Referendum Amendment Clashes With Constitution.

SO JUDGE SHERWOOD CONTENDS

VALIDITY IN DOUBT

Maintains Argument by Reference to High Authority-Cites Federal Decisions-Reference Is Made to Missouri Legislation

SALEM. Or., April 16.-(Special)-That the initiative and referendum amendment to the Constitution is in direct conflict with the Federal Constitution is a prop-osition maintained by Judge Thomas A. Sherwood, who was for over 20 years a member of the Supreme Bench of the State of Missouri. Judge Sherwood dis-cusses the question in an article in the last insue of the Central Law Journal and hases his argument upon the amendwith the Federal Constitution is a prop and bases his argument upon the amend-ments which have been adopted in Ore-gon and South Dakota, and proposed for adoption in Missouri. His conclusion is son and South Dakots, and proposed for adoption in Missouri. His conclusion is that the initiative and referendum amendment is in conflict with that pro-vision of the Federal Constitution which guarantees each state a Republican form of construction of government.

The amendment proposed in Missouri is practically the same as that adopt Oregon, with the exception that the Mis-souri amendment goes a little farther and provides that the courts aball not impair or annul by their decisions any of the force, intent or purpose of an act initiated by or referred to the peo-pie. As Judge Sherwood does not make act initiated by or referred to the pro-ple. As Judge Sherwood does not make this feature of the amendment the ground of his objection, it is an immaterial dif-ference and his argument applies to all the initiative and referendum amend-

If Judge Sherwood's opinion may be If Judge Sherwood's opinion may be given some weight, the Oregon amend-ment is open to two possible objections to its validity-that the Oregon consti-tution was violated because the amend-ment was submitted to the people, while other amendments were pending, and the Federal Constitution was violated in pro-viding for this state a form of govern-ment not Republican. A Federal decision in the case of Minor A Federal decision in the case of Minor vs. Happersett, 21 Wall. 162, is quoted as follows: "All the states had had gov-ernments when the Constitution was adopted. In all, the people participated to some extent through their representatives elected in the manner specially provided. These governments the Constitution did not change. They were accepted pre-cisely as they were, and it is, therefore, to be presumed that they were such as it was the duty of the states to pro-vids. Thus we have unmistakable evi-dence of what was a government, Ropub-lican in form, within the meaning of that ican in form, within the meaning of that Judge Sherwood concludes that a state government, under the initiative and refrendum, does not come up to the stand made here in Oregon and probably in every other place where the amendment has been agitated: "Nor do I believe that the conclusion just reached is at all affected by rea of the fact that the amendment al lows the general assembly to retain cer-tain shreds and patches of Legislative power to pass certain perfunctory laws relating to appropriations, etc. A Leg-likitive body so shorn of its customary and constitutional functions cannot be longer regarded as the representatives of the people. The Legislative power can-not be halved, quartered or in any other manner subdivided. A representative Democracy cannot be crossed with an absolute Democracy, and still the hybrid resultant from such copulative conjunc-tion prove to be and constitute a govern-ment Republican in form."

Judge Sherwood refers to that portion of the amendment proposed in Missouri which forbids the courts to impair by its decisions the force of an act voted upon by the people, but his main argument is based upon the broad proposition that the initiative and referendim deprives the state of representative form of gov-ernment. The article has excited conderable interest around the capital.

OPINION IN HAVES CASE.

Supreme Court Denies Petition for Writ of Mandamus.

SALEM, Or., April 15.-(Special.)-The Supreme Court today rendered a decision denying the petition for a writ of mandamus in the case of George W. Hayes, plaintiff, vs. M. D. Clifford, Circuit Judge in the Ninth Judicial District, defendant. The opinion was rendered by Chief Jus-tice Moore.

This was not an appealed case, but was a special proceeding instituted in the Su-preme Court on April 2, 1900, for the pur-pose of compelling Judge Clifford to settle and sign a bill of exceptions in the case and sign a bill of exceptions in the case in which Hayes was convicted of the crime of adultery. He was convicted on May 5, 1002 and presented his bill of ex-ceptions on March 28, 1903. Judge Clif-ford's defense to the mandamus proceed-ing was that the exceptions were not re-duced to writing during the trial, nor was one extension of time sought by Hayes any extension of time sought by Hayes in which to present the bill of exceptions; that when the time for passing sentence arrived Hayes' attorneys stated in open court that they did not intend to present a bill of exceptions or take an appeal, whereupon he was sentenced and impris-oned in the penitentiary, from which place he was released after having served eight place eight months of the one-year sentence; that the trial Judge never bad an opportunity to compare the proposed till of exceptions with the transcript prepared by the offi-cial stenographer, and was unable to say whether or not it was correct, and said for these reasons declined to sign the bill of exceptions.
