DAIRTMEN FAIL IN COMMISSION BUSINESS.—A dairyman was yesterday asking a commission man what went wrong with another dairyman, who opened a place in town for the purpose of selling his own butter, and so saving the commission. "His butter was all right," said the commissionman, "as good as any on the mar-ket, but, in order to push his business, he lowered the price 5 cents, and so his product was rated as second class at once, and the demand fell off, and he had to go and the demand fell off, and he had to go out of business. Buyers are not used to seeing the price of first-class goods cut below the market rate, and imagined there must be something wrong with his butter. The commission man said that he handled a great deal of theese for a maker, and first-class cheese, too. A few days ago this maker came in just as he was taking an order from a shipper for a large ago this maker came in just as he was taking an order from a shipper for a large lot. He said to the shipper: "I have tried to deal with you direct several times, and would have been willing to divide the commission saved with you, but could hever make a sale to you, how is this?" "Well," said the shipper, "your business is to make cheese, and you don't know how to pack it. When I buy a big lot of cheese to be shipped abrond. I want it

"Well," said the shipper, "your business is to make cheese, and you don't know how to pack it. When I buy a hig lot of cheese to be shipped abroad, I want it packed in a peculiar way and properly marked. The commission man knows how to do this, and you do not; therefore, I prefer to deal with him. He has to make a living as well as you, and every one to his own business, as the man said who peddled mouse traps." Farmers who, in addition to running their farms or dairies.

He had an idea that the starwherries he saw at St. Paul were raised in the neighborhood of that city, but this is probably a mistake, as they doubtless came from far down South. When Oregon strawherries are a month later than in the country around St. Paul, the season here must be a late one.

MASCOT FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT.—Yesterday Fire Chief Campbell presented a silver badge of the Portland Fire Department to Edward S. Sawyer, the son of a peddled mouse traps." Farmers who, in addition to running their farms or dairies, undertake to do a commission business seldom make a success of it. Their own business requires all their time and attention to produce the best results, and letters "P. P. F. D." and the word "Massthey cannot carry on successfully two classes of business, one in the country and one in town.

BUILT FACTORY IN SPITE OF STRIER.— Operations of the American Tin Can Com-pany, which is building a factory at the end of town on the river front. which is to cover a space about 300 feet square, are not interfered with in any way by the strike. A large part of the lower story is up, and work on the second story is going right ahead. The company has no troubs in getting all the lumber it wants or all the men needed. It has a good superintendent and a good class of en employed, both bridge and house carmen employed, both bridge and house car-penters, and there are dozens of men ready to go to work when wanted. The unions have nothing against the comp-pany. The men who constructed the foundation, which is on piling, were bridge carpenters, and they are entitled to go ahead and complete the upper struc-ture, and can take in as many house carture, and can take in as many house carpenters on this work as they want. They have men belonging to both unions on the work. Such is the statement of one of the men employed on the work, from which it appears that there are ways of securing lumber and workmen if one only

FREAK ROBIN RETURNS .- The superin tendent of Lone Fir cemetery reports that a robin peculiarly marked or spotted with white feathers, which nested in the otery last year, has returned and has built a nest near where it had one last year. It is the general opinion that many robins return to their old haunts year after year to nest, but, as no one knows how long robins live, and all robins, like all coons, look alike to most people, there is no way of telling whether the robins nesting on one's grounds year after year are the same ones or not. From the actions of some of them, which appear to have no fear of children or dogs who have been kind to them or other robins, many are certain that the same birds return to the same place year after year. As the bird at the cemetery is peculiarly marked, the superintendent proposes to keep a tab on it and see how many years it comes back. Many who have pet robins on their places will be glad to learn the

TO CLEAN UP SLABWOOD RUBBISH .- And now the Civic Improvement Association is looking after the men who deliver slabwood and leave piles of bark and splinters all over town. It is a wonder that they have not been attended to before, for, although slabwood may be one of the necessaries of life, it is not necessary for those who deliver it to leave a pile of rubbish behind each load. Special Officer Caswell is now attending to this matter, and has given orders that drivers of slabwood wagons to throw rubbish down ents after their wood. All the abwood does not go into basemen owever, but it always leaves a lot rubbish after it, so it will probably be hecessary when Summer comes to make the drivers clean up the rubbish and sweep up the sawdust from their wagons and carry it back to the mills in their

WILL NOT START SASH AND DOOR FAC-TORY .- It was rumored on the street yesterday that, on account of the mill refusing to sell doors and sashes to dealers in glass, W. P. Fulier & Co. had purchased a piece of property on the river front, at the lower end of town, and were going to build a sash and door factory thereon. A representative of Fuller & Co., on being saked for information on this matter, said that they were thinking this matter, said that they were thinking of buying the property mentioned, which is owned by Pierce Mays, but they had not bought it yet. They did not want it for a site for a sash and door factory, he said, and he was not prepared to say what they did want it for. He added, "The firm have a sash and door factory at Rainler, down the Columbia, but the output is not for city trade."

Tampers With Call-Box Wirds.—Jeff Hayes, of the Hasty Memsenger Bervice, complains that of late some mischlevous fellow, who has a knowledge of the workings of call boxes and electric wires, has been going about town and, either in a spirit of wanton devility or malicious mischief, has been causing him a great deal of trouble by defily connecting his system of wires with the telephone wires by which the telephone people have also been much annoyed. The manner in which the work is artfully concealed shows that this mischief-maker thoroughly understands his business and renders it very difficult to locate the little plece of wire which causes the trouble. Mr. of wire which causes the trouble. Mr. Hayes is willing to reward any one who will give him a clew to the ill-advised person who is causing him so much annoyance. who arrived home from the East yester-day is of opinion that the season is very late here, a month behind, at least. He says that at St. Paul strawberries were brought on board the train to sell at 19 cents a basket, and very fine ones, while here he finds them 25 cents a basket, and green vegotables of all kinds very scarce. He had an idea that the starwberries he ation was young Sawyer's birthday W. A. THOMPSON UNDER BONDS.—W. A. Thompson was arraigned in the Municipal Court yesterday morning, charged with threatening to kill his sweetheart. Myrtle Smalley, because she was the recipient of attentions from other young men. On several occasions Thompson has threat-ened to kill himself, but this proving ineffectual, he decided to kill Miss Smalley instead. The young woman was not ready to die as yet, and made complaint to the authorities of Thompson's actions. He was bound over in $2600 bonds to keep the peace, and will have to answer to a higher court for his words.

LANDRIDE KHLIS FOUR HORSES.—At 11:20 Wednesday night a barn belonging to James Fraincy, located one mile west of the Gambrinus brewery, was precipitated a distance of 150 feet down a steep embankment by a landsilde and four valuable horses were killed. William Miller, a boatier who was asleen in the barn at a hostler, who was asleep in the barn at the time, was buried in a mass of debris at the bottom of the slide, but miracu-lously escaped injury. Hecent rains had softened the earth under the barn and permitted its supports to slip out from under it. The total loss will reach $1800. DELIVERING PIPE ON EAST SIDE.—The Oregon Iron & Steel Company has commenced delivering 15-inch pipe at Holia-day and East Sixteenths streets for fur-ther extension of the main running down Division street, which supplies the East Division street, which supplies the East Side with water. This extension will in-crease the water supply of Albina very materially. Three carloads of the pipe are on the ground, and the work of lay-ing it will be commenced at once. The extension will reach the junction of Union avenue and Hancock street, where it will connect with mains already laid.

It is a welcome change to attend such a clean, sparkling comedy of fun as John C. Rice and Thomas A. Wise in "Are You a Mason?" presented last night at the Marquam to a fair sudience, after a season of highly seasoned emotional-ploblem plays where one woman is in continual trouble because she has fallen in love with another's woman's husband. "Are You a Mason" is hubbling over with fun. with another's woman's husband. "Are You a Mason?" is bubbling over with fun, and is adapted from the German of Laufs and Kratz by Leo Ditrichstein, the popular author of "The Last Appeal" and "All on Account of Eliza." It has played to big business for two seasons, and now visits the Pacific Coast for the first time. Recently it was a winner at San Franvisits the Pacific Const for the first time. Hecently it was a winner at San Fran-cisco, where it played to $3000 in one week. Strange to say, there is neither a song nor a dance in it. The language used is ciean as snow. John C. Rice has been seen here before with May Irwin, and his face is familiar as that of the man in the famous kissing scene with May Irwin—a scene which has been illustrated at bloggraph shows and has caused mer-

Irwin—a scene which has been illustrated at biograph shows, and has caused merriment all over the country.

"Are You a Mason?" has a cast of 14 people, and, as no heavy scenery is carried or expensive specialties, the managers can afford to surround themselves with first-class talent, as they have done. The comedy opens with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perry, of New York, a newly married couple, expecting a visit from Mrs. Perry's parents. Perry (John C. Rice) is alarmed because, to cover his visits downtown to see a man late at night, he told town to see a man late at night, he told his wife that he had become a member of the Masonic fraternity, and he has been told that his father-in-law, Amos Bloodgood (Thomas A. Wise), is also a Mason. But it so happens that Bloodgood is also a bogus Mason, to serve as an excuse for his remaining out nights playing pokes. When Perry and Bloodgood meet, each is afraid of the other, and the effect is lu-

Fisher, excellently played by Edward Abeles, is persuaded to disguise himself as a cloak model from Madam Jolivet's, and to say that he really is Bloodgood's only daughter by his divorced wife, Analysis and the real with the control of the contro gelina. Mr. Abeles does his part with consummate skill, especially in the scene where he poses as an expert on the sub-ject of women's clothes. Amy Muller, as Mrs. Perry, and Margaret Evans and Hazel Chapple, as Amos Bloodgood's un-marred daughters, acted admirably. Of course, Mr. Rice and Mr. Wise were the whole show in the laughter-making department, and they acted with that na-turalness and ability that comes with long years of experience.

"Are You a Mason?" is certainly worth seeing, and will be the attraction at the Marquam this and tomorrow evening and Amateurs Stage "Esmeralda," The quaint old play of "Esmeraida," written by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, was played at Arion Hall last night by a clever company of amateurs, the young people of St. Stephens' choir.

The scenes of the play are laid in the cabin home of the Rogers family, in the North Carolina mountains, and in Paris. A valuable mine is discovered on the farm of old man Rogers, or, rather, on the of old man Rogers, or, rather, on the land of Emeraida's lover, Dave Hardy, as it afterwards turns out, and the Rogers family goes to Europe, where it is followed by Dave. Esmeraida's mother strangely objects to Dave's suit, on account of his poverty, but the kind old father is in sympathy with the young people, for, as he says, "Esmeraidy and me were allies mother the six's allies." me, we're alike: mother, she ain't alike." In the last act the fact develops that the wealth in North Carolina is Dave's, the wealth in North Carolina is Dave's, and mother's objections are, of course,

J. P. Inglis, as old man Rogers, did an excellent character sketch of a mountain farmer, and his shrewish wife, Lydia Ann, was well played by Miss Pauline Turner. Miss Cornella Wilson was a very sweet Esmeralda, and looked quite as pretty in a gingham apron and sunbonnet as she did in the white and blue connet as she did in the white and blue embroidered gown worn in the ballroom scene. Miss Kate Ramadell and Miss Frudence Hageny were the two charming sisters of Jack Desmond, a young American artist in Paris, whose part was played in an attractive manner by Bernard Turner. Miss Muriel Weatherdon had the part of Celeste, the maid and locked exact the maid and locked exact of Celeste, the maid and locked or part of Celeste, the maid, and looked extremely chic in her cap and frilled white apron. Herman Grifnes, as Dave Hardy, read his lines admirably. The Marquis de Montessin, a French adventurer, was the picturesque villain of the play, and was well represented by Leland Smith, Estabrock, a man of leisure, and George Drew, an American speculator, were Drew, an American speculator, wer played satisfactorily by Alan Weatherdo and Herman Thomps

"By Right of Sword."

Raiph Stuart's perspicacity prompted him to secure the exclusive rights of Ar-thur Marchmont's brilliant novel, and he is now the fortunate possessor of a play which is rapidly adding to his fame, and. incidentally, fattening his bank account. He will present his new version of "By Right of Sword" next Sunday afterneon at the Baker Theater, and no little curies ity is manifested concerning the changes made in the play since its initial per-formance in Portland one year ago. In the character of Richard Hamilton

Mr. Stuart has scored a most emphatic hit, and his business has been enormous wherever the play has been given this season. A judicious mingling of fun and pathos characterizes the piece, and laugh-ter and tears rapidly alternate during its presentment.

"Ole Olson" Tonight and Tomorrow Three more performances of "Ole Olson" at Cordray's Theater tonight, at the matinee tomorrow and for the last time tomorrow night, Ole will entertain all who visit the theater, old and young alike. This Swedish comedy leaves a pleasant taste, and has nothing "seal brown" about it. You may not remember it as long as taste, and has nothing "seal brown" about it. You may not remember it as long as another play, but you will go to see it again next time Ben Hendricks plays "Oie Olson" here, just the same as it you had never seen it before. A souvenir matines is announced for tomorrow, and every one attending will receive a cabinet photograph of Ben Hendricks. Mattie Lockette will vie with the other children on the stace to amuse all her young dren on the stage to amuse all her young

Crowded houses are the rule at the Baker Theater these days, where Ralph Stuart and his company are producing the charming romantic drams, "Prince Otto."
The matinee Saturday promises to be the largest in the history of the theater.

Senator C. W. Fulton will go on the stump in aid of Hermann, the Republican candidate for Congress in the First District. He gave out this announcement last night. The Senator was asked on what issues the would speak, and replied: "On National Issues. I shall appeal to the voters of the First District to uphold the Republican Administration by sending a Republican and not a Democrat to

"As to trusts, I think that the Republican policy as to them is defined to the satisfaction of the Nation. President Roosevelt has defined it in his recent speeches. The decision of the Court of Appeals in the case of the Northern Securities Company shows that the Nation has effective legislation for controlling trusts. That legislation was enacted by a Republican Congress. It gives to the Government a potent weapon against the trusts."

Senator Fulton will return to Astoria tonight.

ELKS' LODGE TO BUILD. Six-Story Structure to Be Erected at Cost of $100,000.

The Eiks' Lodge, at an enthusiastic meeting last night, decided to erect a six-story building on its 100x100 lot at Seventh and Stark streets. The cost will be $100,000, and plans will be drawn up immediately for one of the handsomest structures in the city. The building will be the home of the lodge, with a hall and antercoms sufthe lodge, with a hall and antercoms suf-ficiently large to accommodate the present membership of $50 and the future acces-sions for years to come. At last night's meeting over 400 members were present, and the building project was received with enthusiasm. The Elks expressed their confidence that such a building would be not only a credit to the city, but would also he a good investment as but would also be a good investment, as the floors not used for lodgerooms will be rented for business purposes.

Several prominent members made speeches in which was set forth the need of a modern home for the Elks in 1805, when thousands of visitors would pour into the city, and also commenting upon the great demand that exists in Portland at the present time for modern and well-constructed business blocks. The finances of the lodge were found to be in a four-ishing condition. The site, which cost about $55,000, has been fully paid for, and the treasury is comfortably off for funds. Much of the money that was put into the site was realized from two Elks' Carni-vals successfully conducted by the lodge, and it was the consensus of opinion that the funds could be expended in no better way than to erect a structure that would reflect credit upon the public spirit

After a thorough discussion the following building committee was appointed to have charge of the project: George H. Chamberiain, D. Solls Cohen, John La-mont, Ralph W. Hoyt, Alex Sweek, E. W. Rowe, M. J. Malley and W. J. Riley.

ROBINSON & CO. 289 Washington St. PERKINS HOTEL BUILDING

The selection of a piano should be made only after careful thought and study, weighing well all the details of construction, which are many and complex. It is far too much of a study for the purchaser to undertake, as it would cost him much more than the price of a piano to learn these things. However, to the dealer it is all-important, as it enables him to discriminate between the good and the badroto select planos that will stand well in tune-planos that will stand well in tune-planos that will retain their excellent tone qualities, and pianos that, after years of hard use, still have well-balanced, even and responsive actions. In order to make a wise selection dealers should be able to judge of all these things themselves and not have to trust entirely to the word of the manufacturer or his traveling salesman. Catalogues are gotten up for the express purpose of selling planos.
