EUGENE LIBERTY GUILTY

JURY RETURNS VERDICT CONVICT-ING HIM OF ASSAULT.

A Family Row Over a Water Faucet Led Him to Stab B. L. Redden In the Eye.

Eugene W. Liberty, who assaulted B. Redden with a table-knife, causing the latter to lose an eye, was tried and con-victed in Judge Sears Court yesterday, on a charge of assault with a dangerous Weapon. The crime was committed on May 17 last evidence disclosed that Redden and his wife and children rented two rooms in their cottage at North Portland to Mr. and Mrs. Liberty with the privilege of their obtaining water from the kitchen faucet. The two women did not get along very well together, and as a result of this Redden fastened the door leading to the kitchen, compelling the Liberty family to around the back way to get water, berty objected to such treatment, and moved the nails, which secured the door. On the day on which the trouble occurred Liberty proceeded to enter the kitchen, carrying a water-bucket, and Redden says with a revolver in sight. After a war of words the men clinched, and Redden testi-fied that he got the worst of it, as Liberty proved to be too strong for him. He stated that Liberty picked up plates from a table in the room and broke them over his head, and afterwards grabbed a kuife. edden said he made an unsuccessful attempt to take the knife away from his ascallant, and that Liberty thrust the knife into his left eye, injuring the optic so badly that a surgeon had to remove it. He also testified that the defendant knocked him violently against the table. Bedden's wife, William Roberts, and Dr. Fred Gillet were witnesses in his behalf. Liberty appeared in the court-room with

The right hand in splints and bandaged. The main ligament on the back of his hand was cut. For the present, at least, he has lost the use of the index finger. He testified that Redden cut him with a knife as he entered the room, and that Redden used vile language to him, and was the aggressor in the fight. Liberty de-nied that he drew a revolver, or that he Redden in the eye with a knife. He eald he did not know what caused the in-jury to Redden's eye, but it probably re-sulted from his falling and striking the corner of the table. Dr. S. C. Slocum, who attended Liberty, testified that the wound on the man's hand appeared to be the result of a knife thrust. On cross-examination by District Attor-ney Manuing the doctor admitted that the sharp point of a plate or saucer might have caused the cut.

Mrs. Liberty and several other witnesses testified for the defense. The jury took out a short time to agree upon a verdict.

Robert Greenwald, charged with steal-ing boxes of cartridges in the store of ing boxes of cartridges in the store of Meier & Frank Company, pleaded guilty in the State Circuit Court yesterday and was sentenced by Judge Cleiand to six months in the County Jail. Greenwald is a young man, and states that his mother, who resides in the County Jail. who resides in the East, is wealthy, and that he has no occasion to be a criminal. It appears, however, to be a weakness with him. Some time ago he falsely represented himself as agent for a known Eastern weekly journal and col-lected subscriptions from people on the strength of his alleged agency. He was arrested and served time. On obtaining his liberty he applied for and secured a position in the store of Meier & Frank Company. He was there but a short time Company. He was there but a short time until the firm missed articles from the store, and Greenwald, who was, after some inquiry, suspected of being the thief, was detected, and stolen goods were found

TRANSMUTER OF METALS Clever Woman in Jail Who Changes

Josie Wheeler, a noted pickpocket, was arrested Sunday afternoon by the police, and is awaiting her trial in the Municipal Court this morning under a ball of $1000 cash. A well-known business man, John C. Freamis, a member of the North Patillo Lumber Commence was because cific Lumber Company, was her victim, and it cost him $19 to learn the ways of pickpockets. He reported the matter to the police but was not willing to make a omplaint or be known in the case. Chief Hunt, however, was not content to work under such disadvantages, and made the complaint against the woman himself. Preamls was notified to appear against her yesterday, but falled to be on hand. A bench warrant was issued for him, and he will be compelled to testify against her

The woman pickpocket worked a smooth game, and the shrewd business man fell an easy victim. He was walking up Mor-rison street when he met the woman. She was well dressed and had every appear-was well dressed and had every appearance of respectability.

"Can I speak to you a moment?" she asked, stopping him and addressing him in pitiful tones. He thought at once that she was in trouble and stopped to listen. "You look so good and kind," she said in an assuring tone, "I know that I could ask you to help me cut." He did not see why he should not do what he could to help a fellow-creature in trouble, and listened to her tale of how she had been deserted by her husband and left penniless and alone in a strange city. But less and alone in a strange city. But be only had a $30 gold plece in his pocket, and did not want to offer that. As she told her story, she became very familiar and gradually she began to think that she admired her newly made ac-quaintance very much. He had not bar-gained to comfort her or to return her signs of affection, and in a moment learned that he had been fooled. He fidgeted uneasily as he realized the true character of the woman, and felt in his pocket for the gold piece. It was still there, and he decided that it was time to get away before it was gone. The woman seemed very sorry to lose him but did not insist upon his staying longer. He was still uneasy, however, and as he passed under an electric light he took the coin from his pocket and found that it had changed to a plain ordinary silver dollar. Mr. Preamis' first inclination was to keep the matter to himself and not to let his friends know how he had been fooled. Later, however, he went to the police station and reported the affair. "I thought you ought to know that there are such people about," he said. Even before he had left the station a voman was brought in for being on the treets and exciting suspicion and he ecognized her as his friend of a few lights before. Accordingly she was locked up and her ball fixed at $1000. Business must have been good with het, however, for she promptly furnished the ball and was allowed to go.

The police do not know her to be a noted pickpocket, but since the case has been pending they have found out that ber work is such as to make her famous in the "profession" if she is allowed to work at it unmolested.

Probable Cause of Accident.

A jagged piece of steel picked up by Harry Stutsman, engineer on the Burn-side bridge, from the groove of the rails on the east approach, may have caused the derailment and accident to the open street-ear Sunday forenoon. The piece is triangular in form and about half an inch thick, and the sides are about two inches long. It has the appearance of having been run over by a carwheel, and could very easily derail a car, if the fiange should strike it. It was picked up soon after the accident by Mr. Stutsman. If the carwheel did strike this piece of steel, it probably caused the derailment. It is much larger than the spike which caus a recent accident on the O. R. & N. Rail-

MARCH THROUGH OREGON

GEORGIA EDITORS IN A TOUR OF THE WEST.

Southern Newspaper Men and Their Wives Are the Guests of Portland for a Day.

"Marching Through Georgia" has been reversed, for this time the Georgians are marching through Oregon. A party of 25 members of the Georgia Press Association were the guests of the city yesterday. The Southern newspaper men and their wives are on their way from California back home to Georgia. They arrived in Portland Sunday evening, and leave this morning, bound for Yellowstone Purk.

Portland Sunday evening, and leave this morning, bound for Yellowstone Park.

The Commercial Club entertained the victors from the Sunny South. A committee from the club, composed of Colonel James Jackson, George W. Hazen, G. H. Durham, W. A. Cleland and W. E. Coman, escorted the editors on a sight-seeing tour of the city. Assisted by wives of several clubmen the party was afterwards given a luncheon at the Commercial Club, and as a finishing touch to the day's pleasure a river trip was taken to Oregon City, re-turning by car line. Every member of the editorial party expressed his appreciation of the reception tendered them, and the praises of Port-land and its people will evidently be sung in the Georgia papers on the return. It was Portland's flowers, and particularly the roses, which took the eyes of the Georgia people.

'I couldn't realize that all the flowers were genuine, when I first saw them, said one lady of the party. "We saw lots of flowers in California, but these roses beat anything we ever saw before." Those who arranged the luncheon at the rooms of the Commercial Club took ad-vantage of Portland's flowers, and gathered fogether an array to be placed upon the snowy cloth which aroused fresh words of admiration. The Commercial Club, both individually and as an organisation, laid itself out to entertain the Georgia visitors in a way they would long remember, and they succeeded admirably The Hood River strawberries which flushed off the luncheon came in for their full quota of admiration. Berries of that exquisite taste were a novelty with the Southerners. The Chinook saimon was an-other new dish much appreciated by the Owen, C. S. Jackson, and Max M. Shillock, Secretary of the Board of Trade.

After the luncheon the party was hurried off in a taily-ho to take a steamer provided by Captain A. B. Graham, of the Oregon City Transportation Company. Accompanied by the entertainment committee and John S. Princy, manager of the American Type Founders' Company, who assisted the committee in the reception, the party visited the falls and, after taking a spin to Canemah Park on a special car, donated by the Oregon Water Power & Railway Company, the visitors and their entertainers returned to the Hotel Powerland.

Georgians start this morning for home, Portland being the farthest point from Georgia which will be visited. They go by way of Pocatello to Yellowstone Park, where a week will be spent.

Among the party of editors are many practical newspaper men as well as sev-eral proprietors and business managers of magazines. H. H. Cabaniss, the President the State Association, looks the part of a Southern gentlemen of the old sc perfection. He was formerly editor of the Atlanta Journal, but is now connected with the Augusta Chronicle. Following are the names of the editors

STATUE OF HENRY B. HYDE Mr. L. Samuel Is the Possessor of a Work of Grent Art.

Mr. L. Samuel, manager of the Equit sble Life Assurance Society's business in Oregon, has just been presented with an original bronze statue of Henry B. Hyde, founder of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The older Mr. Hyde died a number of years ago. The statue is the work of J. A. O. Ward, one of the best known of the famous New York sculptors.

Mr. Samuel is one of the few of the Mr. Samuel is one of the few of the present managers of the Equitable Society in the United States who worked under the elder Mr. Hyde's personal direction. Mr. Samuel's personal relations with the former president were cordial and of the most friendly character. It is in recognition of this old-time friendship between his father and Mr. Samuel that Mr. J. H. Hyde, now vice-president of the Equitable Society, presented Mr. Samuel with this status. Mr. Samuel prizes the gift as a fitting reminder of the old friend's great abilties, and of his many virtues, and elso as attesting his many virtues, and also as attesting the esteem of the younger Mr. Hyde, who has developed the character and the ability of his father before him.

Early this week the Civil Service Com-mission will meet and pass on the bunch of examination papers passed in at the police examination held on Saturday. Applicants for positions as captain of de-tectives, captains of patroimen, patroi-men, detectives, drivers, matrons, jailers and harbor-masters answered the quizzes and they are anxiously waiting their fate. About 40 papers were turned in in all, and as a whole they show a marked im-provement over those submitted at the last examination, when the patrolmen were examined. The writing is better all around, and there do not appear to be as many misspelled words as before.
