In fact, the many consolation that the local lenders awe is that they are in good company. "It might have been worse," said Mr. Reed. "Now, look at John Cort, the seattle theatrical manager. OREGON'S GREAT FUTURE Irrigation Will Furnish Homes for Thousands, Says Elwood Mead,

An interesting lecture on the subject of irrigation, particularly as it applies to Oregon, was delivered before the Board of Trade at its chamber last evening by El-wood Mend, chief of the Division of Irrigation in the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

Mr. Mead is one of the foremost authorities on the subject in the United States, having made it a life gudy, and his views parity with them the fesuit of many years array with them the fesuit of many years of experience and investigation. There was a large attendance of the members of the Board, who listened to his remarks with great interest.

After explaining that the present was his first visit to Oregon, and that he was favorably impressed with what he had en of the state, and particularly the ity of Portland, he said in part:

"The present is the greatest period of immigration which this country has ever known. This is due largely to the unprecedented advance in the values of farm lands in the Mississippi Valley. Farms are becoming so valuable in that section that the average farmer cannot afford to ork them, and finds the greatest profit be made by seiling his land to business to be made by selling his land to business men, who are seeking safe investment. These men are displacing the tiller of the soil, who naturally, having sold his farm, seeks a newer and less highly developed section. He has the capital to improve wild land and make the necessary outlay to bring it into a high state of cultivation actically all the remaining wild land the country which is tillable is arid semi-arid, and irrigation is the first top toward making such land profitable, believe that Oregon has the largest area of unimproved land, whereon irrigation is ossible, of any state in the Union. In nence of this the state offers the consequence of this the state ofters the largest and most profitable field for the lumigration in the country. My visit to the state at this time is to investigate the irrigation possibilities of the state, a question which is claiming much attention from the Department of Agriculture.

"The first and most important thing to be considered is the available water sup-ply. I wish to cite the Pouero River Valley, in Colorado, as an example. This every acre of which is irrigated from the Poudre River, which at low water supplies only about 100 cubic feet of water per second. This Valley produced last year 7000 carloads of potatoes, and 150,000 head of sheep were shipped from it. The land ranges in price from 35 to 315 per acre. Oregon has vast areas, which will produce equally as well under scientific irrigation, and has sufficient water supply to irrigate all its undeveloped area. The to irrigate all its undeveloped area. The Deschutes River alone has a larger flow per second than all the streams which flow from the eastern alope of the Rocky Mountains, in Colorado. This state is the least developed, according to her re-sources, of any in the United States, but I believe that the development is to be very rapid in the next few years. During the coming Summer the department will send a man to the state to investigate conditions in Eastern Oregon and locate stations for carrying out the plans which are being prepared for the systematic ir-rigation of the vast area which is now a waste.

which will arise from the vast population which will settle these portions of the state when the irrigation plans are com-pleted by passing such legislation as will fix water titles as definitely as land titles, fix water titles as definitely as land titles, and thus avoid the waxing litigation which invariably arises where a large population depends for its very existence on the available water supply."

Professor James Withycombe, of Coryvallis, director of the Oregon experiment station, was also present and made a few remarks bearing on the work of the station, it trivation matters. tion in irrigation matters.

While in the city, Mr. Mead was the guest of the Board of Trade, and he was shown over the city by*a committee of the Board. He leaves this morning for Wash-

MEMORY OF SACAJAWEA Women Propose to Honor Only Woman With Lewis and Clark,

At a meeting of the Sacajawea Association yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. M. Cartwright, Mrs. Ablgall Scott Duniway was elected honorary president and Mrs. A. C. Gibbs, widow of the late Governor Gibbs, honorary vice-president. It was decided that application for charter membership not be made until after pioneer day, June 17. Ten thousand Sacajawea buttons are to be manufac-tured, the proceeds from their sale to go to the statue fund.

Mrs. Gillespie offered the services of herself and of her class in elocution in an entertainment to be given for the benefit of the association, Mrs. Gillenpie's offer was accepted and Mrs. A. H. Mrs. Cartwright is the head of a committee which will solicit aid from the church societies and has already en-listed the aid of Mrs. Moreland, Mrs. Cornell and Mrs. Royal of the missionary and aid societies of Grace Methodis

Other important business was the discussion of plans for a reception to be given in honor of Colonel William Han-cock Clark, who will be here with President Roosevelt's party and who will re-main in Portland several days after the other members of the party have gone north. Another matter of interest was the reading of "Ten Reasons Why the Women of the Northwest Should Erect a Statue to Sacajawea," a logical statement drafted by the secretary, Mrs. Evans, for publication and distribution. Mrs. Evans' ten reasons are as follows:

First-Sacajawea was the only secompany the Lewis and Clark expedition Second-She was their guide and interpreter. Third—Sine protected them when threatened by heatile indiana. Fourth—Sine procured for them food and horses when destitue of both.

Valuable New York Lands. NEW YORK, May 5.-Most of the owners in Harlem are not the rightful possessors of their holdings, according to a lawyer of this city. The plan of the lawyer in charge of th matter is to gather a majority of the de-scendants and, as he says, they are all by inheritance members of the cornoration, have them hold a meeting, elect officers and parcel out the land among themselves. It is argued that quitclaims, leases or deeds executed by any de-scendants of the grantees are void be-cause no individual had a right to dis-pose of the property, but only a right to vote at the corporation meeting.

President Roosevelt, who traces his ancestry to the Brevoorts of colonial times, will, it is announced, appear at the meet-ing of the descendants.
