Cottolene

"The Natural Shortening"

Try this recipe for making orange layer cake

Cream one-half cup Cottolene with one cup of sugar until very light. Add three eggs, one at a time, beating in each for five minutes before adding another.

Then sift two teaspoons of baking powder with two cups of sifted flour, mixing thoroughly, and add to the other materials, alternating with a half cup of milk or water—(water if the cake is to be eaten while fresh).

Beat the batter well after all the ingredients are in. Bake in 2 layers in a moderately hot oven for about 20 minutes.

Cottolene is superior to anything else you can use for shortening or frying. It is wholesome, its use is simple, and it gives a delicious flavor to all foods that are shortened with or fried in it.

Order a regular supply of Cottolene, the Natural Shortening, of your grocer. It is put up in pails of various sizes to suit your convenience.

SHIELDS POWER BILL PASSED BY THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The Shields bill regulating power sites on navigable rivers passed the senate yesterday evening 46 to 22.

By a vote of 49 to 19, the senate voted down a motion to recommit the bill for purposes of amendment.

Senator Lane of Oregon, attacked the bill, charging that it proposes to give away the nation's last great resource to privileged interests. He then introduced an amendment giving municipalities preference over private corporations in waterpower rights. The amendment was voted down.

"We have given away our coal, our timber has passed into the hands of a few, our petroleum is all but gone—the prices of all three commodities are constantly rising," he said.

"Now we are asked for the sake of development to give away our waterpower resources for almost nothing. The people will pay ten times over for any advantage they get out of this development."

Lane's amendment to the bill was defeated.

Over the objection of Senator Chamberlain, the public lands committee appproved amendments to the Myers bill, which conservationists charge paralyzed the sections designed to protect the public.

Canvass of the house indicates either defeat or radical amendment.

Stevens-Saltmarsh Fight Ends in Draw

LAST ROUND PUNCH SAVES FILIPINO CHAMP FROM BEING DEFEATED.

By virtue of a last round punch which he displayed to good advantage, Kid Saltmarsh, one time Filipino champ, won a draw decision with Buddy Stevens last night at the Oregon theater.

Though the first nine rounds Stevens did most of the leading though he did no great damage to his opponent. As a matter of fact the bout did not wax over-interesting at any time. In the final round Saltmarsh sallied from his corner with more life than he had exhibited in the preceding rounds and proceeded to extend himself to the utmost. He landed hard on Stevens and had him wobbly for a time. His finish evened up the score and Referee Pete Jost held up the hand of both at the end of the round.

The event that stirred the crowd to excitement was the semi-windup between Sailor Owens and Kid Newquist heavyweights. Owens is a veteran pugilist while Newquist is a big, strapping farmer youth of this city. Against the science of the old warhorse, the crowd thought Newquist's youth would avail him naught for his knowledge of the fistic art is crude. However, they were doomed to a big surprise. Newquist went into the first round with a tiger-like spirit and before thirty seconds had elapsed, he had swung a 40 centimeter right to the sailor's jaw that put the latter down for the count of seven. He got up then only to go down for the count under another terrific wallop.

Young Dorier and Young Willis, flyweights, fought a four round draw, though Dorier probably had the better of the bout. Joe Wilcox and George Guyll furnished the other preliminary which was stopped in the fourth round and awarded to Wilcox.
