at the last moment. Two prominent citizens of Prineville, who attended the Irrigation Convention, called on him yes-terday and promised $100 from their town, "If all the towns of the state would do as well," said the Colonel yesterday, "we would soon have sufficient funds to order the sword, Baker City, La Grande, The Dalles and Pendleton have not yet done their share. It is very probable that Admiral Clark will come out here to receive value in drinks or cigars—not in money, the sword, a patriotic testimonial which One check is worth one glass of beer. as so long been neglected by the people of Oregon.

GAMBLERS WIN TEST CASE

JURY ACQUITS MEN ARRESTED IN PORTLAND CLUB.

Defense Admits That Keno Was Played for Drinks and Cigars to Help Out Business.

A recent gaming contest at the Portland Club, Fifth and Alder streets, for drinks or cigars, or other representatives of value, was inquired into yesterday by a jury sitting in the Municipal Court. It was a test case. The exact charges against the defendants, James Brown, Ed Beyer, Mel Long, A. R. Lamb and Frank Fletcher, was that they "did engage in and play and at and bet at and upon a game called keno, then and there with cards with certain numbers thereon, and wooden balls with numbers thereon, and tables and other devices; salf game being then and there played for money, checks, credits, and other representatives of value. " It was admitted that the defendants played and took chances in winning drinks or cigars. The jury, after four minutes' consideration, returned a verdict of not guilty. Considerable trouble was experienced in getting a jury. Henry McCraken, was called as a juror, stated, in part: do not believe in the policy of the present administration. I am in favor of a wide-open town, because I feel it is best for the town." He was excused. Herman the town." He was excused. Herman Wittenberg, who was also excused, stated: "I want to see every law and every ordinance enforced to the letter, without respect to favor. If we have bad laws, I wish them repealed." Ultimately these jurors were accepted: I. P. Beno. W. R. William Breen. The prosecution was conducted by Deputy City Attorney Fitzger-ald, who cleverly illustrated to the jury how keno was played, in such a manner as to cause former gamblers in the court-room to look at him with marked respect, Henry E. McGinn appeared for the de-

The first witness called was Police Sergeant Church, who testified: "November 7, Policeman Carpenter and I went to the Portland Club, about 9 o'clock in the ening, and found these five defendants playing keno. Mel Long was dealing, and the others were playing with checks for trade. Each check was purchased from the cashier for 10 cents, and the winner, as I understand it, got the checks redeemed for drinks or cigars, downstairs in the saloon. There was $4.50 in money on the gaming table, and we took it, along with the keno outfit, for evidence,

"Did you see any money change hands on that occasion?" asked Mr. McGinn. "I did not. They would not change money, while I was there," and several jurymen smiled. Policeman Carpenter corroborated.

"This is a test case," frankly admitted the only witness for the defense, Peter Grant, manager of the Portland Club, "On the night before the raid we were playing with checks for drinks or cigars. and the police came in and told us to stop, and we did stop. I thought about the matter, and did not see why we should not have something of the sort to help trade, just the same as a cigar dealer has a nickel-in-the-slot machine to help him sell cigars. I know one cigar dealer who says that it means $50 more per day to him to have these machines in his store Well, we determined to make a test case of it, by having a keno game for trade only. Then the police came the second time, and made the arrests, but I was not present on that occasion. Each check costs 10 cents, and the man who wins gets The house does not make a percentage, It is almost the same as the nickel-in-the

"Suppose 100 men were playing who had paid 10 cents each, and suppose one man won the pot; would you be willing to give him money in exchange, at a reduction, if a trade could be arranged?" asked Mr. Fitzgerald.

"I have not done that so far, but I don't know what I may do in the future, as a business proposition," replied the witess, calmly. Mr. Fitzgerald argued that the defend-ants had violated the ordinance, and were gullty of gambling. He cited numerous decisions from other state cases, in support of his contention, and asked the jury to remember that they swore to try the case on the facts and the evidence. Mr. McGinn retorted that the opposing lawyer was not sincere in his statements, and that Mr. Fitzgerald's affected zeal was not real.

"Public sentiment is not behind this sort of prosecution—it is time to quit," went on Mr. McGinn. "If this is the law as my learned friend interprets it, I will willingly leave the city. I never gambled in my life, and I defy my friend to prove it."

Mr. Fitzgerald replied: "I am in ear-My desire is to see the law en-. It distresses me to see good men come into this court and take oaths to try cases according to the law and the evidence, and then go back on these same

MR. SHIELDS GOES EAST Secure Attractions for Nex Summer's Amusements.

Edward Shields, whose new card reads 'Proprietor Shields' Park, Portland, Or., and Director-General Shields' Northwest Park Circuit," left last night for Chicago and the East, accompanied by Mrs. Shields. He will be absent about six weeks, and will visit Washington, New York and other Eastern cities. Mr. Shields has been the star lecturer for the Chicago Daily News in the schools for several Winters, and was in receipt of an urgent letter only yesterday from that paper, asking him to be on hand for the oming lecture course.

In speaking of his trip last night to an pregonian representative, he said:
"I have resided in the East so long that I feel as if I must keep up my acquaint-ance there, although I intend to make Portland my future home. I have lectured in the Chicago schools for the Daily News for several Winters. Heretofore I gave illustrated talks on 'A Trip Across the Continent' and 'The Life of McKin-ley,' but this time I will illustrate 'Where

Rolls the Oregon' as a forerunner for the 1905 Fair. Mr. Welster is making the slides for me. "My real object, however, in going East at the present time is to book attra for my Summer parks. It is hard to induce Eastern performers to come 'way out to the Pacific Coast, but I shall be in position to offer them 20 weeks, and the people of Portland will have a chance to see fine talent next Summer at Shields' Park. Nothing will be too good or expensive for my patrons."

Before Mr. Shields came West last Spring he was slated as manager for a new stock theater in Louisville, but his ventures here proved so successful that he sent in his resignation some time ago, Mrs. Shields, who is professionally known as Helen Lamar, will introduce over the Eastern vaudeville circuits "Her Last Letter," the beautiful transformation act that made such a pleasing hit at Shields' Park last Summer.

An interesting member of the Shields company to depart was Miss Lamar's big Irish setter. Flirt is her dogship's name and this will be her eighth round-up be-tween Portland and Chicago. She has been in 37 different states, has taken first prize in two of the hig dog shows in Chi-cago, and is known as the dog model, havng posed in a score of illustrated song and all of her mistress' transformations. Several years ago Flirt cut quite a figure in a play in which Miss Lamar took part but she disgraced herself one night in Denver. The second act of the play opened with Miss Lamar, a little girl and Flirt. At a certain time Flirt wo her master was coming, which made a big hit. This night in Deurer the "business" was entirely changed, The hoisting apparatus of the drop-ourtain was not in good repair, and every time the curtain went up it made a squeaky noise like a carnival squawker.

Flirt was very much annoyed with this state of affairs, and looked up in an inkuiring manner. A gallery god added fuel to the flame by yelling "Cats!" Flirt was wild with rage, and it was all off when another under-roof auditor cried "Sick 'em!" The dog cleared the foot-lights with a bound and landed on the plane. In his hurried attempt to get our of harm's way the musical director fell off the stool and broke his glasses, and the whole house was in an uproar. It only lasted for a moment, for Fiirt seemed to realize what a fool she had made of herself and sneaked back to her rug and went on with the scene and took up her cue as if nothing had happened. She was obliged to take a curtain-call at the end
