Rumor of Car Bargain Takes Place of 'Disc' Tales

Now that the flying disc stories have almost ceased, Eugeneans have found another rumor to aid and abet, this time devoted to the more common vehicle, the automobile.

Like the flying disc stories, this tale also has a hundred versions, none of which have been proved by police.

The gist of the rumor is that a 1946 Buick in which a local man (name unknown) committed suicide, is for sale for $300, or $600 or $800, depending on which version of the story you hear.

Informants, most of whom will say: "Don't tell anybody until I get a chance to look at it," don't know who committed suicide in the car, and what is even worse, they don't know where the car is.

Most of the story tellers agree that the car is a 1946 Buick, but some say it is a two-door, others a sedan. It is green, blue and tan, depending on who tells the story. Most versions of the tale say it is on the city's west side, although it also has been "seen" in Harrisburg, Albany, Salem, Portland, and the College Crest area.

'Witnesses' Found

City Police Officers Chris Pedersen, who checked the story in the line of duty, but also out of curiosity, went to Harrisburg, where a car dealer said he had seen the vehicle with his very own eyes. He said it was blue. But another dealer across the street said it was green. Pedersen didn't find the car.

One version of the story is that the driver committed suicide on the Mojave Desert and the car was there four months before being found. The hot sun ruined the paint and rubber; that's why it is for sale cheap. But other versions say the man committed suicide in the woods near Salem, or any one of several other places.

Numerous persons have contacted police in person and by phone to ask the location of the car. "It's just a wild tale making the rounds," police said Friday "but it gives people something to talk about."

Construction on ORC Buildings Due Soon

Work is expected to start sometime early this month on the Oregon Organized Reserve physical plant at Twelfth and Almaden, behind the airport homes, according to Sgt. Cloyd B. Rufkahr, in charge of the reserve office.

Contract for the erection of three quonset huts and construction of a parking area was let July 1 to A. R. Nieman Construction Co., Vancouver Wash., and 90 calendar days were allowed for completion of construction.

The buildings will be used for an office, a training and supply hut, and a recreation hall. Upon completion of the project, the ORC office, now situated in Room 7, basement, new postoffice building, will move to the new buildings.

Stolen Creamery Truck Recovered; Youths Flee

A Medo-Land Creamery truck, reported stolen Thursday night, was recovered by city police when it ran onto a lawn at 557 Sixteenth Ave. W. shortly after midnight Friday. Police said two youths operating the truck fled.

According to witnesses, the truck was driven at a high rate of speed around the corner of Washington St., running over the curb and damaging the lawn. The truck, undamaged, was turned over to company officials, while police sought the two thieves.

Eugene and Springfield cadets are requested to be at Condon School from 8 to 9 a.m. Monday for instruction. Wise said one Oregon cadet will be sent to Oklahoma City later in the month for the national encampment of the CAP.

Girl cadets will visit McChord Field August 31.
