The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

THURSDAY.....APRIL 26, 1883

—The A. B. Field sails for Tillamook this morning.

The barkentine Webfoot arrived at Gray's harbor last Tuesday.

The Queen of the Pacific is due from San Francisco to-day.

—Prof. Murphey, of Salem, advertises lessons in Italian oil painting.

—There will be a special meeting of the city council next Saturday evening.

—The Gen. Miles will make her next trip to Gray's harbor on the 8th prox.

—There are sixty-five newspapers published in Oregon of which seven are daily.

—Over 20,000 passengers have crossed into the Columbia since January 1st, 1883.

—The stockholders of the Astoria Iron Works, will hold their annual meeting this evening.

—The steamer Mary D. Hume now makes regular trips between the mouth of Smith river and San Francisco.

—Giant powder at the southern extension of the O. & C. R. R. last Saturday blew to atoms a Chinaman with $1,000 in greenbacks in his pocket.

—The track layers on the Baker City branch have passed the mouth of Meacham creek some thirty miles east of Pendleton, and are advancing at the rate of a mile per day.

—The Boise Republican says a survey has been made for the O. S. L., to run through Boise City, and that orders have been given to stop further building on the old survey.

—Parties from Gray's harbor report the claims fatter and juicier than ever this season. One man, said he took 'em straight three times a day for ten days, and the more he ate the better he liked 'em.

—Yesterday the sun shone brightly and the river reflected the blue of the sky. A steady breeze sent some light fleecy clouds floating up from the southwest. Pilots from the offing report heavy banks of fog outside.

—The literary genius who complains that he is not "appreciated" will be surprised to learn that "Peck's bad boy," being the fictional adventures of a youngster, has been published in book form, 100,000 copies of which have already been sold.

—Myron Green, superintendent of the McCloud river fish hatchery says that the work is not to be discontinued, but wil go on indefinitely. A few years ago the Sacramento was almost bare of salmon. Now the fish are coming in, the direct result of the hatchery.

Dealers in cigars and tobacco who have stocks on hand that they wish to get a rebate on, must be careful to pay their special tax (license) prior to May 1st, or they will not be "dealers" in the eyes of the law, and therefore not entitled to the rebate. Rebate will only be allowed on stock on hand or in transit May 1, and no claim for less than $10 will be considered, therefore a dealer must have on had 3,350 cigars, or 125 lbs of tobacco, or enough of the two to amount to $10 at $3 per 100 for cigars and 8 cents per pound for tobacco. Blanks are furnished dealers on which to make out their schedules. They will also have to affix a label to each package, containing the name, place and collection district.

—The Hillsboro Independent says: Mr. W. D. Hoxter is now manager of the Indian school at the Grove, and the department is well satisfied with his economical administration. The previous managers had, it is said, been rather lavish in their expenditures of government money until there was scarcely any funds of the $30,000 appropriation for the year 1882 to run the school for the last three months of the year. Mr. Kelly and Mrs. Wilkinson had managed the school after Wilkinson's removal. The government, so we are informed, sent out two accountants at an expense of $1,500, and on their report the department refused to pay bills to the amount of $5,500, which they had occurred.

—The owners of the ship War Hawk, lately scuttled and sunk in Port Discovery bay, have concluded to raise the vessel. Her fore and main top gallant masts have been cut away, together with such other spars and hamper as can be got at. Submarine divers and powerful pumps, suitable for the work to be performed, will be brought up from San Francisco. The holes cut in her will be stopped, and water pumped out, when it is thought she will come to the surface. If everything works well, probably in a few weeks the War Hawk will be plowing the ocean in as good trim as ever she was. She now lies with her stern in 60 feet of water at low tide and bow in about 20 feet. The damage done her by the fire probably dosen't amount to much.—Standard.

Views of Mr. Villard Regarding Astoria's Railroad.

The committee from the Astoria chamber of commerce which went up to Portland last Tuesday to confer with Mr. Villard in reference to the land grant, and matters of kindred interest to Astoria, returned yesterday afternoon. In conversation with one of the committee upon returning, he said that the report of the meeting as telegraphed to THE ASTORIAN was substantially correct except that it implied that Mr. Villard expected Astoria to provide terminal facilities. Should the road be built Mr. Villard will expect to pay for whatever terminal grounds he may select; what he said was that from a casual inspection of the water front he thought it might occasion some trouble to get a mile of frontage on the river, which he considered necessary for the depot, car shops, etc.

The interview was purely informal and what was said was in a conversational way. Short-hand notes were taken by the private secretary, and in due time will be furnished for publication. Mr. Villard disclaimed any feeling other than friendship for this community. He said that the interests he represented extended from Minnesota to the Pacific; that every community along the line was necessarily more or less interested in the operations of the N. P. R. R. Co., and that it was his intention throughout to so act that the interests of all together should be best served. In reference to building the road he entered at great length into the history of the O. & C. corporation which originally controlled the Astoria land grant: he said that the German stockholders had once furnished money to Ben Holliday with the direct understanding that that money should be used in making railroad connection between Oregon and California, and at the time he assumed charge there was nothing to show for the immense amount of money that had been spent but 60 miles of railroad owned and operated by an insolvent corporation. That he could not upon his visit to Germany ask for money with the declared intention of applying it to railroad construction that these parties believed they had already paid for, and hence was obliged to concentrate all his energy on the completion of the main line; that he now had the money on hand to build the road from Astoria; that upon the report of the engineers depended his future action as to building the road or abandoning the grant; that he had sent orders to have the route surveyed and the report ready for him upon his arrival at Astoria, but that the delay would occasion a deferring of any definite statement for sixty days.

The conversation here took a wider range and in answer to various questions by different members of the committee he answered in a manner that conveyed to the committee that he was speaking and meant to act in good faith. He said that in the event of the decision being made in favor of building the road the work should immediately begin, and at Astoria.

—The Three Brothers, the largest sailing vessel on the high seas, was thirty days behind time on her recent trip from San Francisco to Antwerp, owing to a curious incident. Half of the crew of thirty-six men struck work as they left San Francisco, having received and spent their wages in advance, and expecting to be set ashore. The captain, however, sailed calmly on his voyage with only half the canvass spread, an amount that was easily managed by the balance of the crew, arriving in Antwerp safely, after being out 120 days, when the mutineers were handed over to the authorities.

—Mrs. J. C. Tolman, says the Ashland Tidings, has embarked in the fish raising business. She has one German carp which represents an outlay of $32. Some time since she sent to Eugene for twenty dollars' worth of carp, having a nice pond for their occupation, on the Judge's farm above Ashland. The expressage on the fish amounted to $12, and only one of the whole lot survived the transportation. Thirty-two dollars for one fish is a price which beats the charges for fancy chicken eggs. The one fish was doing well at last report, barring his "lonesomeness." Whether he will "increase and multiply" or not we leave to the future to determine.

Removal.
