THE PAPER MILL.

The East Oregonian hopes that Mr. Fred Walters will succeed in working his paper mill plans to a successful basis. It will bring a monthly payroll and regular monthly payrolls build up cities. Pendleton has now quite a liberal distribution of monthly wages, and is strong because of it. Another added will proportionately strengthen the place. Mr. Walters' enterprise, is a cash value. The enterprise and his ideas certainly have the backing of the citizens. All encouragement should be his, and all will hope that success may crown his efforts. People living in the country, too, are interested. A paper mill will make a market for surplus straw, which, now almost waste, would be a cash asset. The enterprise would thus benefit both city and country, and for this reason Mr. Walters deserves the assistance to the extent of each citizen's ability to contribute towards the desired end. The East Oregonian wishes Mr. Walters bon voyage as he sails further along the industrial seas, bearing better times for the ... city.

GOOD ROADS MEETING.

It would be a good idea were Umatilla county to have a good roads convention. Throughout the Inland Empire, the subject of improvement of highways is receiving attention. This county needs to give to it the careful study that must precede permanent making of avenues of local transportation such as are needed. A meeting in which supervisors and superintendents and county officials and citizens conferred would contribute towards the end that every one desires. Those who observed the proceedings of the Walla Walla convention believed it justified the slight expense and that it has aroused a sentiment that otherwise would have remained dormant. Umatilla county can afford to pay the same heed to the general movement that is to give the Inland Empire better highways. The East Oregonian would willingly lend aid in giving the enterprise publicity and assisting in securing a large attendance.

LONG'S TENURE.

Secretary John D. Long, who holds the naval portfolio, says he will not resign so long as he is under fire. Then, Mr. Long is destined to never resign, for he will be under fire just during the time in which he shows his head in public as an official. The American people regard him as an enemy of their personal friend, Rear-Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, and they resent effronts offered to their chums. This American people will keep their ammunition wagons filled and their lines on communication open and their gunners—the press—well drilled. The instructions these people have given to their gunners is to hit everything that looks like John D. Long, hence he is not likely soon to have the pleasure of slipping quietly out from public view.

CANNOT SUPPORT GEER.

The logic of the situation in Portland is this: The Corbett-Scott element in the republican party cannot support Mr. Geer, because they are against Mr. Simon, and Mr. Simon and Mr. Geer are working together in this campaign. To support Mr. Geer means to support Mr. Simon, and this the Corbett-Scott element cannot consistently do after the revelations made as to the doctoring of the Multnomah county election board in the Simon interest. That element is certainly between the devil and the deep sea, and only one course remains—to jump over obstructions, or fight a way through them, and then come up here in the bunchgrass region and select a candidate, who is not affiliant with either Mr. Geer or Mr. Simon.

SHOW YOUR COLORS.

The Salem Statesman asserts that no eastern Oregon republican journal is supporting a candidate from this part of the state for the office of governor. The Statesman has overlooked many expressions that have come to the attention of the exchange reader of the East Oregonian, yet it is true that the eastern Oregon republican papers are slow to take advantage of the situation to come out openly for their men. "Show your colors" is a good motto to offer to these journals just now. Candidates will have little debt of gratitude towards these silent papers in the event they receive recognition in the republican convention.

PLAIN TALK ABOUT CUBA.

New York Herald.—The refusal of congress to give the quick relief which is conceded all around to be essential to the salvation of Cuba, is a spectacle of selfish greed, stupidity and dishonesty for which there can be found no parallel.

As a bold exhibition of "pelf before patriotism" it is well calculated to disgust the country with the republican party and protection and cause a wide spread reaction in favor of the democrats, reorganized under wise leadership. Its inevitable effect, if madly persisted in, must either be ruin and consequent anarchy in Cuba which would be a worse evil at our doors than that for which he went to war with Spain, or forced annexation at the cost of the very interests which are now greatly bent on preventing any concessions.

Viewed as an economical or commercial policy, it is condemned as short sighted and blundering even to protectionists, who realize the value of reciprocity in attractive markets for American products in a prosperous Cuba drawing her supplies from the United States. On this point the action of Mr. H. S. Frye, in resigning the presidency of the New England Tobacco Growers Association in protest with its selfish policy has a most thrilling significance. He declares that "a reduction of 50 per cent in the duty on Cuban tobacco would not seriously injure any tobacco interests in the United States, that every economic consideration demands that the United States should control the markets of Cuba, and that the only way to do this is to open our markets to her sugar and tobacco products."

But, as Mr. Cleveland has declared, higher and more commanding than all political, economic or commercial questions are "the consideration of morality and conscience involved." The paramount issue is one of national honor and plighted faith.

The United States went to war for the sole purpose, solemnly vowed by congress to the American people and the world, of freeing Cuba from oppression and securing her independence. It spent millions for her emancipation. It then assumed her guardianship that she might be saved from destitution, prepared for self-government and her republic established on a firm basis. To this end, and for its own advantage, it has imposed conditions which make Cuba practically a ward of the United States without freedom to treat with foreign nations.

Have we rescued Cuba from oppression and devastation at the cost of unlimited treasure and blood only to abandon her to suffering and starvation at the instance of petty selfish interests? Have we undertaken to secure her beneficient government only to sacrifice her to anarchy? Have we pledged her independence only to drive her to annexation?

Shame on a congress that refuses to a struggling portege of the nation the needed relief prompted by national interest as well as common humanity, and which cannot be withheld without breach of pledged faith and national dishonor!

New York Evening Post.—The cry of helpless and despairing Cuba has been much in our ears of late. Her need is great. The powerful appeal of the weak to the strong has been hers. To the eye of pity she presents a moving spectacle—tearfully imploring her liberators not to become her destroyers. But if she could believe this morning's dispatches, we would think our own national plight more calamitous than Cuba's. For to be without food is less grevious than to be devoid of honor and humanity; a bankrupt treasury can be better endured than broken promises' and beggery is to be preferred to callous greed. And if it were true that the house of representatives had deliberately concludede to turn a deaf ear to Cuba's plea, this nation would have brought itself lower than Cuba ever was or can be. She is only to be pitied: we, if the ways and means committee allows itself to be bestridden by Oxnard and his kind, will be justly hated and despised.

In this aspect of the matter, our need is really greater than Cuba's. She requires succor; what we appear to lack is honesty and manly good faith. Her extremity is, in reality, a searching test of our nation character. Have we the courage to face the consequences of our own actions? Can we be fair and considerate? Of a certain Duke of York Mr. Goodwin Smith has genially observed that the "only meritorious action of his life was that he once risked in a duel, is such a reproach to be visited upon the United States?" We fought a duel with Spain for the rescue of Cuba. Are we now to make her last state worse than the first? Are we to ruin her industrially while ruining ourselves morally?

These are the questions which the talk from Washington of bad faith with Cuba would bite into the American conscience.

New York Herald— "It will be impossible for me or for anyone else to establish a strong and stable government in Cuba unless tariff concessions are made to us by the United States.

"I say this after having studied the situation in all its phases. It is the statement of facts that I believe to be absolutely correct, and it is for the American people to realize their full significance."

That is the firm conviction, deliberately expressed in yesterday's Herald of Senor Palma, the patriot, whom the Cuban people called to be their first president.

It is supported by the views of Governor General Wood, Secretary Root and leading representatives of Cuba to the effect that relief withheld means ruin, and ruin means anarchy. It is emphasized by the cries of distress and appeals for succor that are pouring into Washington, showing that Cuba is fast nearing an industrial crisis and will be ruined unless a helping hand is quickly held out.

In a word, relief is essential to the salvation of the island and realization of the republic. It must be adequate and, above all, it must be speedy.

American sentiment commands "give it at once!" Every reason that prompted the emancipation of Cuba dictates that this be done. The nation is bound "by every consideration of honor and national interest," as President Roosevelt declared in his first message to congress, to do it.

Despite all this, the way is blocked by a few protectionists at the instance of selfish interests bent on defeating relief or delaying it until it will be of no avail.

That is the situation on which President Roosevelt, as the head of the administration, and leader of the republican party, cannot afford to look without grave concern. Cuba cannot be sacrificed by protectionist truckling without an indelible stigma on the administration. Its people cannot be abandoned to anarchy that may call for another war without wrecking the republican party. It is a crisis in which the republicans are making history. They are establishing a record by which they will be judged hereafter. Let them beware for their own interests lest they give the democrats an issue that will bear them on to victory.

All these are vital considerations that President Roosevelt may well impress upon congress with his characteristic force and courage. A ringing special message would stir the country and rally to the support of the people with a promptness and effect that would soon bring congress to a sense of duty. That body should be given to understand that the administration and the country deem action imperative and delay fatal. Far more critical is the situation now than when Mr. Roosevelt urged two months ago "the vital need" of relief and "the weighty reasons of morality and national interest" for extending it.

What the outcome involves was thus pictured by President Palma in yesterday's Herald:

"Looking only two years ahead I can see a thriving republic just off your shores, our people prosperous and happy, owning their own little homes and having enough money to spend at least $150,000,000 a year in buying your natural and manufactured products.

"When I think of that picture I cannot bear to look upon the dread alternative of ruin and anarchy."

the chief adjunct of beauty, is now placed within the reach of every one by means of Newbro's Herpicide, a new scientific discovery that effectually destroys the microbes responsible for all scalp diseases.

It not only makes dandruff and falling hair things of the past, but invigorates the hair roots, causing a soft, thick growth to supplant the old thin and brittle one. Here is what one happy woman says:—

PHILIPSBURG, MONT., Nov. 25, '99.
My hair was coming out very rapidly, and in places was entirely bald; and calling on our physician he strongly recommended Herpicide to me, and after three or four applications my hair stopped falling, and is coming in again quite thick. I used to be troubled with dandruff, of which I am cured, so you see I have cause to praise Newbro's Herpicide. MRS. MARY GREGOVICH.

A Poor Way To Treat CATARRH

No one would be so foolish as to kindle the fire on top of a pot to make it boil, yet the treatment of Catarrh is often just as senseless and illogical. Douches, sprays, ointments, so-called tobacco cures, and various other applications, are diligently used, but the little good accomplished is swept away by the first breath of winter. When you attempt to cure a constitutional disease—one affecting the entire system—with purely local remedies, you are applying the fire to the top of the pot, you are doctoring symptoms, and, like thousands of others, get disappointing results. In Chronic Catarrh, the whole system becomes involved, the entire mucous membrane, or inner covering of the body, is in a state of high inflammation. The pressure of blood upon the glands and cells produce excessive secretion of mucus, much of which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body. In this way the stomach, kidneys and intestines are often seriously affected.

The nose, throat and ears are most frequently attacked by this foul disease, because the mucous lining is exposed to the cold, damp air, which attracts the vitiated blood to the surface, causing congestion of the little blood vessels and glands, making breathing difficult and labored; the throat becomes parched and dry; the hot, watery discharge from the nose gradually changes to a yellowish color and becoming more profuse and tenacious, drops back into the throat, causing gagging and almost constant coughing to dislodge it. This offensive discharge, in spite of all precautions, finds its way into the stomach, and extreme nausea and an obstinate form of dyspepsia follow.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1901.
I had a bad case of Catarrh; my nose was always stopped up and my head ached continually, and the odor of my breath was sickening. I had a most annoying cough, also. I tried a number of remedies and was treated by several doctors, but got no relief—my case was thought to be incurable. S. S. S. being recommended to me, I began its use, and after taking nine bottles was cured, and have never been troubled with Catarrh since. MISS MARY L. STORM, 601 Francis Street.

Blinding headaches, neuralgia of the eyes and dizziness are also symptoms of this disease, and when the inflammation reaches the delicate mechanism of the ear, hearing is lost, and, as the blood becomes more deeply poisoned, the tissues and soft bones in the head are eaten out, greatly disfiguring the face. At this stage of Catarrh the breath becomes insufferably offensive. S. S. S. is the simplest and most effective treatment for Catarrh, and when taken into the circulation reaches all parts of the system and cleanses the blood of all Catarrhal matter and restores it to a normal condition. When rich, new blood begins to flow through the veins, the obstructed glands and broken down cells resume their natural functions, and the hot and inflamed membranes are lubricated and moistened with a soothing healing fluid that quickly brings relief to the congested parts. S. S. S. puts the blood in such perfect condition and so strengthens and invigorates the general health that the local manifestations of the disease gradually disappear, the discharge from the nose ceases, the head clears, breathing becomes easy and natural, the appetite improves, and a perfect and permanent cure is effected.

SSS

S. S. S. is the only guaranteed purely vegetable blood purifier. It contains no minerals to further poison the blood and derange the digestion, but can be taken with perfect safety in all stages and forms of Catarrh. Our physicians will gladly advise, without charge, all who write them about their case. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.
