NOTABLE VISITORS.

Prominent Minneapolis Elevator Owners Visit Astoria Yesterday.

Yesterday the steamer Baker brought down a party of prominent visitors, who arrived Tuesday morning in Portland from the East. They were as follows:

Frank H. Peavey, James F. Peavey, John S. Bradstreet, Miss Mary Peavey, of Minneapolis; Mrs. Geo. G. Wright, of DesMoines, Iowa; Miss Winter, of St. Paul; Miss Tracey and C. W. Tracey, of Portland.

Mr. Frank H. Peavey is at the head of the firm that owns and controls all of the principal elevators west of the Mississippi river, among which was the big elevator destroyed by fire last fall in Portland.

Mr. L. B. Seeley, and Mr. Turney, of Portland, accompanied the party. As soon as the dock was reached, the Baker was taken alongside the tug Relief and the party went aboard for a trip down the bay. No prettier day could have been selected, for not a cloud marred the whole sky, and while the air was a bit crisp, it was made only the more exhilarating. Parties from this city who accompanied the excursionists, pointed out places of interest, as the steamer went down the bay. At Flavel the tug tied up for a few minutes while the party went ashore. It was on the program to make a trip out on the jetty, but on account of there being no work going on at the present time, this feature was abandoned. Captain McCoy stood for the outer end of the jetty, so as to give the members of the party an opportunity to view the great work that has made the Columbia's mouth the safest harbor entrance in the world. It was low tide, and the rock between the piling loomed up like the great wall that it is, and showed plainly its purpose in confining the channel to a certain course. All of the visitors manifested great interest in the work, as well as other features that had been pointed out to them. On coming around for the return trip a pretty sight was brought into view. Directly up the river, standing like a great white-robed sentinel, its topmost peak piercing the blue heavens, and its base resting among the heavily timbered foothills, Mt. Adams, clad with everlasting snow, was pictured against a back-ground of blue sky. The view brought forth exclamations of admiration from every member of the party.

To an Astorian reporter, Mr. Peavey said:

"We are simply down here on a pleasure trip, and our visit has no significance whatever. I have been to Portland a great many times, and have often promised myself the pleasure of a visit to Astoria. I think you have a magnificent harbor here, and I can see no reason why, with a railroad into Astoria, you will not have a thriving city here in a few years."

Mr. Peavey and party are travelling in a special car, and as soon as they reach Portland they will depart for the Sound. The car will be sent to Vancouver, B. C., and from Seattle the party will go up the Sound by boat.

After returning to the city, Mr. Lounsberry was introduced to the members of the party, and together with Mr. Sherman, who represented the O. R. and N. Co. on the trip down the bay, the visitors were shown about the city. They returned to Portland on the Baker last night.

They Lack Life

There are twines sold to fishermen on the Columbia river that stand in the same relationship to Marshall's Twine as a wooden image does to the human being—they lack strength—life—evenness—and lasting qualities. Don't fool yourself into the belief that other twines besides Marshall's will do "just as well." They won't. They cannot.
