Charlton Heston Doesn't Want To Be 'Moses' All His Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A lot of folks were surprised and disappointed when Charlton Heston wasn't nominated for an Oscar.

"So was I," admits the husky Michigan-born actor.

But he's too well adjusted to mope about it. He's pushing on with his career, and in a different direction from Moses.

It's a Hollywood legend that H. B. Warner was unable to escape the identification as Jesus after he played the role in a previous DeMille biblical epic, "The King of Kings." Whether the legend is true or not, Heston is determined to escape a similar fate.

His new film is a considerable departure from "The 10 Commandments." He's playing a Mexican peace officer in a thriller called "Badge of Evil" with Orson Welles and Janet Leigh. His brown locks were dyed black and he wears a clipped black mustache.

"I thought this would be a good subject to follow 'The 10 Commandments' with," he said. "I wanted to get as far away from it as possible. I was deluged with scripts for other biblical pictures, but I turned them all down.

"I don't suppose I'll ever do another one. After you've done 'The 10 Commandments,' where can you go? There'll never be another one as big.

"I think it would be a mistake for me to play even a priest or a minister. But in getting away from religious themes, I don't think I could play a deep-dyed heavy. I'm not going to start pushing old ladies down staircases. That would be wrong because of the deep significance that Moses has for peoples all over the world."

Aim of the campaign is to extend the polio protection before the onset of the summer polio season. Shots will be administered without cost by volunteer doctors and nurses. Vaccine will come from tax - purchased supplies.

A TELEPHONE "BILL"

PASADENA, Calif. (UP) — Louis S. Kurze complained to the telephone company about the constant ringing of an unseen phone outside his window. A lineman climbed a pole outside Kurze's window and found a woodpecker inside a transformer box busily tapping on the metal.

Bobbies Fail To See Meg, Lose Dignity

CHELTENHAM, England (UP) Four dignified bobbies lost some of their dignity Wednesday because they treated Princess Margaret as one of the crowd at the races.

The bobbies failed to see the pretty princess.

As a result they pushed Margaret and her escort, courtier Col. Martin Gilliatt, back with the crowd when they threw up a cordon to clear a path for Queen Elizabeth II and her party.

The Queen passed within a few yards of Margaret and suddenly recognized her. Margaret waved and the Queen entered the royal enclosure.

Margaret smiled and waved again. With the Queen safely in her seat, the bobbies relaxed their holds on the crowd. Then Margaret walked into the royal box.

Then came recognition. One of the bobbies saw the princess.

"You just can't win," he said.
