HENLEY REGATTA WILL NOT ADMIT JACK KELLY

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 7.—A cablegram received here from the stewards of the Henley regatta announced their refusal to accept the entry of Jack Kelly, American sculling champion to compete for the diamond sculls in England the latter part of this month. The cablegram, which was addressed to John Arthur Brown, a member of the American Rowing Association, read:

"Entry of Jack Kelly for diamond sculls not accepted. Letter will follow. Please advise Kelly."

Neither Kelly nor Brown could explain the message. "I see no reason for the refusal of my entry," said Kelly. "Possibly the Englishmen are considering the trouble which arose after the return of the Vesper boat club in 1902 from the English Henley."
