This is the time of year when people are considering their outlay for next year's reading matter. It would not be out of the way to discuss some of the best home magazines, For farmers we call attention to the Farm Journal—extremely cheap, wide in range of subjects and brief in its treatment. It is the busy farmer's paper. Rural Spirit stands high as a western magazine weekly and the Oregon Agriculturalist and Pacific Homestead are also commendable farm papers. The Western Poultry Journal, published in Salem, is the leading paper of its class in the Northwest.

For the ladies, The Delineator, McCall's and Ladies Home Journal are standard. The Woman's Home Companion and Household are not quite so large but the quality is there and no woman can read them but be benefitted. Less expensive is the Ladies World.

J. H. Meyers and family entertained last Sunday. About 26 friends, mostly from Portland, with a six-piece band came out to spend the day and have a truly good time. It required two big tables to hold the feast and accomodate the guests, and all went away delighted with the reception accorded them.

Grace Morrill, who is teaching near Hillsboro, was home Saturday.

Blanche Rethorford, teacher at Cottrell, was home Saturday and Sunday.

The bakery at Arleta burned last Sunday night.

Carl A. Tischer and family from Wisconsin are located in the Colvin house.

Mrs. Shadd is here visiting her daughter, Mrs. Marshall, whom she had not seen for twenty-three years.

A special meeting was held at the Gates M. E. Church last Sunday. A very large attendance made the gathering a great success.

Mrs. McCormack gave a house-warming last Saturday evening. About fifty of her friends were present.

Phillip Boster, a teamster aged 23 and brother of Floyd Boster and Mrs. Ash of Lents, was drowned in the Willamette river, near Madison bridge on Saturday. While canoeing with Phillip Powell, his half-brother, near the Portland shipyards, Boster in some manner upset the frail craft and both men were thrown into the river. Being unable to swim, Boster sank to his death and Powell with difficulty reached the shore. The body was recovered through the efforts of Hugh Brady, at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and turned over to the coroner.

John Maux will occupy the Kaufman house on Main street.

Chancey Sager returns from western Washington this week.

Lents can now boast a theatre, which will open Saturday. We have most everything now.

The Lents grange hall is progressing slowly. Work begins Monday laying the concrete for the second story.

The Whist Club met with Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Rayburn Wednesday night.

R. B. Lee sold a lot adjoining his home to Carl G. Tischer for $325. Mr. Tischer will erect a bungalow.

Leighton Boone, one of the uncontrollable Gray's Crossing lads, faces a term in the reform school as a consequence of his bad disposition.

Jas. Henderson, son-in-law of Mr. Tyler, and his family, have moved into the Tyler house on Main street.

J. B. Marshall now has his house lighted by acetylene gas.

The many friends of Al Boland gave him a surprise party last Saturday evening ih honor of his birthday.

Geo. Yeoman and wife, recently from Kansas, spent Sunday with the Hogues.

Mrs. Hand gave a party on Saturday evening for her daughter Opal, that being her sixteenth birthday.

Hazel Hastings spent several days of last week with friends in Lents.

Electric lights will be installed in the Evangelical and Methodist churches this week.

District 45 now has about seventy pupils; two being enrolled last week.

Farm Journal, five years and The Herald one year. See offer on last page.

GRESHAM LOCALS

Rev. Kuhlman of Estacada spent Monday night in Gresham as the guest of Rev. Parounagian.

Francis A. Lindsey, of Troutdale, now of the U. S. Hospital corps, who has been in Alaska the past summer, was calling on friends here Monday.

Mrs. Fritz Stoker of Portland was a Gresham visitor this week and a caller at the Herald office.

Miss Violet Gould spent Sunday with her home folks, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gould.

The womans Relief Corps benefit social last Friday night was well attended. There were several unique features that were very entertaining. Three comrades from Portland were present. Two of them played at the funeral of Abraham Lincoln.

R. H. Casswell and family have moved into town and are occupying the widow Bramhall house. Mr. Casswell will represent the C. L. Boss, Moline Plow Company of Portland, in the Gresham district.

Dr. W. J. Ott, brother of Dr. H. H. Ott will probably arrive in Gresham to-day. He is prepared to care for Dr. H. H. Ott's practice until the latter returns from Kansas where he is detained by his wife's illness. After that they will do a partnership business in Gresham.

J. Anderson called at The Herald office this week. Mr. Anderson has just returned from a season at Nome, Alaska.

Rev. Parounagian went to Woodburn on Tuesday to attend the Salem District ministers meeting. He returned on Thursday.

The Herald office was very pleasnntly surprised on Thursday of last week by the gift of some fine samples of Baldwin and King apples, grown in the Sandy Valley, by G. W. Alder.

The prospects for heavy football at Gresham seem to be on the decline. Several of the boys have found it impossible to continue in the heavy team. The high school team will continue to drill and games with the schools at St. Johns and Portsmouth are a probability. After the first of December there will be a reoganization of players and the heaviest of the school team with some outsiders will unite in putting up some good games, likely with Peidmont, Multnomah Addition, and Albina Athletics. Suits for the teams arrived today

Before another week Gresham will have a new bakery in full operation and hot bread and fresh cakes may be obtained at home. The Gentlemen who have the new business in hand are experienced bakers and know not only how to prepare good food but give promise of conducting a clean, hygeinic bakery. They are jovial good fellows to meet so their popularity is in large measure assured before they show us a sample of their handiwork.

A coat of paint gives the livery stable, under management of Ed Metzger, a new appearance.

THE WOOD LOT.

Devices For Making the Cutting of Timber Less Laborious.

The increase of interest in timber raising makes the consideration of any devices of aid to the woodcutter of interest. The accompanying sketch shows a support or guide for a saw, which may readily be attached to a log or timber with ordinary tools to facilitate the sawing of the log. The details of this attachment are shown. Says the Scientific American: "The attachment consists of a clamp adapted to be secured to the handle (A) of an ordinary ax. The clamp comprises two jaws (B), through which a bolt is passed. The upper end of this bolt terminates in a support. The support consists of two parallel arms, between which a roller (O) is mounted to rotate. The bolt which passes through the jaws of the clamp is fitted with a wing nut, and by turning this nut the jaws may be pressed together on the handle of the ax. In use the ax is driven into the log, and the clamp is then made fast with the support, standing vertically. The saw is then guided between the arms of the support, and the back of the saw rests on the roller. With the saw thus supported and guided, it may be operated in the usual manner to saw through the log. The roller may be mounted near the outer end of the support or close to the jaws. In the former case the saw will operate between the roller and the jaws, and the support must be mounted to project downward. In order to permit of removing the saw from the support it is preferable to support the saw on the outer side of the roller, guiding it in the open slot formed by the two arms of the support. The clamp is then applied, with the support projecting upward instead of downward." This useful attachment for sawing logs has been patented by Mr. Levi Smith of Marshfield, Coos county, Ore.

A sawhorse for household use may be made like the ordinary sawhorse, except that at the back instead of a narrow edge a wide edge is put, with a top piece four inches wide. It can be made wider if desired. Two strips along the side form a box, which will hold tools and nails. It is about the handiest thing the handy man around the farm can have.

To bring the forests to their full productiveness they must be cut over. The ax is the forester's hoe as well as his scythe. Reaping and sowing are usually for him one and the same operation, and cultivation is accomplished by getting rid of what he does not want. There were cut from the national forests during the last fiscal year the equivalent of a little over 280,000,000 board feet of timber. This involved cutting operations on slightly less than 360,000 acres of land, or about one four-hundredths of the total area of the government's forests. In other words, hardly a beginning has been made in bringing the forests to their highest productiveness through use, and their reserve of mature timber has scarcely been touched by the operations under way. There is money in the wood lot, and the average farmer in awakening to this fact.
