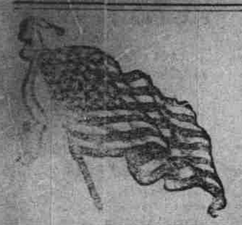
The Independent

SATURDAY ..... MARCH 6, 1880



RESOLUTION OF ENDORSEMENT

WHEREAS, THE DOUGLAS INDEPENDENT a newspaper published in Roseburg, has been published in this county for the period of three years; and

WHEREAS, said newspaper is now well established, and during a three years' trial it has faithfully served the interests of the producer and tax-payer; therefore be it

Resolved, We, the members of the Umpqua Grange No. 23, do give THE DOUGLAS INDEPENDENT our unqualified endorsement, and would recommend it as a newspaper worthy the patronage of every farmer and tax-payer in Southern Oregon.

GEO. W. JONES, Master.
J. P. DUNCAN, Secretary.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The DOUGLAS INDEPENDENT has the largest circulation of any paper published in Roseburg in the counties of Douglas, Jackson and Coos, and will furnish the proof of our assertion when demanded by responsible advertisers. KELLY & WELLS.

"THE GRANGE IN POLITICS."

One of the best articles we have published for many weeks on the subject of independent voting by the people, is to be found in this issue under the above caption to this article. It embraces the ideas completely which have from time to time been argued by this paper, and the only question that can possibly be raised in opposition to the assertions of the writer is that he appeals to and argues for those who are only grangers, instead of embracing in his remarks all taxpayers. "J. D." in answer, might remedy the defect by declaring that all taxpayers should be grangers in the common and natural effort that ought to be made for general and mutual protection from office-seekers in general. Were he to do so, certainly he would remain a champion of the right of independence in politics against whom no one could successfully contend.

Many urge against outside interference in the plans of the political leaders of the two political parties. They are simply mad upon the question of party fealty. They belong to the class which abandons the principle in admiring the show, as is aptly illustrated in Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," and it is with them—

How strange it is what hollow trifles pass
For solid matter with the thoughtless mass;
Upon a pole transfix a colored rag,
Dub'd with some such high-sounding word as "Flag,"
Prate much of "Glory," "Death" and "Victory,"
"Our nation," "Virtue," "God" and "Liberty,"
Blow horns, beat drums, let brass bands do their willing,
And these will lead them—not the principle.

So far as the two parties' leaders are concerned the struggle to-day is made nowhere in the whole length and breadth of this union in favor of a single national principle. On this point we defy contradiction. It is with the leaders of both parties, the easiest way to office. The general reader does not want the proof. It is the men who do not read and learn, who listen alone to the utterances of party leaders, and go to the polls to vote without discovering that partizan leaders are partizan bandits, seeking office by every available avenue to public favor, and that democratic and republican principles in any two States of the union are not expressed alike, and what is democracy in one State is republicanism in another. What are the democrats of Pennsylvania to-day but advocates of a high protective tariff? What are the democrats of Oregon but free-traders? Even in Oregon the leading republican paper of the State favors free trade, and in this matter is joined by the leading democratic organ. The party leaders in all States are, therefore, alike, and their purpose is gain. Their aim is but the filling of personal pockets; and, while humiliating to lovers of the republic and intelligent and honest members of the two great parties, the fact remains undeniable that so far as those who lead the parties are concerned, the war is waged to secure the loaves and fishes offered upon the public table—"simply this, and nothing more." So far as principle is concerned there is nothing at stake between the two leading parties. Each party has its ring, and each ring has its favorites to work out certain results. The results sought after by both rings are the same; and where one ring, in the name of a party, cannot secure what it desires altogether it divides with the other in order to hold up party lines and so as to not interfere with the trade that is often made by these partizan bandits to work their ends and keep ready tools in office. We have the proof, as we have before stated, in the inconsistencies of parties in national politics, and we had emphatic illustration how far party love extends beyond personal profit and the loaves and fishes in the marriage of republicans and democrats about six years ago in this county to defeat the hope and effort of taxpayers to elect honest men to office. Then the leaders, in the language of one of them, "shook hands over the bloody chasm," and the same leader using the language quoted (he was a democrat) only a short time before, in leaving the republicans, declared from the political stump: "Farewell, you —— —— ——." The republican leaders were willing to forget the chasm,"—and the Roseburg ring met with defeat at the hands of the honest voters of this county, who knew the leaders and had sufficient reason to fear the corrupt workings of the ring.

And the dishonesty of leaders has more to do with independentism than any other influence. It is not because independents are such that they discard former party affiliations, and have parted from past party precincts through fault-findings on their part. It is the thinking people who have deserted the parties—and where do we find people who think more and act more truthful than the producing classes? They argue and reason from natural cause and effect. They take the truth as they find it, and accept it without excuse, and they do not deny a fact. They have but the products of their labor to depend upon for subsistence, and they depend upon them alone. They are not drones in the bee-hive of life, hoping and scheming for public office that they may live a life of ease. They want no office, no pay except what is due them for their labors, and no protection save that which will prevent their robbery. And the taxpaying classes are the life of the nation. Without them there could not be a nation of intelligence and wealth. They are also the law-abiding classes. They never rebel against honest government. Their wish is peace and prosperity. So long as they have justice, and thought the government under which they lived might live from the beginning of time on through all eternity, they would never find fault. But they must have justice, and poorly administered is the government that will not favor those whose efforts give it life and its greatest vitality. So think taxpayers here and everywhere in these United States. Under the government of the two parties the nation everywhere is ruled first for the office holders and those seeking office, and secondly for the people. Hence the numerous independent factions throughout the United States seeking the truth, and hence the important argument made that it is all owing to the faults of the two parties that there are independents, and that independents comprise the honest elements of this government—those elements who think and work and demand honesty in office and competency in the administration of public affairs. "J. D." should, therefore, have written, "Honest—the People in Politics."

The people of Portland say the Chinese must go. The cours of Multnomah county are helping the popular cause whenever possible by sending every guilty heathen to the gallows or the penitentiary, when such are brought before them. But there are in Portland men so evil-minded as to assert that the judges are candidates for re-election and are making it warm for the Chinese upon any and all occasions in order to steer with the popular current of feeling. The way things are turning we would not be surprised should some one declare the supreme court of the State is on the lookout for public opinion, for that court has declared that Ah Lee, the murderer of his mistress, shall hang by the neck until he is "dead, dead, dead!" Of course, anyone who would impugn the motives of the supreme court of Oregon, is a "liar, horse-thief, has been bought by British gold, and there is no dependence to be placed in him." Such is the last ruling of the court, seconded by those astute lawyers, Durham, Hill, Thayer, Thompson and Williams, and it must be correct.

It has been argued that the constitution lately adopted in California would bring hard times to that State. The argument was made probably because politicians were not the authors of that constitution, and it was the independent thought of the people of California. Our California exchanges do not complain of dull times, but Oregon newspapers are filled with complaints upon this score. Is it because the politicians have argued falsely in regard to California, and the trouble with Oregon is that the people here need a new constitution? There have been many complaints made against the present constitution, and we find it to be defended only by the politicians and jobbers whose ends it fairly serves. Perhaps the people of this State would not have reason to regret a similar action to that imposed upon themselves by the people of California.

An office-holder at Washington once wrote to Texas that he was having a grand time, and was really "a bigger man than old Grant." The letter fell into malicious hands, was given publicity, and sealed his political doom. General Russ of Indiana was lately so imprudent as to write a similar epistle. Having been summoned to Washington as a witness in a case somewhat partisan in character he wrote to a friend a glowing description of the fascinations of the great republic's capital, and added: "I'll be home in a day or two, but before I come back I will arrange it so that you can be summoned as a witness. Then you can have your fun." The letter was promptly printed, and Gen. Russ is on the retired list.

That senile old man in Gramercy Park is causing John Kelly and his band much distress. The list of States that Tilden has "fixed" is very formidable—"simply this, and nothing more." So far as principle is concerned there is nothing at stake between the two leading parties. Each party has its ring, and each ring has its favorites to work out certain results. The results sought after by both rings are the same; and where one ring, in the name of a party, cannot secure what it desires altogether it divides with the other in order to hold up party lines and so as to not interfere with the trade that is often made by these partizan bandits to work their ends and keep ready tools in office. We have the proof, as we have before stated, in the inconsistencies of parties in national politics, and we had emphatic illustration how far party love extends beyond personal profit and the loaves and fishes in the marriage of republicans and democrats about six years ago in this county to defeat the hope and effort of taxpayers to elect honest men to office. Then the leaders, in the language of one of them, "shook hands over the bloody chasm," and the same leader using the language quoted (he was a democrat) only a short time before, in leaving the republicans, declared from the political stump: "Farewell, you —— —— ——." The republican leaders were willing to forget the chasm,"—and the Roseburg ring met with defeat at the hands of the honest voters of this county, who knew the leaders and had sufficient reason to fear the corrupt workings of the ring.

The gold value of the merchandise imported into the United States for the eleven months ending November 30, 1879, amounted to $453,995,062; the merchandise exports of the country for the same period amounted to $664,366,062. The excess of exports over imports amounted to $210,310,000. This showing is highly favorable to American industries, but, compared with the statistics of the whole of the preceding year, a considerable falling off is apparent. It is probable, however, that when the figures of December, 1879, are included, the difference will not be material.

For some years past the Mormons have been anxious to secure a foothold in Mexico, and they recently dispatched one of their prominent men to confer with Diaz on the subject. The reply obtained is honorable to the Mexican government. Mormon emigrants will be protected in their worship, but polygamy will not be tolerated.

In a recent sermon Spurgeon denounced the English government for "making bloody wars and oppressing nations." The criticism is just. England's present policy is unnecessarily aggressive, but her efforts, it is noticeable, are invariably directed against weak powers.

An epidemic in India is not an affair just important enough to warrant the liberal abuse of some board of health. Neither is it just severe enough to make the doctors look cheerful and wise. It creates a vacancy in human ranks. By the fever that spread through the northwestern provinces of that country, a few months ago, 400,000 people perished. Nevertheless there is an overplus of population there.

The "glorious climate of California" is getting into disrepute. Isothermal lines are getting out of place, and the apparition of an iceberg in San Francisco Bay would occasion passing comment. Something is the matter.

The fashionable season is in full blast at St. Petersburg. The Czar has just had a grand "blowout" at the Winter Palace. His room was more desired than his company, however.

The public officials of Russia are said to be the most arrant thieves in Europe. In America, however, they might not amount to much.

The Cincinnati Enquirer refers to the smallpox as "the national disease of China."

GLASS BALL CASTERS,

—FOR—

Bedsteads, Bureaus, Parlors, Tables, Dining Room Tables, Sofas, Etc. to.

—AND FOR—

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

We would respectfully call attention to these new and beautiful Furniture Casters, consisting of fine, polished flint glass balls, held in claws of fine German silver, or of malleable iron, nickle plated. Besides their exceeding beauty, which is a sufficient inducement for their adoption, THEY POSSESS MANY DECIDED ADVANTAGES OVER THE OLD STYLE SWIVEL CASTERS. They are fast superseding the old style—a fact that they possess advantages of no mean merit. They are easily put on furniture instead of the old style.

They add Materially to the Sweetness & Volume of Tone of Pianos & Organs on which they are used, by insulating the instrument. This statement we substantiate by reliable testimonials at hand. The casters have attracted the attention of eminent musicians, who have thoroughly tested their merits, and unhesitatingly recommended them for improving the quantity and quality of tone. In addition to the valuable testimonials of musicians East in our possession, we quote the following from the gentlemen of rare musical attainments, well known to the profession in Oregon:

MESSRS AIKEN & ALLEN: After your having placed a set of the "Adgate Glass Ball Casters" on my Piano, I must say I am pleased with the effect. I find the instrument wonderfully improved in volume and ordinary of tone. I can also certify to their advantages as a castor over the old swivel action. My piano can be moved about over the carpeted floor with much greater ease with these Casters than with the old style. Respectfully,

T. H. PARROTT,
East Portland, Jan. 11 1880.

CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, PORTLAND, OR., Jan. 12th, 1880.

We take great pleasure in certifying to the improvement in our Piano since having the "Adgate Glass Ball Casters" attached. The volume of tone is greater and the treble much more brilliant, and our only regret is that we did not use them before.

W. H. KINROSS,
FRANCIS VINTON.

PORTLAND, Or, Jan. 13th, 1880.

We have tested the merits of the "Adgate Glass Ball Casters, as used on Pianos and we heartily endorse the opinion of Messrs. Kinross and Vinton in regard to same.

D. W. PRENTICE & CO.
Cook's Music Parlors,

PORTLAND, Or., Jan 16 h, 1880.

MESSRS AIKEN & ALLEN—Gentlemen: After carefully testing my piano on which you have placed the "Adgate Glass Ball Casters" I unhesitatingly say that they possess all the merits claimed for them. They clearly add to the brilliancy and volume of tone of the instrument. The Glass Ball "Center-Bearing" Caster I think is of great importance. Respectfully,

E. COOK.
