Clairvoyant Believed to Be Fleeing to Germany.

BUT HE MAY BE EXTRADITED

Two Montavilla Women Would Like to Get Second Sight of Seer Who De-frauded Them of $1050.

The detectives have at last located De Amandus, the smooth clairvoyant who recently defrauded two Montavilla women out of $1050.

"If De Amandus can be brought here," he said, "there is plenty of evidence to convict him."

Detective Coriano, who has been working on the case since De Amandus disappeared, thinks there is no question as to the man's identity.

As soon as it was announced that the clairvoyant had swindled the women out of $1050, the case was turned over to the chief of police.

"Amandus sailed for Germany January 10 from Hoboken, N. J., steamer Graf Waldersee, due Hamburg 20th instant, under name of C. A. Heise, second cabin, ticket number 8678, James J. Lougan, Captain, Detective Bureau."

The officers think the vessel will probably be a day or two late, and will decide upon their course of action in time to catch Hamburg, and get the man before he leaves the ship.

By taking advantage of the superstitious disposition of the two Montavilla women, De Amandus made them think he could perform miracles.

"I will have that man brought back if there is any chance," said Deputy Prosecuting Attorney A. C. Spencer yesterday.

"Or at least it ought to be," said he, after a moment's thought. "I have not looked into our treaties with Germany, but I think we will have no trouble in bringing him back, if we can prove that he is the right man."

"Well," replied Governor Chamberlain, in response to a question from the Oregonian, over the long distance telephone.

"Do you think the offense is grave enough to warrant bringing him back?" he was asked.

"Certainly so," he replied. "For a man to take advantage of poor women and rob them out of their last cent is a grave offense."

WOULD MEAN SLAVERY.

Introduction of Coolie Labor in the Philippines Strongly Denounced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Dr. Felix Adler, in an address in Carnegie Hall, Sunday, on "Anti-Democratic Tendencies in American Life," in regard to Professor Jenks' recommendation for the introduction of coolie labor in America's Philippine possessions:

"My contention is that this proposition is to establish human slavery 30 years after we went through war and human bloodshed to banish this evil from our Nation forever. The coolie contract is no contract. The essence of a contract is the fact that it can be broken."

to reopen the All-Nations saloon, an application for which had been rejected.

"You and I signed it at the committee meeting," said Carlwell to Bentley. "But, in an audible whisper, he sent Zimmerman to sign and Zimmerman would not sign."

"What process," asked Mr. Bentley abruptly of Deputy City Auditor Lotan, "must Patterson go through in order to secure a license without the report of the license committee?"

COUNCILMAN FOELLER BACK.

While in the East He Advised Oregon's Balmly Climate.

Councilman Matt Foeller has returned from a three weeks' trip to the Eastern cities, and he was glad to find himself again in the temperate climate of Oregon.

"I don't like to see the minority report go in," said Bentley. "I wouldn't," said Carlwell. "I do not like minority reports."

"Mr. Patterson," declared Sigler, "has the right to come before us if no report should be returned."

"I do not think there is any fair play in this," said Patterson, reflectively. "If I should keep a disorderly place you may arrest me or revoke my license. I do not like to see my neighbors doing things that I cannot do and running a business in a way that I cannot run mine."

"The Merril all-night saloon ordinance, which has had a rest of more than a month, was recommended for indefinite postponement."

"Excuse me, my mind is already made up," said Sigler. "Let the Council make the laws and the executive department enforce them."

Mrs. Hughson, of Chicago, whose letter follows, is another woman in high position who owes her health to the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appetite was fitful, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, until I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired."

Mrs. Pinkham tells how ordinary tasks produce displacements. Apparently trifling incidents in woman's daily life frequently produce displacements of the womb.

Mrs. Leah Stowell, 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—You are indeed a godsend to women, and if they all knew what you could do for them, there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony."

Compound can always be relied upon to restore health to women who thus suffer. It is a sovereign cure for the worst forms of female complaints.
