FORTIFYING MANILA HARBOR

arms, ammunition, uniforms, and other requisite equipment, it having been feasible up to this time to secure these essentials for only 12,000 men. Gen. Merritt was informed last night of the improved prospects for augmenting his force and was requested to designate such additional volunteer regiments from the east as he desired for duty in the Philippines with the assurance that his wishes would be respected. It is understood that he contemplates asking for at least one regiment from New York, another from Illinois and the District of Columbia, a regiment for the third. It is also likely Col. Jay Torrey's mounted Rocky Mountain riflemen will be added to the expedition, which is thus far different in the cavalry arm.

MERRITT'S COMMAND.

San Francisco, May 30.—Gen Merritt will today formally take command of all the troops destined for the Philippines. Although the date of sailing of the second expedition has not been fixed, it will probably not be delayed beyond ten days. In the meantime the volunteers are being thoroughly drilled and becoming accustomed to the routine of camp life. The Minnesota regiment will be supplied with new Springfield rifles and a full store of ammunition today and the equipment of the command will then be complete. Orders against the acceptance of food donated by strangers are being rigidly enforced in the Minnesota, Nebraska, and Idaho headquarters. So many men have been sick from immoderate indulgence in dainties that stories of poisoning, apparently without foundation, have been circulated and the officers have thought best to take no chances. The Idaho troops have made preparations to receive a stand of colors from the Columbian club of Boise, which are expected today. During the skirmish drill of the Nebraska regiment yesterday Private John Leon was accidentally pierced through the cheek by a bayonet, but his injury is not serious. There are many members of the Christian Endeavor society among the men in the camp, and the local members of the order are doing everything possible to add to their comfort. The demand for pocket editions of the New Testament, to be placed in the soldiers' supply bags, has already exhausted the supply in this city and state.

MANILA ROPE.

New York, May 30.—The World today says:

The war has revived the rope industry in this country and Rear Admiral Dewey's signal victory at Manila has put American manufacturers in the way of making fortunes. Manila was, outside of Mexico, the main supply for raw material and since Admiral Dewey has closed that port prices have suddenly boomed from 3½ cents a pound to 5 cents for raw Manila hemp. There is no chance to purchase Manila hemp for future shipment, which is usually done when prices are normal.

With Dewey's victory men in the cordage business see wealth looming up. A score of companies throughout the country are in the hands of receivers and all of those corporations expect to clear up all indebtedness and start afresh. While there is not the great stock of Manila hemp in this country the manufacturers can secure sisal hemp from Mexico. Besides the manufacturers have great stocks of rope already on hand and they have already put up all prices fully 20 per cent. The talk of forming a combination among the manufacturers has not yet gone beyond the point of discussing the ways and means of bringing about such a combination. The manufacturers say that the failures of all previous combinations were caused by the impossibility of controlling the Manila hemp market. Now it is said the market can be controlled from Manila as soon as Admiral Dewey completes his sway over the islands and the United States establishes a protectorate there.

THE SECRET SERVICE WORK.

New York, May 30.—A World special from Washington says:

One of the most important branches of the government war service about which for obvious reasons, little or no information is to be obtained, is the bureau of secret service. The ordinary capacity of the service has been doubled since the declaration of war against Spain and to no branch of the government is entrusted such important and delicate undertakings. The number of men actually employed in securing information for the use of the government both in this country and abroad cannot be accurately stated, but there are enough of them to make up a full regiment of the most intelligent and highly trained servants of the nation. Their movements are naturally guarded with the utmost caution, but it can be stated that in addition to the ordinary functions of the service, such as the detection of counterfeiting, the agents of the secret service are at work at every place in the world where information is to be secured or persons who may injure the government are to be watched, in Havana, in Madrid, in fact where it is not safe for an American to disclose his nationality or to give evidence of his patriotism.

It is through this mysterious source that the government gains much of the information which insures its plans for the prosecution of the war against Spain but which is generally supposed as having come through other sources. The reports of operatives of the secret service are transmitted to the chief of the bureau through many of the devious channels and in a cipher more intricate and difficult than that employed by the most skilled of diplomatic agents.

Only one man in the whole country can really tell how many of the secret agents of the country are at work and the nature of their undertakings. He is John R. Wilkie, chief of the bureau. A quest for information elicits a skeptical smile from him and the emphatic assurance that the work of his department is the business of nobody except the officials that supervise it. About all the information that Mr. Wilkie can be induced to impart is that the service is about as complete and satisfactory as could be desired. The ordinary offenders with which the service has to deal in times of peace are being carefully looked after and if any enterprising counterfeiter or moonshiner thinks the government has its hands too full of war business to look after him, he is mistaken and will undoubtedly find it out.

The war with Spain has just about doubled the work of the secret service. The war service has been made a legitimate part of the functions of the bureau. Its efforts to keep the government posted as to the movements of agents and spies of the enemies are of material assistance to the war and navy departments. Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn of the war department has been entrusted with the duty of imparting to Chief Wilkie all the tips that reach the war department and of receiving the reports of the officers to Mr. Wilkie which may be of service to his department. But Mr. Wilkie himself directs the work and it is doubtful if the assistant secretary of war is any better acquainted with the details than any ordinary citizen.

The operations of the service's agents in promoting diplomatic, military and naval information that may be of value to the government covers a wide range of territory, and there are no doubt dozens of trained experts working in Europe, Asia, South America and Cuba. The service performed embraces a wide range from "spotting" the movements of Spanish ambassadors, of following persons suspected of being in the employ of Spain. Every movement, for instance, of Senor Polo, the former minister to this country, has been most carefully noted since he left Washington a month ago and crossed the frontier into Canada, and an American agent will not be far away from him until he has crossed the boundary line that separates his own country from France. Every detail of his movements, the name of every person he consulted in Canada and those he will confer with in England and on the continent is or will be known to the chief of the service and to such officers as may be concerned.

In this country the greatest part of the work of the secret agents is in watching persons suspected of plotting against the United States. Probably two or three hundred persons are under constant espionage and will be watched so long as their conduct justifies. The most striking example of the efficiency of the service in connection with the war was furnished by the detection and arrest of Downing, a former American sailor employed by the Spanish minister to send information about the defenses and equipment of the coast fortifications and our warships. Downing was arrested within two days from the date on which he entered the employ of Spain. Upon his person was found evidence that seemingly proved his guilt. He was arrested and committed suicide by hanging. Downing was watched from the moment he reached Montreal to confer with the Spanish minister and a secret service officer was near him until he was arrested here.

Several women are employed to secure information in quarters where it would be impossible for a man to do so and they have rendered excellent service, the most important feature of which has been their ability to conquer the weakness of their sex for gossip.

Chief Wilkie, who was a good newspaper reporter before he was made chief of the government sleuths a month ago, may write up some of the records of the service which will make interesting and romantic reading.

ADDITIONS TO THE NAVY.

New York, May 30.—The navy department will call upon shipbuilders today to prepare to build the three battleships authorized by the present session of congress with a limit of cost, excluding armament and armor, of $3,000,000 each, says the Washington correspondent of the Tribune. Heretofore the limit of cost was somewhat larger, as it included armor, the navy always building its own guns. Proposals will be invited under two works the first on the departmental plans and specifications and the second upon designs to be furnished by the bidders which must, however, fully cover certain limitations laid down by the board of construction. This board, after continued sessions for a month, has decided that the three new ships shall be almost identical with the Illinois, the Wisconsin and the Alabama, now building at Newport News, San Francisco and Philadelphia respectively, and in all probability the new vessels will be built at those places, the Cramps, the Scott and Newport companies possessing patterns which will enable them to do the work more expeditiously and at less expense than other establishments. The circular which will be issued today, provides for vessels of 11,500 tons displacement with a coal capacity of 1200 tons on a mean draught of 25 feet, a length of 380 feet and 72 feet beam. The hull will be of steel with double bottoms and cross water-tight divisions with ample freeboard and berthing accommodations on deck above water. There will be no sails, but two auxiliary masts with fighting tops. Two life boats will be carried so as to be rapidly lowered in all kinds of weather. The side armor belt will be 7½ feet and 18½ inches thick through engine and boiler spaces, tapering to a thickness of 7 inches at bow and stern, and there will be transverse armor forward and aft 12 inches thick. Barbettes for the 13-inch guns will be 11 inches thick, except in the rear, where they will be 9 inches. The turret armor will be — inches throughout. The ships sides above the armor belt as far as the main deck will be protected by 2½ inch armor, behind which coal is to be carried for further security. The vessels will have a protective deck throughout the entire length 2½ inches thick where flat and 3 inches forward and 3 inches aft where it is inclined. A cellulose vat will be fitted along the sides of the whole length. The conning tower will be 10 inches thick, and there will be an additional tower. All 6-inch guns will be protected by 5½ inch armor and by 1½ inch splinter bulkheads between the guns, and smaller guns will have shield protection and extra side plating.

The vessels will be driven by twin screws with two vertical triple expansion four-cylinder engines, one each shaft and in separate water tight compartments. There will be eight cylindrical single-end boilers with a working pressure of 210 pounds in four separate water-tight compartments. The weight of the machinery is limited to 1150 tons. The ships are to be completed under heavy penalty within two and a half years. After they are delivered to the government their guns and other equipment will be installed. Their main batttery will be composed of four 13-inch guns in two barbette turrets, one forward and the other aft, and ten 6-inch rapid fire guns in broadside on the main deck and four similar weapons on the upper deck with the superstructure. Two submerged tubes will be provided with eight 17-foot torpedoes. Accommodations must be arranged for a complement of 500 officers and men. The turrets and ammunition hoists are to be operated by electricity. A speed of 18 knots is required, with heavy penalties for any deficiency, and if the vessel fails to make 15 knots she may be rejected altogether.

ST. LOUIS SAILS.

New York, May 30.—The auxiliary cruiser St. Louis sailed today. The strike which threatened to delay the vessel's sailing was peacefully adjusted.

A LEADER AND A LOST CAUSE.

Chicago Times-Herald:

With the net importations of gold for the current fiscal year reaching a round $100,000,000 and $65,000,000 added to the yellow pile from the home production coined at the United States Mints, it is hardly to be wondered at that the late presidential candidate, W. J. Bryan, has decided that a colonel's commission in the United States volunteers, with the salary paid in gold or its its equivalent, is worth a dozen future presidential campaigns on a forty-cent silver dollar platform.

While Candidate Bryan still makes a free coinage speech occasionally, if he is paid enough to make it worth his while, it is evident that he thinks free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1 one of the dogs that have had their day and that it is time for a prudent candidate to look for another job. The unexpected Spanish war has furnished him his job, and he has promptly accepted it, and it will not be amiss for the honest, but misguided following of Bryan, who have been led to the support of free coinage through his sophistical arguments, to follow their leader's example and desert a cause against which even the stars in their courses seem to be arrayed.

For it must now be evident to every man who thinks that with the world's production of gold greater than at any former period and a trade condition that draws European gold to this country at the annual rate of $100,000,000, free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 is a dead and buried issue in the United States. The silver mining interests will continue to agitate the subject in a mild sort of way and a few theorists will still continue to believe in the justice of the demand for cheap silver dollars, but with Bryan abandoning his presidential dreams for a promise concerning the great mass of those who supported him on the free coinage issue will be likely to conclude that their cause has made its exit along with their leader. The free coinage cause seems to be in the last stage of a hopeless decline.

VALUE OF THE MISSIONARY.

Chicago Times Herald.

No more interesting message has come to the American people in a long time than that report which Bishop Hartzell of the Methodist church brings back from Africa. Commissioned by the great denomination to which he belongs to supply the spiritual needs of Africans, he has discharged that duty and has supplemented it with a labor of the very greatest secular or political interest. He tells the brethren who sent him and the country at large how rich a field is Africa in materials as well as in moral possibilities. He has gone through "the dark continent" with open eyes, and he finds what Americans need as well as what the church desires to know.

Bishop Hartzell is a younger and more active man than was Bishop Taylor, whom he succeeded. That venerable "first bishop of Africa" was an apostle, pure and simple. He was of the same timber as Peter, or Calvin, or Fox. He saw but the things which affected spiritual affairs. He was devout and ascetic, an intense and fervid man, and he opened the way. Hartzell is broader—an American as well as a Methodist. And while the denomination will gain by the substitution, the nation will learn from his observation.

There was a time when missionaries may have deserved the taunt which Byron flung at them when he spoke of "rum and holy water." But the day has gone by. In these times the missionary—no matter what his church—goes in the front rank of exploration, and exercises more than an equal share in that humane and wise tutelage which results in civilizing men. His messages to his church are priceless supplements to consular reports and are often even more instructive.

The sending of men like Bishop Hartzell into new lands is a positive benefit to the nation.

HOW TO LOOK GOOD.

Good looks are really more than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver is inactive you have a bilious look; if your stomach is disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidneys are affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alterative and Tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils, and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at Estes-Conn Drug Co. 50 cents per bottle.

PLAYED OUT.

Dull headache, pains in various parts of the body, sinking at the pit of the stomach, loss of appetite, feverishness, pimples or sores are all positive evidences of impure blood. No matter how it became so, it must be purified in order to obtain good health. Acker's Blood Elexir has never failed to cure scrofulous or syphilitic poisons or any other blood diseases. It is certainly a wonderful remedy and we sell every bottle on a positive guarantee. For sale by Estes-Conn Drug Co.

It seems strange, but it generally takes about ten times as many arguments to establish the truth as a lie.

I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have used all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found one remedy that has been a success as a cure, and that is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.—P. E. Grisham, Gaars Mills, La. For sale by Charles Rogers, druggist.

That the blood should perform its vital functions, it is absolutely necessary it should not only be pure but rich in life-giving elements. These results are best effected by the use of that well-known standard blood purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
